Far-Ranging Welfare Reform Passes House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare reform, including the first federally guaranteed minimum family income, has won House approval along with far-reaching Social Security changes.

The massive legislative package, touching in one way or another the lives of most Americans, now goes to the Senate where its fate won't be decided until at least late this year.

The House Tuesday turned back, 234 to 187 an unusual conservative-liberal coalition's attempt to eliminate the bill's welfare section. Then the measure was passed unchanged, 288 to 132.

The winners, like the losers, represented an extraordinary combination: President Nixon's emissaries working closely with Democratic leaders.

After the vote, Nixon issued a statement through the White House urging prompt Senate action on the bill he said is designed to "build people up, rather than pull them down."

Working Poor

He said it "offers the nation at last a way out of the present welfare morass" through strong work requirement and work incentives and benefits "for workers whose earnings are inadequate to support their families."

The national income standard builds up "levels of opportunity for our most valued asset—our children," the President said, while the Social Security portion "strikes a blow against poverty for the elderly."

The bill would sweep away the present state welfare system, with its 54 different sets of territorial benefit levels, eligibiliy rules and procedures, and substitute a federally administered plan.

It would assure a minimum annual income of $2,400 for a family of four and include the working poor, possibly adding as many as 10 million persons to the current 15 million welfare recipients.

States could supplement the federal payments—many already pay more—but would not be required to do so.

Welfare reform would cost the federal government an estimated $5.5 billion and save states $1.6 billion at present support levels

The Social Security provisions would boost benefits for more than 27 million recipients and hike payroll taxes, although persons will working would receive even greater benefits at retirement.

A 5 per cent across-the-board benefit increase would be effective in June 1972, and benefits, and taxes, would go up in future years to keep pace with living costs and average wage levels.

Even without the automatic adjustment feature, payroll taxes paid by employers and employes would go up steeply—as much as $145.20 next year for those earning $10,200 or more, and as much as 86 per cent in six years.

Benefits would be liberalized also for widows, persons continuing to earn money after retirement, men retiring early and low-earning couples. Medicare, now available only to those over 65, would be extended to persons retired for disability.

Family Income

On the welfare side, needy families with a breadwinner would receive aid until income for four persons reached $4,140.

Employable adults in welfare families would have to register in a Labor Department program of training and work assignment and 200,000 public service jobs would be provided. Day care centers would be developed for children over 3 years old while their mothers worked.

Tougher sanctions would be provided against fraud, refusal to take work or training, or desertion.

Welfare reform died last year in the Senate Finance Committee. A shift in committee membership would appear to improve the new bill's chances of being sent to the Senate floor.

The administration already has indicated it would not oppose some amendments, such as a guard against benefit reductions.

Senate hearings tentatively are planned to begin about mid-July.

During the two-day House debate, blacks and some white liberals argued the support level is grossly inadequate and the work rules harsh and insulting, while conservatives decried the principle of assured income and predicted soaring costs.

In the key division, 141 Democrats and 93 Republicans voted against deleting the welfare provisions, and 104 Democrats and 83 Republicans for deletion.

Major Alterations

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the House bill raising Social Security benefits and taxes and revamping the welfare system.

Social Security

Benefits: Five per cent across the board increase effective June 1972.

Also, in the future benefits would be increased automatically when the cost of living rises 3 per cent or more in a year. This provision would not apply if there had been a legislated increase the previous year. Thus, the first possible automatic increase would come in 1973.

Taxes: Wage base for the payroll tax, now $7,800, would be increased Jan. 1, 1972, to $10,200. Tax rate increased simultaneously from 5.2 per cent to 5.4 per cent, so maximum tax payable by any employe and matched by his employer would increase from $405.60 this year to $550.80 next year.

Tax Rate

Tax rates would continue to rise to 7.4 per cent in 1987 and thereafter. Whenever an automatic benefit increase occurred, the tax base would be increased in proportion to any increase in average wages.

Minimum benefit: Persons who worked 15 years or longer under Social Security would qualify for a special minimum benefit equal to $5 times the number of working years, to a maximum of $150.

There is no comparable maximum figure. Social Security estimates the median worker now 51 would retire at 65 with $234.70 under present law, $364.80 under terms of the bill, assuming economic growth.

Widows: Benefit increased from 82½ per cent to 100 per cent of spouse's basic benefit.

Earnings: Amount a pensioner may earn without reduction in Social Security benefits, now set at $1,680, to $2,000 and all earnings above that figure would result in reduction of only $1 benefits for each $2 earned.

Older Workers

Older workers: Those delaying retirement beyond age 65 would qualify for increased benefits at the rate of 1 per cent for each additional year worked.

Early retirement: Men retiring at 62 or later would have benefits computed under rules now applying to women, resulting in higher benefits.

Also, all retirees would be allowed to drop one additional year of low earnings for each 15 years of covered work from the raising benefits.

Couples: Working couples each of whom had at least 20 years of covered employment, and attain age 62 in 1972 or later, could combine their earnings for computation purposes.

Medicare: Now confined to persons 65 or older, Medicare would be extended to the disabled after two years of retirement.

Premium for the doctor care portion of Medicare would be frozen at the $6.50 a month level, except that it could be increased in proportion to any cash retirement benefit increases. The deductible for this portion would go up from $50 a year to $60.

Medicare Patients

At present, a medicare patient begins paying one-fourth of his hospital bill after 60 days' hospitalization. The bill would require in addition payment of one-eighth between the 30th and 60th day. At present, basic Medicare applies for each illness up to 90 days of hospitalization and thereafter each beneficiary has a one-time reserve of 60 days with half the cost paid. The bill would increase the lifetime reserve to 120 days.

Medicare beneficiaries could choose to have their benefits applied to membership in a comprehensive health maintenance organization.

Welfare

Income floor: Present state-federal programs to help families with dependent children, varying in benefits and federal contribution from state to state, would be repealed.

A new all-federal program would replace them, establishing an income floor for all families, including those with a low-

Nixon Will Release Study to Congress

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Nixon said today he will make available to Congress on a top secret basis the full 47-volume Pentagon study on the Vietnam war which the government has sought to prevent newspapers from publishing.

The White House said the President acted since the unauthorized publication of some portions of these documents created a situation in which Congress "would necessarily be making judgments . . . on the basis of incomplete data which could give a distorted impression of the report's contents."

Meanwhile the Chicago Sun-Times became the fourth newspaper to print articles based on the secret study, after the government got temporary court orders stopping publication by the New York Times, Washington Post and Boston Globe.

Public Access

Republican leaders in Congress earlier said they expected the President to turn over the papers to congressional committees. But it was not immediately clear how that would affect public access.

Announcement of Nixon's plans came as Reps. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., and John E. Moss, D-Calif., filed suit against Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird for release of the secret papers.

Their lawyer said the congressmen based the suit on the Freedom of Information Act which requires the government to justify withholding documents from the public.

The Sun-Times printed the partial text of a State Department official's August 1963 memo recommending that South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem be toppled if he entered into negotiations with North Vietnam.

Rusk Assistant

In a copyright story, the newspaper said the memo and another dated Sept. 16 were written by the assistant secretary of state for the Far East, Roger Hilsman, who served under Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Hilsman told The Associated Press in a telephone interview the memos were taken out of context.

"The document is authentic," he said in New York, where he is on the faculty at Columbia University's School of International Affairs.

'But it was only a contingency plan," Hilsman said. "I had my staff dream up responses to all the crazy things that might happen."

Hilsman noted the memo was published last January in the New York Times magazine and he seriously doubted if it is in the secret Pentagon study.

The memos, plus documents from the Pentagon history, show "a battle over Diem's fate with the State Department urging his ouster and the Pentagon insisting that the United States stick with him," the Sun-Times said.

Court Rulings

The Sun-Times' disclosures came one day after The Boston Globe reported on a part of the Pentagon study and was restrained by a federal judge who ordered the newspaper's copy of the papers impounded.

Federal appeals courts in New York City and Washington heard arguments Tuesday on

Mother, Children Hospitalized

Explosions Near Seymour Injure Six

SEYMOUR — Six members of a farm family were injured, at least two of them seriously, in a pair of explosions and a fire that destroyed their home late this morning.

The accident was at the Harvey Schroeder home, route 1, on Kropp Road, about three miles southwest of here.

Outagamie County police said Mrs. Schroeder, about 35, and her five children, ages 5 to 13, were taken by car and by Seymour Rescue Squad to Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah.

Paul Schroeder, 13, reportedly was critically injured when he was trapped under a section of wall for about a half hour. Witnesses said he was badly burned although he was conscious and was talking.

It took eight men to lift the section of wall off of the injured youth. Mrs. Schroeder was believed to be seriously injured although the nature of her injuries was not known. Suffering mostly from cuts and bruises were the other Schroeder children. Jeff, about 12, Cindy, 9, Nancy, about 7, and Tim 5

Witnesses said all of the injured persons were in the house when the first explosion occurred. Schroeder was not at home at the time.

Cause of the two explosions and the resulting fire was not immediately determined. The old log house was leveled. Black Creek firemen were at the scene with three units.

A witness quoted Paul Schroeder as saying that there was a small explosion, and then a much more severe blast. Reuben Blohm, route 1, Seymour, said he was about 1½ miles away when he heard the second explosion. He was one of the first persons to arrive at the scene and assisted with lifting the wall and freeing the trapped boy.

Weighty Ultimatum

Be a Loser—Or Else!

MIAMI (AP) — Mary Louise Peterson must shed 60 pounds in the next five months or go to jail for the next three years.

The deadline diet was imposed on the 38 - year - old mother of six after she was found guilty of disorderly conduct and resisting police without violence. Criminal Court Judge Murray Goodman made the weight loss mandatory as a term of her three-year probation.

"Her attorney said she was on welfare and was too overweight to hold down a job," Goodman said. "If I put her in jail or fine her, I just penalize the children."

At the time of her May 24 trial, Mrs. Peterson tipped the scales at 315. Tuesday, she said she was down to 310.

"I'm on a strict protein diet," she said. "It's not easy to lose weight, but then my doctor said it wouldn't be. The judge told me I had to lose three pounds a week until I got down to 250. I'm going to lose more than that, I'm not going to stop until I get down to 200.00

Mrs. Peterson, who is 6 feet tall, said she weighed 138 when she was married, nearly 20 years ago, but had gained steadily over the years.

"It sort of creeps up on you," she said.

Mrs. Peterson must make periodic visits to her probation officer to show she is complying with the terms of her sentence. She also plans to begin attending a Miami weight reducing salon, which offered her a free membership.

"When I sentenced her," Judge Goldman said, "she told me, 'Good, now I'll finally lose some weight.' I hope she does . . for her sake."

Amendment Nonbinding

Senate Urges Pullout Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has gone on record favoring withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina in nine months provided all American prisoners of war are freed.

But the White House says Tuesday's 57-42 passage of the non-binding pullout amendment won't affect war policy. And House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., indicated the measure would die in a House-Senate conference anyway.

The amendment originally was drafted by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. It was attached to a bill to extend the military draft.

Staged Release

The Mansfield amendment was adopted after stronger measures foundered. It "urges and requests" the President to begin immediate negotiations of a ceasefire in North Vietnam, as well as mutual troop withdrawals and prisoner releases over a nine-month period from the date the measure is enacted.

The withdrawals and releases would come in stages until there are no more American prisoners in enemy hands.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler dismissed the amendment as merely "what 57 senators think our policy should be.

(Wisconsin's two Democratic Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson both voted for the amendment.)

"It is not the view of the Congress as a whole," he added.

As if to underscore that, Hebert said he, as leader of House conferees on the draft bill, would refuse to tack any end-the-war proposal onto it.

The House reaffirmed its stand against such proposals last week, shouting down an amendment similar to Mansfield's by voice vote and rejecting a Dec. 31 pullout date 254 to 158.

In Paris, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations to the peace talks had no immediate comment on the Senate vote.

The long-standing Communist position has been that discussions on the release of U.S. prisoners could begin only after the United States agrees to a pullout by a reasonable date.

Ziegler said if the North Vietnamese think the Mansfield measure is real policy it could destroy any chance of negotiation in Paris.

Airport Officers Produce Results

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Antihijacking surveillance at Los Angeles International Airport has resulted in 307 arrests in the past 18 months but only four were related to bombing or hijacking attempts, a United States marshall says.

Marshall Gaylord Campbell told newsmen Tuesday that marshals who watch boarding passengers have confiscated more than $4 million worth of drugs. Narcotics violations accounted for 149 arrests and illegal entry for 103.

"Hijacking activity has leveled off," Campbell said. "I believe word is getting around that we have people at the airports and they are checking nearly all flights."

Odds Up for Thunderstorms

Fox Cities — Partly cloudy with a chance of showers or thunderstorms tonight and Thursday. Low tonight near 52, high Thursday near 76. Wind south at 5-10 m.p.h. tonight and 8-15 m.p.h. Thursday. Precipitation probability 40 per cent tonight and Thursday.

Assembly Shows Rare Accord

Phosphate Detergents Unanimously Opposed

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — In a rare show of unanimity on an important roll call, the Wisconsin state Assembly has sent a loud and clear message to the hundreds of thousands of housewives and other users of laundry detergents in Wisconsin:

Prepare to restock the laundry supply shelves before July 1, 1973, when the distribution and use of phosphate detergents almost universally used during the last two decades will probably be prohibited by law in the state.

An "all green" voting machine board in the lower house of the legislature is a rare sight, but it was displayed late Tuesday when, after an argument that related only to details, Democrats and Republicans joined without a single dissent to approve a bill to outlaw the detergents which are responsible for the discharge of huge quantities of polluting phosphorous in sewage effluent, and ultimately, into the deteriorating surface waters of Wisconsin.

Senate Prospects

Under normal circumstances, the act of one house of the legislature does not imply concurrence by the other, and especially this year when Democrats rule the Assembly and Republicans control the Senate. But the complete lack of partisan division in the Assembly in the interpretation of public opinion on the ecological value of a phosphate detergent prohibition shows a high degree of probability that the Senate will approve the bill also. If the measure is sent to him, it has been indicated, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey will sign it into law.

The surprising vote in the Assembly followed four or five years of concerned discussion by conservationists, nature lovers, municipal sewage managers and the state department of resources about the environmental losses brought about by the universal marketing of the phosphate compounds for laundry use. DNR now has scores of municipalities under order to remove 85 per cent of the phosphorous from their sewage effluent, at a multi-million dollar cost in plant improvement and refinement. It has been estimated that two-thirds of the phosphorous discharged by a typical sewage plant is contributed by home laundries. It promotes heavy growth of algae and has other undesirable results on waterways.

Composite Bill

The bill was a composite of many that flooded into the legislature this year. As reported to the floor by Rep. Lewis Mittness, Janesville Democrat and chairman of the Assembly Natural Resources Committee, the measure set a July 1, 1973 deadline that was supported by most of the majority Democrats. But Republicans and a few Democrats wanted a more immediate ban, and their amendment for a 1972 deadline was defeated by the slender margin of three votes.

Reps. Donald Helgeson of Manitowoc, Republican, and Gervase Hephner of Chilton, Democrat, insisted on a more rapid elimination of legal marketing of phosphate detergents. Hephner said that many businesses are being pushed toward expensive pollution control improvements because municipal sewage effluent is damaging waters. Helgeson said that the huge laundry detergent industry won't provide substitutes products until it is pushed into such action by force of law.

But Mittness objected that the industry must have time to devise alernative compounds, and Rep. John Alberts, Republican of Waukesha County, objected that some of the non-phosphate detergents now marketed contain other dangerous and toxic materials.

Hephner ridiculed what he called the reluctance of Mittness to act, taunting him for falsely assuming "the image of Gaylord Nelson" on conservation issues. The Wisconsin United States senator is often credited with having popularized resource conservation issues more effectively than any other Wisconsin politician of his time.

Later the Assembly cheerfully accepted an Alberts amendment that will require DNR to test and certify acceptability and safety of any substitute detergents marketed in Wisconsin after the prospective 1973 deadline on the phosphate compounds.

The Assembly action climaxed a long pressure campaign by environmentalists of a variety of interests, with the support of conservation agencies. The issue of phosphorous pollution of public waters was exhaustively studied during the last legislative interim by the Legislative Council, then under Republican control.

Refugees Flown to Interior of India

By DENNIS NEELD

AGARTALA, India (AP) — Beyond the line of trees that marks the border, smoke from a burning village smudged the skyline. Refugees from East Pakistan, weighed down by babies and bundles, still straggled into India.

Some likely will find their way on the American airlift that is flying 1,000 refugees a day from Agartala to new camps in the neighboring Indian State of Assam.

The airlift has been keeping up with the refugee influx in recent days. But on the day before it began, 20,000 East Pakistanis flooded a cross the border to almost cancel out the benefits of a U.S. operation that is scheduled to last for one month only.

The refugees, most of them dirt-poor peasant farmers, fled with what they could carry before a new sweep by Pakistani troops through several border villages.

The operation took place only a few miles from where the refugees are being loaded aboard four C130s of the 779th Tactical Airlift Squadron from Pope Air Force Base, in North Carolina.

"We are having bullets come into our villages," said a white-bearded farmer through an interpreter. "We heard that the Punjabi soldiers were coming. It was the first time they had come.

"Everyone from the village moved close to the border. We hoped we could go back if the soldiers went away. But next day a shell burst in the fields nearby and we came to India."

He said two people from the neighborhood were shot and the village, Sultanpur, was burned.

Carrying Table

With his family, all of them carrying bundles, he was making his way to an Indian refugee camp still several miles along a track snaking through bush and tea gardens. Like his neighbors, they had brought all they could carry. One family struggled on beneath a huge dining room table.

Other refugees, too weary to go further, were camping in the bush. They were protected from the monsoon rain that broke that night only by flimsy shelters of palm leaves and branches.

They will swell a refugee population in this remote State of Tripura already exceeding one million. The normal population of Tripura is 1.5 million.

Palace Grounds

Refugees are sprawled over the covered sidewalks of Agartala and hundreds have moved into the grounds of the orante but crumbling palace of the absent Maharaja of Tripura. Their cooking pots steam on the magnificent marble steps and their sleeping mats are spread beneath white-columned summer houses.

Government officials reported Tripura was drawing on food stocks put by for the monsoon season. They are being replenished but the supply problem is formidable. Agartala is 135 miles from a narrow gauge railhead and during the rainy season the single road leading to it is often washed out.

The U.S. Air Force planes flying out refugees are flying in rice to help solve the food problem.

Man Shoots Tornado As It 'Reproduces'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Ernest Baker, 79, remembers the day, May 20, 1920, when a tornado hovered over the city and then split in half to damage surrounding areas.

"I was on the third floor of the then Land Office Building" said Baker. "Since my desk faced the north, I just picked up my camera and took the picture.

"I sent the picture to The New York Times and they published it on their front page."

County Votes to Retain Northeastern Membership

With most of the support coming from Appleton supervisors, the Outagamie County Board Tuesday night voted to remain a member of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

While it drew a simple majority vote, the motion to discontinue membership, proposed by Supv. Edward Spierings of Little Chute, failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote. The final count was 23-21, with a "present" vote going to the majority side. Three supervisors were absent.

Fourteen Appleton supervisors were among the 21 who voted to stay with Northeastern. Voting on the controversial issue came after 1½ hours of discussion that included pleas for Northeastern support by Appleton Mayor George Buckley and Appleton attorney Gordon Myse.

Buckley told supervisors, "The future welfare of Appleton and Outagamie County hinges on your decision tonight." He urged the county to back a merger of the area's two planning agencies by remaining with Northeastern.

Harold Miller

Buckley, who had to have unanimous consent to address the board, theorized that the "problem of two planning agencies" in the area is nearly resolved because Appleton will soon pull out of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG).

"COG is almost finished," Buckley remarked. "I think it's a case of goodnight Lucille."

He reminded supervisors that three major Fox Valley cities and two towns have dropped out of COG. While Appleton's share of the COG budget had been about 29 per cent, Buckley outlined, it will jump to 59.5 per cent as a result of the dropouts.

A move to get Appleton out of COG lost by a 9-9 vote on the City Council floor last week.

"When the nine aldermen who voted against pulling out of COG find out we'll pay 59.5 per cent . . . they'll switch," Buckley predicted. He added, "I could not let Appleton remain in COG and assume a burden like this."

Eugene Kloes

And, he remarked, "When Appleton withdraws from COG . . . it will do so with no intention of re-entering. When we leave COG, it will be for good."

Buckley said Appleton should then contract with Northeastern for whatever planning services are desired. He said the dollar cost of planning will be reduced through a merger because municipalities would have to support only one unit. Northeastern would be able to assimilate "some of the quality people of COG," he explained.

"Appleton will be counting on you to stay with Northeastern," Buckley admonished supervisors. "Don't leave us out in the cold."

Ald. Judith Winzenz of Appleton's 12th Ward refuted some statements made by Buckley. She explained that while Appleton supported Outagamie's withdrawal from Northeastern as an endorsement of the creation of a three-county planning commission, there was no intention by Appleton to join Northeastern.

Some supervisors who backed the Northeastern dropout argued that if the decision should turn out to be unwise, the county still had six months to change its mind. Withdrawal from either of the two planning agencies necessitates a six-month notice.

G. Allen Bubolz

Myse argued, however, that getting back into Northeastern could prove difficult. "It's not a revolving door by which you are free to enter and leave, willy-nilly, any way you wish," he cautioned.

He urged supervisors to consider three prospects when attempting to re-enter Northeastern: a petition must be approved by the governor, an action Myse described as "a complex matter"; there is the danger "there will be nothing left to serve you when you want to come back," and there is the matter of staff, facilities and budget.

Myse urged the board to at least make a thorough study before taking action on withdrawal.

Spierings, who besides being on the county board is a member of COG's governing board, had moved for the Northeastern withdrawal to allow the reorganization necessary to have a merger of the planning agencies.

The federal government has stated there must be only one

North Side Asks City's Help to Retain Parking

Following a session Tuesday with seven aldermen, the North Side Advancement Association agreed to form a committee to prepare development and traffic plans for the city's northern commercial sections.

The association asked the aldermen to the session primarily to protest a proposal to remove parking from Wisconsin Avenue by 1975. Aldermen told the businessmen not only to register their objections but to offer alternatives.

The free-wheeling discussion quickly widened to air long-standing gripes and frustrations including unsuccessful attempts to move State 96 from Wisconsin Avenue to Northland Avenue.

Some of the businessmen also took advantage of the captive audience of aldermen to complain about the north side's treatment by city hall over the years.

"They're building parking ramps downtown and they're not spending any money on the north side," said one businessman. Another told the aldermen that their predecessors on the council also had promised to cooperate, but he said he hopes the present aldermen would do a better job of keeping their promises.

The plan to remove parking from Wisconsin Avenue is one of numerous proposals by City Traffic Engineer Walter Johnson in the city's TOPICS program for improving local traffic facilities.

The plan is, with the exception of a few top-priority elements, in its initial stages and has still to be approved both by local and state officials. The TOPICS program provides up to 50 per cent federal financing for local projects.

The businessmen were told that the plan easily can be changed and they were advised to work with Johnson and Planning Director Jack Hetu to come up with alternatives.

James Klinkert, association president, said he will appoint a committee to work with city and state officials to seek solutions.

Klinkert told the meeting at the Integrity Mutuals Insurance Co. building that Johnson is recommending removal of parking from Wisconsin between Mason and Meade streets during 1974 and from Mason to Badger Avenue and Meade to Wayne Street in 1975.

The businessmen objected that on-street parking is a necessity for many whose customers spend only short times in their establishments. Service businesses such as laundries and dry-cleaners were mentioned as examples.

Some suggestions included moving State 96 to eliminate through-traffic, providing off-street parking at city expense in return for removing on-street stalls, or shifting traffic to other streets in a pattern similar to the downtown circulation pattern around College Avenue.

Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th) told the group to come up with its own alternatives to augment its opposition to parking removal. Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) went a step farther, saying the group should demand to have parking restored on the full length of the avenue.

Several businessmen said the city has "nibbled away" parking, a few stalls at a time, over a period of years. They blamed city traffic and police officials.

Kalata said in addition to demanding restoration of all on-street parking, the group needs an over-all development plan for the north side commercial areas.

The group agreed to resurrect a plan presented several years ago by the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) but never acted upon. The association hopes to use the old plan as the foundation for a new one, Klinkert said afterward.

Ald. Orville Strutz (17th) said the City Council "should do all in our power" to move State 96 to Northland Avenue. While several businessmen were enthusiastic, other participants were skeptical, saying the proposal has been all but buried by state officials after previous attempts at having the highway moved.

The theory is to "get the state to get off Wisconsin Avenue, and then we can work with the city," as one businessman put it.

Other aldermen present included William Errington (15th), who brought Johnson's parking removal plan to the association's attention, and Delmar Schwaller (16th), Orval Polzin (3rd) and Thomas Mulvihill (14th). The group made up a majority of the 11 aldermen who represent portions of Wisconsin Avenue. One participant pointed out that the 11 north side representatives, in turn, make up a majority of the 20-member council.

Outagamie Adopts Nutrition Program

Not more food, but better food will go on the kitchen tables in the homes of low income Outagamie County families under provisions of a program approved Tuesday night by the county board.

Supervisors, by a 36-6 vote, approved appropriating $3,500 as the county's remainder of the year share of funding for the "expanded foods and nutrition program" which is under the jurisdiction of the University Extension Division.

Voting against the appropriation, which will come out of wage and salary funds, were Supvs. Joseph DeBruin, George Driessen, William Friend, Sylvester Lenz, Herman Ripp, Rudolph Spreeman and Robert Wevenberg

Ripp, who failed in his bid to have action postponed indefinitely pending a study, commented, "This looks like another layer of fat in government."

Ripp, an Appleton supervisor, has been working on a plan whereby low income families in the county would start receiving food stamps instead of surplus food commodities. Ripp is a member of the county Board of Social Services.

Rural Support

Support for the better nutrition plan, endorsed by the board's agricultural and conservation committee, came primarily from rural supervisors.

Supv. Henry Breiting of rural New London said the county has been picked by the state to take part in the program and ". . .if we don't take it, it will go to some other county." Breiting said Brown County has taken part in the plan for about three years and gave it a good recommendation.

Supv. Norman Austin of Oneida saw the nutrition plan as a method by which public assistance medical costs can be cut because people will eat better and be healthier.

"A large number of people receive inadequate nutrition because they don't know how to prepare food," commented Supv. Herbert Helble of Appleton.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton said that while he was not opposed to the program, requests for funds should have been made at budget time

Good Nutrition

Alice Schultz, extension home economist for the county, said the program, which will be under her direction, is aimed at "educating people in good nutrition and better health." She estimated the county's share of the program cost next year at $8,000.

Mrs. Schultz said about 18 persons, most of them low income individuals, will be employed to work directly with county residents in preparing more appropriate food plans. She said the goal is to work with about 450 families per year.

Although most will be low income families, Mrs. Schultz stressed that they will not necessarily be welfare recipients.

The program, new to Outagamie County, is expected to get started about Aug. 1, Mrs. Schultz said. Among persons who will have to be hired are 15 assistants, two staff trainees and one extension home economist.

In other action Tuesday night, the county board:

— Approved sending seven of its members to the National Association of Counties Convention in Milwaukee next month.

Special Committee

— Authorized Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt to appoint a special three-member committee to work with the offices of county executive and county hospital superintendent and citizen groups in studying and reporting on the needs of the county's mentally handicapped. The study is an outgrowth of a position paper on the subject recently released by County Executive Alvin Woehler.

— Authorized DeLaHunt to appoint another three-member committee to work with a citizens' group on updating the Shepard Blue Ribbon Report which provides primarily for consolidation of county institutions.

— Unanimously opposed a State Assembly bill that would hike court cost to finance salary raises for clerks of court. The amounts of the raises would be based on the population of the county. In Outagamie's case, the clerk of court would receive $15,744, a raise of about $4,000. Copies of the resolution opposing the pay hikes will be sent to state legislators from the area.

— Unanimously supported a State Senate proposal to abolish the long-standing necessity in Wisconsin of having to hire an attorney to terminate joint tenancies.

Council to Meet Monday on COG

Mayor George Buckley today called a special meeting of the Appleton City Council for 4 p.m. Monday to consider withdrawing the city from membership in the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG).

Buckley announced earlier he will propose that the city leave COG and hire the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission to perform regional planning services on a contract basis.

The council recently failed on a 9-9 tie vote to pass a resolution to withdraw from COG. Withdrawal requires votes of 11 of the city's 20 aldermen.

Commission Again Denies Zone Change

The Appleton Plans Commission is again recommending denial of a local real estate investor's request to have property at South Oneida and Calumet Streets rezoned from residential to commercial use.

The commission reaffirmed its recommendation Monday concerning the request by William Falatick. The City Council will receive the recommendation next month. An identical recommendation was sent back to the commission, preventing council action last week.

Ald. Peter Beckley (10th), a number of whose constituents are neighbors of the Falatick property and opponents of the zoning change, asked the commission to deny the request after previously favoring it.

He added in a written request that Falatick should be allowed to renew the application during the coming 14 months, but also should present definite plans for the commercial use he intends for the property.

Neighbors who have opposed the zoning change would withdraw their opposition if Falatick submitted acceptable plans, the commission was told.

Falatick's property would form the northwest corner of South Oneida and Calumet Streets when Calumet is extended west from Oneida to Memorial Drive. He owns a sliver of the proposed right-of-way and has offered to sell the city the complete lot containing it, on the condition that he receive a 14-month option to buy back what is left after the street is built.

Planning Director Jack Hetu pointed out that a zoning request that has been denied cannot be renewed for a year, but under the 14-month option arrangement, that would still leave Falatick two months to submit plans and apply again for rezoning.

Olson Is Mum On Resignation

Outagamie County Airport Manager Charles Olson today declined to comment on a report that he intends to resign soon.

Talk of Olson's resignation circulated around the county board floor Tuesday night as supervisors were considering a resolution seeking a $9,000 payment to him for improvements he has made to county facilities he leases for his Appleton Beechcraft Corp.

County Executive Alvin E. Woehler last month asked for Olson's resignation. He told the board's airport committee that he was not considering Olson for appointment as port manager. He also said he was giving Olson the opportunity to resign before an appointment is made.

Woehler would say, for the record, Tuesday night, only that he expects to appoint an airport manager next month. The board will be informed of the appointment at its July 13 meeting.

Olson today said that any information concerning his rumored resignation "will have to come from the chairman of the airport committee."

Yearly Contract

Olson has had a yearly contract as part-time port manager which has been automatically renewable unless a 60-day written notice is given.

Woehler contends that since he has appointment powers, there has been no contract since Jan. 1.

The unanimous vote Tuesday night to pay Olson for improvements he made to county facilities was in no way related to the rumored resignation.

Olson had agreed already last fall if his job became full time, to divest himself of his interests in Appleton Beechcraft which was housed in a large T hangar he has rented from the county since May, 1967.

The lease agreement with the county provided that Appleton Beechcraft could develop sales offices, lounge and service parts facilities in the unused ends of the hangar at its own expense and thereafter consideration would be given by the county to amortize such improvements over a 30-year period at a depreciation rate of about 3⅓ per cent per year.

Improvements to Hanger

Olson has invested about $10,105 in improvements to the facility, according to airport committee officials. Most of the work was done in the past 18 months.

The county will resume control of the T hangar when Olson surrenders his lease July 31.

Discussions between the airport committee and Olson last fall resulted in the agreement that Olson should not be both airport manager and a fixed base operator. At that time, consideration was being given to make the airport manager's job full time, an action that, although approved by the board, has never been implemented. Olson serves as port manager on about a three-fourths time basis.

Woehler has opposed making the position full time.

Jahnke said today that one of the two offices Olson developed in the T hangar is now being rented to another party at $100 per month. He said there also is a prospect for rental of the second office, which is expected to bring more than $100 a month.

Olson's $9,000 will come from the airport trust fund, Jahnke said.

Lorge's Condition Is Satisfactory After Collision

FOND DU LAC — State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, is listed in satisfactory condition at St. Agnes Hospital, Fond du Lac, after injuries sustained in an early Tuesday morning collision on U.S. 41.

Lorge was taken to the hospital with possible broken ribs and lacerations. Lorge's wife said her husband called her after the accident and told her he had three cracked ribs.

The accident happened three miles north of Fond du Lac when a car driven by Thomas Lavey, 517 Maona Ave. tried to pass Lorge and they collided. Lorge's auto then slid into a utility pole on the west side of the highway.

Lavey and a passenger in his car received minor cuts and were advised to see a doctor.

Spokesmen for the Fond du Lac sheriffs department said today they were still investigating the incident and that Lorge would not make a statement to them. They said he wanted to handle the incident through his lawyer.

Dance Planned for Thyssen Family

NEW LONDON — A benefit dance will be held Sunday night at the Bean City Ballroom for the Jack Thyssen family, who lost their possessions in a fire on June 2.

The Thyssen farmhouse on Shaky Lake Road between New London and Dale was gutted in the blaze. The fire added to the family's troubles, because Thyssen, who had been injured, had only been back to work for three weeks when it happened.

His leg was crushed in a farm tractor accident in August, 1969, and since that time he has undergone an extensive series of operations and medical treatment.

The parents and five children aged 2 to 10 are living in a second-hand mobile home at the farm. They stayed in the barn for a short time after the fire. The old farmhouse will be torn down.

People Help

Mrs. Thyssen said Tuesday that "people had helped us out all along" after her husband's accident. Young people from Dale put on a supper in March to raise funds, and others the family hardly knew stopped out with gifts.

Since the fire, people have brought furniture, clothing, towels, bedding, some food and a refrigerator. The local chapter of the Red Cross gave everyone new shoes.

Mrs. Thyssen said, "It's been marvelous. I can't thank all the people who've helped out, and I'm sending out dozens of thank you cards."

The dance will run from 8 p.m. to midnight Sunday, with music by Elmer Kopitzke and the Midwest Polka Jamboree.

Fond du Lac Okays Closing Sunnyview

County Board Okays Winnebago Sanatorium Action

FOND DU LAC — The building committee of the Fond du Lac county board agreed Tuesday night to let Winnebago County handle the phase out of Sunnyview TB Sanatorium.

The Fond du Lac board earlier voted unanimously to go along with the Winnebago board's vote to end the institution Fond du Lac owns 51 per cent of it.

"The only requirement is that we keep them informed," said Supv. Alberta Goff, Oshkosh She is chairman of a subcommittee in charge of the phase out Other members are supervisors Hubert Sherman. Robert Skalmoski and Robert Putzer. corporation counsel Gerald Engeldinger and Donald Zboray, superintendent of the county institutions.

Mrs Goff is in the midst of working out details. Monday at a meeting of the committees involved an organizational chart and action plan for the phase out will be presented for approval There will also be letters, which, when approved, will be sent to employes, patients and patients' families.

Staffers' Jobs

"We want to give everyone assurance that they won't be thrown out tomorrow," Mrs Goff said. Every effort will be made to place the employes in the county system or to help them find civil service work elsewhere in the area.

The TB patients will go to the nearest sanatorium of their choice and the geriatric patients will be transfered to Pleasant Acres, under the rough out of the plan.

"Standards got higher and higher, making it more and more expensive for us to renovate. It puts building a new facility out of sight," said Mrs. Goff of the basic reason behind the decision to close the operation.

The oldest buildings, called a "dungeon" by Skalmoski at one time, were built in 1915. They make insurance inspectors quake and cancel policies. Hazards in ancient electrical wiring, exposed steam pipes, open stair wells coupled with no sprinkler system give bad dreams to everyone responsible for the welfare of the bedridden, chronic-care patients.

The geriatric part of Sunnyview took on the job of caring for many people who had declined in health until they required complete care. That role will now have to be filled by other nursing homes.

Renovation would have cost $255,000 a year ago. Building a new facility would now cost over $300,000.

Menasha City Hall Changes Hit Snag

MENASHA — At least two teams have lined up differently over possible city hall reorganization.

Both favor reorganization to relieve the overburdened clerk-comptroller under the present framework.

But one side, headed by Mayor James Adams, believes the city must go out and hire a new man, for a salary of $11,00 or more, to staff the new position of director of finance.

Fifth Ward Ald. Herbert Batley, who heads the other team, feels the new director of finance should be pulled from among present city hall employes.

These differences and others surfacing around the growing push for city hall reorganization were aired at a meeting of the finance committee, chaired by Batley, Tuesday night.

Neenah Plan

The reorganization move started last month, when Mayor James Adams presented aldermen with job classifications for directors of finance and administration as they are set up in Neenah, and asked that they react to them in the weeks ahead. Adams would like to see a similar reorganization in Menasha, primarily to relieve an overburdened clerk (the former clerk had just resigned when Adams made his proposal) and bring greater efficiency to city hall operations.

Batley, a conservative when it comes to money matters, wondered why the city should spend more on city hall administration when it already is spending more than Neenah.

More Than Neenah

He said figures show that Neenah has eight people working in direct administration. They are paid a total of $62,228. In Menasha, he said, 10 people are paid $69,590 for administration.

"We're already $7,000 above them," Batley said.

Adams, however, with the concurrence of some other aldermen, noted that the Menasha staff handles more duties than the Neenah one does. For example, administrative work for the recreation and health programs are done by the Menasha city hall staff, while Neenah has separate staffs for each.

When they left the meeting Tuesday, Adams, members of the finance committee and a few other aldermen present seemed agreed on a structure that would create the new positions of director of finance and administration, and eliminate the present position of clerk-comptroller.

The director of administration would be responsible for taking minutes at meetings, handling city correspondence and other administrative duties. Under him, there would be three clerk-stenographers.

The director of administration would also play a key role in the city's relations with its personnel.

The director of finance would combine both budgetary and treasury duties under his office. He would work with the council at budget time to piece together the government's most important single document and would also perform the functions now handled by the treasurer.

Under him would be, according to the tentative plan now being looked at, an assistant treasurer, a bookkeeper and payroll and accounting clerks.

The total number of city hall employes in such a system would be 10. The number allowed under the present setup is 10, although one that has left has not been replaced.

Batley, who said he recognizes the shortcomings of the present city hall setup, but he didn't want to have to spend more money in salaries on a new system if changes could be made in the present organization to make it more effective.

Some possibilities were discussed, such as giving the present deputy-clerk-comptroller the duties of the proposed finance director, thereby freeing the clerk for administrative tasks.

But after discussion of several variations, the group came back to the original plan proposed by Adams at the end of the meeting.

"I go along with the positions of director of finance and administration," Batley said today, "but I'm against going outside the organization to fill these two administrative posts."

Adams has proposed moving former deputy clerk and acting clerk David Volkman into the director of administration spot and going outside to find a new man for the finance post. Batley believes present city Treasurer W. W. Edwards could handle that job, although Edwards has not had any previous experience with budgets.

Batley also wondered what the effect would be of having Edwards, who now makes $11,200 as city treasurer, working as deputy treasurer under a finance director that would start out at $11,000.

The finance committee will meet before the next common council meeting to come up with a recommendation on the reorganization. Batley said it will be ready for action at the next meeting.

Adams has asked that aldermen act soon, so the reorganization can be made and any new men hired and trained before this year's budget process begins.

Bartenders Out of Work

MENASHA — A check of outstanding city bartender and tavern licenses shows 30 out of a possible 32 for the establishments but only 147 out of 325 for the drink servers.

What that means is that 147 out of an estimated 325 bartenders have reapplied for annual operator's licenses that they must have after July 1 if they want to tend bar, while only 30 out of a state-allowed 32 tavern licenses have been issued by the city.

This means two things:

—Bartenders who have not reapplied for the $5 operator's license will not be able to work between July 1 and 6, when the city council will meet again to approve applications

147 Licenses

A total of 147 licenses were approved at the council's last meeting — June 15. Aldermen don't meet again until July 6.

In previous years, this has sometimes caused problems. For two years in a row, local police have had to arrest persons tending bar without a license after July 1.

The reason for the delay among bartenders is usually credited to the fact that although their old licenses run through the end of June, the common council holds its final meeting long before that, and bartenders must have their applications in time for the police department to process them and the council to approve them before July 1.

Police said they will be checking again this year to see that no one is tending bar illegally between July 1 and 6. Similar enforcement procedures by the department in the past has incurred the wrath of some aldermen who feel the city can grant an unofficial grace period of the few days for the tardy bartenders.

But police argue that the council can pass an ordinance if it wants to change things

1 to 50 Ratio

Incidentally, the estimated 325 operator's license holders in the city figures out to about one bartender for every 50 city residents

—The fact that the city has issued only 30 of its allowed 32 tavern licenses is partly the result of an effort by present members of the health and welfare committee to cut back on the number of drinking spots in the city.

Health and welfare committee chairman Felix Ropella, Jr., says that "any new applicant (for a tavern license)" will be in tough shape for getting a tavern license downtown as long as I'm chairman of this committee."

There are 17 taverns between the Tayco and Racine streets bridges.

"That's got to be a record for a municipality this size," Ropella believes.

Ropella said he would like to see the total number of taverns cut from the present 30 to 20, and the number of downtown hangouts trimmed from 17 to "about half a dozen."

But the only way he sees of doing it is to deny new tavern license applications. Tavern owners who re-apply for new licenses each year cannot be turned down without "just cause," but new applications can be turned down by city officials for no reason at all.

Two new applications made this year were turned down.

State law allows a maximum of one tavern for every 500 city residents. In the past, some city officials have thought of raising this limit locally to something like one for every 759 people as a way of cutting back on the number of taverns.

Some officials also took to lingering downtown redevelopment efforts as another possible way of eventually eliminating some of the bars they feel shouldn't be around. They hope that if and when new downtown tenants move in, the bars will be forced to move out.

Steiger Lauds Welfare Reform

WASHINGTON — Cong. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, must have been happy with the House action Tuesday approving a new national welfare system and Social Security increases.

"Considered together, the welfare reform package, the family assistance programs, the Social Security increases and the Medicare amendments," the bill "has been called the single most important piece of social legislation to be considered by Congress in decades," Steiger said in a report prepared prior to the vote. "I agree, and I hope that Congress will move promptly to enact this bill."

The House voted, 288 to 132, to do so Tuesday. The bill now goes to the Senate, where its fate is uncertain.

Here are provisions of the bill outlined by Steiger:

—A five per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits. Minimum benefits would jump from $70.40 to $74 per month, average retirees benefits would increase from $133 to $141 per month and additional benefits would be provided for persons 72 and over.

The increases become effective June, 1972.

Widow Benefits

—Social Security benefits for a widow or widower equal to 100 per cent of the amount a deceased spouse would have received if still alive, which is up from the present 82.5 per cent.

—Increase the amount of money a beneficiary can earn before deductions are begun on Social Security benefits. A beneficiary under 72 can earn up to $2,000 per year before his benefits are reduced. The present limit is $1,680.

—The wage base for the payroll tax to support Social Security will be raised from the present $7,800 to $10,200 on Jan. 1, 1972, while tax rates will increase at the same time from 5.2 to 5.4 per cent The maximum tax payable by any employe, which would be matched by the employer, would go from $405.60 to $550.80.

—A new assistance program for needy aged, blind and disabled persons, financed and administered entirely by the federal government.

Some $82 million in aid payments for persons under the program will be shifted from state and local governments to the federal government.

—Medicare protection would be extended to some 1.5 million disabled persons "if they have been entitled to disability benefits under either the Social Security or railroad retirement program for at least two years," Steiger said.

The bill, which had the strong support of the Nixon administration, would also create a new national welfare system designed to help people get jobs. It would guarantee minimum payments of $2,400 for a family of four, for example, that would replace present state-federal-local relief efforts now under programs like Aid to Families with Dependent Children. (AFDC).

This Young Bachelor Really Has It Made

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of Michael Salem's customers are models, actresses, secretaries and waitresses.

When asked if he dates any of them, he replied:

"It's bad for business to slight any of your customers."

Salem is a 29-year-old bachelor with a dress shop.

Mobile Home Parks Supported in Neenah

NEENAH — An ordinance permitting mobile home parks was recommended to the city council by the plan commission Tuesday.

The commission decided to recommend adoption of a model ordinance drafted by the Fox Valley Council of Governments. The commission move came after it had spent more than six months studying mobile home parks.

As proposed, the COG ordinance puts strict regulations on the development of mobile home parks including a minimum size of 20 acres with not more than six homes per acre and a minimum 3,500 square feet for each mobile home.

The plan commission's action came after the members decided it would be best to get some type of controlling legislation on the books before the city started getting requests.

Good Ordinance

City Atty. Duane Philis, who had been instructed to make any changes in the COG ordinance to fit Neenah's situation, said, "I've talked with the building inspector (Donald Christensen) and I think this is a good ordinance."

Although some commissioners felt some of the regulations published in the Municipality, the organ of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, should be incorporated into Neenah's code, Philis said, "I see no reason not to adopt the COG ordinance."

The city council has indicated a desire to have controls over mobile home parks, which are not allowed in the city under present zoning.

Paved Streets

If the COG ordinance is adopted, mobile home parks will be required to be hooked into city water and sewer lines, have paved 20 foot streets, street lighting, refuse pickup plus adequate recreational areas.

The ordinance requires 100 square feet of park land for each mobile home lot with a minimum of 2,500 square feet in each area. With 120 lots required in each park, the ordinance's regulations dictate that more than a half acre be designated for park use.

All utility service lines must be buried underground and only one television antenna is allowed with all mobile homes in the park being plugged in to the same antenna.

Longley Elected To Administrative Policy Committee

Lawrence Longley, Appleton, chairman of the Outagamie County Democratic Party, was elected to the state party's administrative committee during the state convention last weekend.

Longley was one of seven candidates elected to at-large posts on the state party policy-making body. Fifteen people were running.

Longley said he is believed to be the first administrative committee member from the 8th Congressional District in party history.

State Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, had been announced as a candidate for the post of national committeeman, but he withdrew prior to the balloting. Of the three remaining candidates, Donald Peterson of Eau Claire, unsuccessful candidate for the party's gubernatorial nomination last fall, won the post.

UCC Tackles Social Issues

Youth, oppression, social justice and cooperation all received attention from the delegates at the recent annual Wisconsin Conference, United Church of Christ (UCC) convention in Appleton.

The more than 600 delegates representing 290 churches in the state approved a $1.396 million budget It is about $5.000 lower than the past year's and is the first time in the 15-year conference history that it has dropped rather than increased.

The budget is divided as follows: $121,340 for the Wisconsin Conference; $400.000 for the Conference Appeal Fund to support seminaries, colleges, health and welfare institutions, camps and campus ministries; $85.000 for mission work (mostly experimental ministries within the state) and $567.000 for national and international UCC work

In other highlights:

÷ The youth caucus made two proposals, both of which were passed by the delegates They asked the conference to strongly recommend to its churches a change in the traditional timetable for confirmation. An individual, said the proposal, should be allowed to confess his confirmation at a time of his own choosing

They also asked local churches to give full responsibilities within the church, including voting powers, at the time of confirmation.

— The delegates passed a resolution to cooperate on some work with the Wisconsin Synod of the United Presbyterian Church. The resolution asked that the board of directors be authorized to engage in formal conversations with representatives of the Presbyterians to explore the possibilities of cooperation in mission work, and that a specific proposal be presented to the 10th annual meeting in June, 1972.

It was stressed that this resolution is not a proposal to have conversations leading to any type of merger — Passed a recommendation for passage by the General Synod (meeting Friday in Grand Rapids, Mich.) of a statement of the Council for Social Action of UCC dealing with involvement in Southern Africa.

It states that the Council strongly supports the recent World Council of Churches decision to provide grants for the humanitarian programs to the Southern Africa Liberation Movement.

In other business, the delegates elected a layman, Dr. Silas Farmer, Milwaukee, vice-moderator of the Conference. He will succeed the Rev. Carroll Olm, Whitewater, as moderator at next year's conference.

Farmer is a medical microbiologist and immunologist.

The UCC is a union of the former Congregational and Evangelical and Reformed Churches, which were united in 1957.

Neenah Studies High Rise Units

NEENAH — A special three-man committee will be appointed to study the how's, why's and wherefore's of creating enabling legislation for high rise apartment units in the city.

Mayor Roman V. Hauser too weeks ago asked the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) for recommendations on a zoning code addition to permit high rise developments.

David Wendtland, a COG planner, Tuesday suggested that Hauser appoint a committee to study it because "it is such a complex problem."

Hauser will appoint a panel comprised of the city building inspector, the new city planner, plus a representative from the Neenah Board of Realtors to work with Wendtland on the specifics of high rise zoning.

Speculation Boosts Commodity Trading

BY SYLVIA PORTER

How would you like to invest in 26,500 lb. of tomato paste or 25,000 lb. of iced broiled chickens or 90,000 feet of two-by-fours?

If you WOULD like to "invest" in such exotic products — via the buying and selling of commodity futures contracts — you would join hundreds of thousands of other Americans who are now actively speculating in a wide variety of commodities on the nation's 12 commodity exchanges.

For the commodity boom has now reached fantastic proportions:

Porter

Item: In fiscal 1970, which ended last June 30, the estimated dollar volume of commodity trading in the U.S. soared to an all-time high of $135.6 billion — topping the entire $103 billion securities trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange.

Item: Last year, 12,277,418 commodity contracts were traded in this country — vs. 8,951,759 just five years earlier.

Item: The official list of publicly-traded commodities has expanded to a record 38, including platinum, plywood, potatoes, cocoa, coffee, live cattle, silver coins soybean oil, bacon (known as "pork bellies"), eggs, orange juice. New commodities are constantly being added, with future possibilities covering fertilizers, mink, rice, paper, powdered milk, whiskey, plastics — even water and electric power.

As a sketch of how commodities are traded, let's say you want to buy a contract for 30,000 lb. of cocoa for delivery to you next spring. This is like going to an automobile dealer and making a commitment to buy a Ford car when next year's models arrive. As you might with the car, you make a "down payment" on your cocoa contract amounting to a few hundred dollars or about 10 per cent of the total value of the cocoa you have agreed to buy.

As spring approaches, you must decide whether to take your 30,000 lb. of cocoa and pay for the total shipment plus storage charges — or whether to sell the contract at a price which may be more or less than the amount for which the cocoa was originally selling. (Chances are you would take the latter course. Fewer than 3 per cent of commodity futures contracts traded today are ever actually delivered.)

Commissions you pay your broker for commodity trades are relatively small compared to those you pay for stock transactions. For most commodities, commissions are between $30 and $45 for a "round turn" — covering both purchase and sale of a contract.

There are three powerful forces behind the commodity boom:

— Prices of many industrial commodities are being spurred upward by world population growth and global inflation.

— This is a wildly speculative era and the small-time speculator is crowding into the commodities markets. According to authoritative estimates, the great majority of speculators today are amateurs, dabblers and small investors who have just recently learned how easily commodities can be traded.

— Huge profits can be made on tiny margins. If you are a successful speculator, you could multiply your down payment by 1,000 per cent within a matter of months. A mere penny price hike for a pound of sugar in the marketplace translates into a rise of more than $1,000 for a 112,000 lb. sugar futures contract.

But each of these forces works both ways — and in commodities, the odds are far more strong that you'll lose than win. And when you lose — as when you win — you easily can "lose big."

SO . . . DON'T jump into the complex commodities market without getting top-notch advice from a professional. DON'T fail if you are, no matter what the warnings, lured by the field to do plenty of homework on your own.

Surgeon Raps Unethical Doctors

By BILL STOCKTON
Associated Press Writer

ALHAMBRA, Calif (AP) — One night 18 months ago Dr Alex Gerber was telling his wife how shocked he was at what he deemed harmful and unethical practices among some California surgeons

"These things had just overwhelmed me," he recalls "It was just the needless loss of life which completely could have been prevented if doctors had practiced ethically and within bounds

"My wife said, 'Why the hell do you keep talking about these things Why don't you do something about them?' So I sat down that night and wrote down the outline for a book"

The result, the best-selling "The Gerber Report," now a month old

Gerber, a surgeon with impeccable credentials, severely criticizes general practitioners who legally can perform any surgery but who actually are qualified only for the simplest operations; he objects to excessive tonsilectomies and appendectomies; and criticizes GPs for attempting surgery in specialized areas such as the stomach thyroid and cancer of the breast—"beyond their competency"

Having medical societies police doctors, he says is like having a union investigate a union —"The name of the game is whitewash" And he takes militant young doctors and medical students to task for urging radical change in medical education, saying U S medical schools are the finest in the world

The welfare patient in a public hospital often receives better medical care than well-to-do patients in private hospitals, he says Too many people place too much emphasis on a television set in the room, and other amenities, paying no attention to the qualifications of medical personnel handling the case. he says He strongly favors birth control, including legal abortions

"What I'm trying to do is eliminate the bad medical practices, the unnecessary surgery, surgery by the untrained and unqualified," he told an interviewer, "I hope we can arouse the public to the inequities and abuses in medicine so that the decision makers in government will do something about it"

His book has already begun to make waves, at least among doctors, Gerber said

Some Pleased

"Those doctors who are practicing medicine as they should who are not doing things beyond their competency, are very pleased about the book

"I think there are some unqualified doctors who perhaps recognize themselves in the book. And I've heard some mutterings from other doctors who are unhappy about what I have to say because their attitude is we shouldn't wash our dirty linen in public—we should do all these things within the system

"But I've been working within the system for 20 years trying to correct abuses and I haven't been all that successful I've tried to discuss it with organized medicine and gotten no place"

Gerber, son of a steel construction contractor in Chicago, says he decided to become a doctor "simply because my mother wanted me to be a doctor."

He earned his medical degree at the University of Illinois during the depression years, selling shoes in a department store on weekends to help pay his way Because he didn't like some of the policies governing interns at Chicago's Cook County Hospital, Gerber spent his intern year at the Los Angeles County General Hospital Then followed his years as a surgical resident at the University of California at San Francisco

Besides being part of a group practice at a clinic in Alhambra, a Los Angeles suburb, Gerber is senior attending surgeon at the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center and holds faculty positions at the USC Medical School and California State College at Los Angeles.

A father of four, Gerber said he doubts that professional organizations, such as the American Medical Association or the American College of Surgeons, will officially chastise him for airing his feelings in public

"This isn't meant to be a muckraking book," he said "This is no expose I simply want to educate the American public to the point where they will insist that any patient walking into a hospital will have the same protection that a passenger has when he steps on an airliner."

Future of Capital's Metro in Doubt

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poking through snarled traffic on Washington's gouged and trenched Connecticut Avenue, a cab driver grumbled: "Years from now, I'll be taking tourists here to show them the ruins where the old subway was gonna be built."

Subway backers disagree. They say rapid transit trains could be whizzing passengers around the capital's inner city by December 1973.

Optimists foresee the day, probably in 1979, when a 98-mile Washington - Virginia-Maryland network carries one million subway riders daily on a crime- and graffiti-resistant system.

But a formidable array of financial, political and physical problems must be overcome:

—Metro, the subway system's title, already is scheduled to cost upwards of $2.98 billion, making it what officials say will be America's most expensive public works project. But Metro officials privately concede the total cost could reach $4 billion.

Politically Tied

—Release of much of Metro's construction funds is tied politically in Congress to the pace of Washington's lagging program of interstate highway and bridge construction.

—Subway construction nosily is chewing up part of the city's main commercial corridor, making a shambles of traffic patterns and driving away many patrons of excavation-area shops.

Complained a shoe store owner who said he sold only one pair of shoes in a three-day period: "Lord knows what I'm going to do if things don't change."

"They ain't seen nothing yet," said a Metro official. So far only 500 feet of tunnel has been dug in the downtown area with miles yet to come.

Subway trains will run underground in downtown Washington, but glide on surface tracks in outlying Maryland and Virginia suburbs.

3 Areas

The two states and the District of Columbia make up the Metropolitan Area Transit Authority which operates Metro and whose officials have been on a financial and political tightrope trying to keep construction going.

Money problems delayed groundbreaking for the system 14 months before soil finally was turned two years ago. Roadblocks in getting federal funds now are holding back awarding of construction contracts while inflation pushes up labor and material costs.

Tightly gripping much of Metro's construction money is Rep. William H. Natcher, D-Ky., chairman of the House subcommittee that handles Washington's budget.

Natcher consistently has opposed Metro appropriations until work is advanced on the District's interstate highway and bridge construction.

Observers Say Natcher believes the power of Congress is threatened by setting a precedent for other areas if he releases Metro funds and the district does not carry through on interstate projects.

Matching Funds

Natcher refused to release $34.2 million of district budget funds earmarked as the city's share of Metro's financing this fiscal year. This, in turn, tied up $68.4 million in federal matching funds.

In 1969, President Nixon signed legislation authorizing $1.1 billion over 10 years as the federal government's share of Metro. The district, Maryland and Virginia agreed to put up about $573 million altogether. The balance, about $880 million, was to be financed by bonds payable from Metro revenues. At that time, Metro's total cost was estimated at $2.5 billion.

By the end of fiscal 1971-72, Maryland and Virginia will put $114 million into Metro and thus free $229 million in federal matching funds.

But a few suburban leaders fear that Metro's money crisis will halt tracks short of their own areas.

"I can't see why they're nervous about it," a Metro official said. "We contracted with them to build a 98-mile system and we'll do it."

First Section

When, however, is another matter. The same official concedes if the delayed $102.6 million is not released until after Congress' month-long summer recess this August, the first section of Metro in downtown Washington won't be completed until February of 1974, or later.

"There'll be a tunnel but no tracks nor cars nor automatic train controls," he said.

Drawing board designs and mock-ups are impressive.

Air-conditioned cars will have wide, bronze-tinted windows, padded seating, carpeted floors and six double doors permitting easy passenger movement in and out. Instead of New York-style ceiling straps, passengers can hold onto belt-level handles on the back of seals. Cars will seat 81 persons with aisle room for 94 others.

Top speed will be 75 miles per hour and average speed 35 mph between short distance terminals downtown. Trains will operate 5 a.m. to 1 a.m. daily.

A passenger can board a Capitol Hill subway and get off at the closest stop to the White House in six minutes.

One highly vocal critic of Metro, O. Roy Chalk, president and principal stockholder of the District bus company, believes that Metro will become an underground pit of crime.

"In New York, the crime is simply beyond belief," said Chalk who could face a financial loss when Metro arrives. "It is going to be here in Washington as it's now in New York."

Metro authorities dispute that notion, claiming the system has planned built-in crime deterrents such as bright lighting in all subsurface terminals that will be free of hidden passageways and pillars where culprits can lurk.

They say also the temptation to scrawl gaffiti on Metro walls will be removed by waist-high concrete railing separating platform walls from pencil-wielding passengers.

2 AHS-E Teachers Are NEA Delegates

Two Appleton High School-East teachers have been selected as representatives of the Wisconsin Education Association to the National Education Convention, beginning Sunday, in Detroit.

Miss Judy Boeder and Miss Karla Kiesow will be among 43 state educators to attend the convention.

About 7,000 educators from throughout the U.S. are expected to attend.

Law Broadens Unemployment Compensation

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey signed a bill Tuesday providing wider unemployment compensation benefits to state workers.

The new law brings Wisconsin in line with federal standards established by the employment security amendments of 1970. It extends benefits to employes of small firms and nonprofit organizations, university teachers, school year employes and U.S. citizens abroad.

Workers in training and persons who have quit their jobs gain eligibility under the Senate bill, which also broadens benefits during periods of high unemployment.

The governor also signed an Assembly bill authorizing wardens and superintendents of county penal institutions to take inmates off institution grounds for rehabilitative and educational activities.

Union Shop Measure Legal, Warren Claims

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An Assembly-passed bill, now in the Senate, to ease requirements for a union shop probably would be legal, Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said in an opinion Tuesday.

The bill would allow employers to enter into a union shop agreement if a majority of employes approved the bargaining unit and the unit was certified by the State Employment Relations Commission.

Currently, a two-thirds majority of employers is needed to approve a union shop agreement.

In Suburban Boston

Post Corp. to Buy Eight Newspapers

Post Corporation today announced it has agreed to acquire eight community newspapers serving a group of Boston suburbs

The newspapers are published by Transcript Press, Inc, Dedham, Mass, which Post will buy for $1.3 million in a cash transaction One of the principal sellers, Frank W. Massey, will stay with Transcript Press as general manager.

Seven of the papers are weeklies while one is published twice a week. Together they have a paid circulation of over 50,000. In addition, one of the papers has some free circulation.

The 11 communities served by the group have populations totaling more than 400,000. and are located southwest of Boston Most are in Norfolk County of which Dedham is the county seat

Central Plant

The papers are the Dedham Transcript, Newton Graphic, Needham Chronicle, Westwood Press, Norwood Messenger, West Roxbury Transcript, Parkway Transcript and Norfolk County Press. The oldest, the Dedham Transcript, was founded in 1870 while the newest, the Westwood Press, was established in 1952

All eight newspapers are printed at a central plant located in Dedham Much of the advertising and some of the editorial features appear in several of the papers—sometimes all eight.

Post officials said they plan no changes in personnel, business or editorial policies.

The transaction was negotiated by George Romano, associate of Vincent J Manno, New York media brokers

State Officials Named in Action By Chicago Firm

JEFFERSON, Wis. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren and Roger L. Heironimous, state banking commissioner, were named in a Jefferson County circuit court action filed Tuesday by Aldens, Inc., Chicago mail order firm.

The firm, an Illinois corporation, seeks a declaratory judgment that its revolving charge accounts plan, agreements and transactions between the plaintiffs and its Wisconsin mail order customers, are not governed by Wisconsin interest rate laws.

The statutes in question involve the legal rate of interest which may be charged in Wisconsin.

Attorneys for Aldens said the firm had begun an action last February in federal court, but was told to take the case to a circuit court in Wisconsin.

$210,000 Is Approved for Youth Summer Job Program

Funds totaling $210,000 for the regional Neighborhood Youth Corps program, which is providing jobs for 505 high schoolers, have been approved by the U. S Department of Labor, Manpower Administration.

The original amount allocated to the area program included only 102 summer job slots for economically disadvantaged students in Outagamie, Waupaca, Waushara, Winnebago, Calumet, Fond du Lac, Green Lake and Marquette counties.

Originally, the program was begun in Appleton, which has provided part-time summer and school year work since December, 1966.

According to Norman Johnson, project director, the youths also receive counseling, a part of the funding requirement.

"One of the objectives of the project is to provide employment opportunities for those who might drop out of school. We have to give the youths not only the chance to earn money but also try to keep them from dropping out. That's why counseling is necessary," Johnson explained.

Counseling is being done by the Fond du Lac County Community Action Program, as well as the Wisconsin State Employment Office counselors in Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah-Menasha, Appleton, and in the Project office at Appleton High School-West.

Students also have the opportunity to participate in remedial education programs when available in their home communities, Johnson said.

A study of past youth corps workers indicates that the program has been successful, Johnson said Data gathered from the Appleton program shows that the dropout rate of youths employed by the program was substantially lower than the general high school population.

"Many of the youths have gone on to regular full-time jobs. We even have a National Merit Scholar finalist, now enrolled at a college," Johnson pointed out.

Under the program, the youths work in public agencies, such as schools, the police departments, and libraries.

State's Army Reserve Units Are Training

More than 2,500 Wisconsinmen are wearing the Army green this week and next as Wisconsin's 84th Army Reserve Training Division undertakes active training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. and Fort Sill, Okla.

Each year the division assumes command and operation of a regular Army division with the responsibility of training more than 1,100 recruits. The division's mission is to train newly enlisted and inducted basic trainees and to conduct advanced specialist training for soldiers in their second eight-week phase of initial training.

This year more than 1,900 of the division's personnel are training at Fort Leonard Wood under the command of Maj Gen. Herbert R. Hackbarth of Rubicon, Wis. Some 400 more men are performing artillery training at Fort Sill. Later during the summer, other Wisconsin reservists will be training at Fort Polk, La., Fort Knox, Ky. and Camp Ripley, Minn.

The men in the 84th Division come from all walks of life and from all over Wisconsin. Mechanics, factory workers, salesmen, office managers, lawyers, doctors and many other careers are represented. While on active training, the men perform in military roles ranging from drill sergeants to troop commanders.

Units in the 84th Division are headquarterd in Beaver Dam, Racine, Appleton, Sheboygan, Menasha, Fond du Lac, Madison, Kewaunee, Oshkosh and Milwaukee. The 84th is Wisconsin's only Army Reserve division.

planning agency for the Fox Valley metropolitan area.

Discussion among supervisors was quite brief Tuesday, although the planning matter had been given a good airing at the first half of the June board meeting two weeks ago. Tuesday's night's session was the final half of an adjourned meeting.

Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton urged the board to "be a leader and stay with Northeastern." He saw it as the most economical move.

He was supported by Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton, who two weeks ago, wanted the county out of Northeastern.

Supv Delmar Schmeichel of the Town of Center warned that the only way to effect a planning merger was to withdraw from Northeastern.

Before the vote was taken, County Executive Alvin E. Woehler read the supervisors his position paper on the planning issue. He proposed, that if the county pulls out of Northeastern, attempts should be made to form a single planning agency consisting of no less than three, or more than eight Wolf River watershed counties.

The planning council, comprised of elected and citizen representatives, would provide contractural services to five northern counties — Florence, Forest, Langlade, Menominee and Shawano — which now are full members of Northeastern.

The commission would have no taxing authority. Each member county, at its option, could employ its own planners.

Woehler told a reporter, after the county voted to stay with Northeastern, that his plan was not drafted in vain because it may have helped the county "move off dead center" in the planning dilemma.

Woehler said the dilemma has "put the taxpayers in a very frustrated position," and he notified supervisors it was their responsibility to bring about a solution.

In the audience Tuesday night was Orrin King, chairman of the Winnebago County Board, which last week failed by two votes to pass a resolution freeing the county from Northeastern membership. Another vote is expected next week. King told a reporter that, despite Outagamie's action Tuesday, he still thinks Winnebago will vote to withdraw.

Charles Hervey, Northeastern director, said his agency will continue to provide uninterrupted services and will continue to pursue a merger with COG.

How They Voted:

For withdrawal: Supvs. Marvin Babbitt, Joseph DeBruin, John Dietz, Kenneth Gibson, Richard Jahnke, Merritt Kavanaugh, Theodore Kemps, Kurt Koletzke, Alfred Krause, George Kroes, Sylvester Lenz, Harold Miller, William Miller, Carl Runte, Delmar Schmeichel, George Schoeder, Edward Spierings, Bernard Tillman, Matt Verfurth, Robert Weyenberg, Daniel Williams and Russell De LaHunt. Total — 22.

Against Withdrawal: Supvs. Norman Austin, Henry Breiting, G. Allen Bubolz, George Driessen, William Friend, Irving Grunwaldt, Herbert Helble, Theodore Jens, Nick Karras, Joseph Kasparek, Eugene Kloes, Paul Kostka, Fred Rehfeldt, Herman Ripp, John Schreiter, Rose Schroeder, Rudolph Spreeman, Barbara Steger, R. Clayton Van Dyke, Thomas Woods and Charles Wussow. Total 21.

Present: L. O. Woodard.

Absent: Ervin Conradt, Paul Huseby and Gene Retzlaff.

Support Sought For Prevention Of Alcoholism

Citizens, Outagamie Hospital to Apply For Staffing Grant

The Citizens' Alcoholism Services, Inc., and the Outagamie County Hospital plan to apply for a staffing grant from the federal government to support a comprehensive community approach to alcoholism prevention.

The grant will be applied for under the 1968 Community Mental Health Amendment which provides federal funding to treatment centers in Outagamie and Calumet counties.

All agencies serving alcoholics and local governmental bodies must be involved in the program before the grant is given.

Earl Lorenz, director of the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program at the county hospital, Tuesday told community representatives that eight or 10 agencies will be needed to start the initial drive for total community participation in the program.

The purpose of this nuclear group would be to contact other community organizations to participate in the program. Lorenz said the general community interest must be aroused.

Representatives at the meeting agreed to investigate existing programs and to determine the present and future needs of the community in the field of alcoholism treatment.

After the research, a description of responsibility of authority between new and existing agencies will be made and an evaluation of the agencies will be made to determine their needs.

Support will be sought from the Outagamie County Board to continue the program after federal funding no longer is available.

The initial program will be funded jointly by county and federal governments.

Professional staff members will be working with the families of patients and getting them involved in the cure. Persons involved in the project view this as an important aspect of the program.

Social workers also will follow through with investigation of the family. Interested persons in the community will be involved in the out-patient treatment to shorten hospitalization time.

Michael Krueger, reprsenting the Motor Vehicle Department, said Sheboygan and Marathon counties already have a program of this type and are from the community.

Oshkosh Youth to Go to Boys Nation

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jon Willman of Manitowoc and Alan Deda of Oshkosh have been selected to represent Wisconsin at Boys Nation, July 23-30, sponsored by the American Legion, it was announced today.

Deda was elected attorney general at the 1971 Badger Boys State.

John Storek of Mayville was named first alternate to the national convention and Cameron Cook of Mt. Horeb, lieutenant governor at Boys State, was named second alternate.

Minicoli Cauliflower Booms in Great Britain

LONDON (AP) — A cauliflower grown for supermarket sales is expected to spread over 1,000 acres in Britain this year.

Courts

Procuring alcohol for a 15-year old youth cost two Appleton youths $100 each and court costs.

Scott W. Miles, 18, 1524 E Tracy St., and Douglas Newlin, 19, 1230 E. Walden Ave., each pleaded guilty of the charge before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer Tuesday afternoon.

The incident took place June 10, when Miles obtained a quart of Vodka for the three.

Restitution of $39.70 was ordered and a fine of $25 and costs imposed following a guilty plea by Ronald Kutzleb, to a worthless check charge, in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, Tuesday. Kutzleb cashed three bad checks in a total amount of $39.70. The 29 year old man lives at route 4, Appleton.

Joan M. Cummings, 56, 514 Hewitt St., Neenah, entered a plea of innocent to a shoplifting charge in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, Tuesday. Mrs. Cummings is charged with taking about $20 worth of jewelry and stationary from Treasure Island, June 17. Her case was continued until July 2.

Darlene Fulcer, 18, 519 E. Maple St., Appleton, had her case continued until 3:30 p.m. Friday so that she could decide if she wants a lawyer.

Miss Fulcer appeared before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, Tuesday, on shoplifting charges. She is charged with taking $2.91 in merchandise from H. C. Prange Co.

Donald D. Smith, 23, 529½ S. Mueller St., Appleton, was ordered back in court at 3:30 p.m. Friday, on a charge of possessing fire works.

Smith appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, Tuesday, and was granted a continuance for the purpose of determining if he wanted to retain a lawyer.

Charges against Smith were brought when a county patrolman observed fireworks in his auto. He was arrested outside a W. College Avenue business on June 16.

Richard Dannford, 36, route 1, Bear Creek, was fined $25 in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, Tuesday for public intoxication.

He was found asleep in his auto, along State 54, near Seymour early Tuesday morning.

Dannford could not tell the policemen who woke him where he was, what time it was, or what day it was. He also did not realize that he had his eight year old son sleeping in the rear seat of the auto.

Loitering in a 21 year old bar brought a fine of $25 and costs to Robert Weber, 19, 1818 W. Owaissa St., Appleton. He was arrested at Jim's Place, after entering and asking to be served. Weber appeared before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, Tuesday.

Dennis Wenz, 19, 960 Eighth St., Menasha, told Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, that he had "stepped hard" on a beer bottle and broke it, when he appeared on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Wenz was at the Black Creek Homecoming at the time the "stepping" took place. He was fined $50 and costs, after entering a guilty plea.

LITTLE CHUTE — William Weyenberg, 24, 208 Depot St., Kaukauna, was fined $100 by Municipal Justice Raymond Sanders after pleading guilty of hit and run driving.

Weyenberg's car struck and broke off a utility pole on Main Street Friday night. He left the scene and reported the incident to police the following day when he was issued the ticket.

Bridge Bids To be Opened Next Tuesday

Bids on two major construction projects, the Mason Street bridge in Green Bay, and the Main Street bridge in Oshkosh, will be opened Tuesday by the Wisconsin division of highways.

The Mason Street bridge (State 54) contract will cover construction of two piers and portions of piers to support a 476-foot center-balanced drawbridge over the Fox River.

The construction in Oshkosh will be for a 475-foot center balanced drawbridge on Main Street (State 175,) also over the Fox River. It will include construction of bridge approaches.

Other bids to be opened for this area will be for 1.66 miles of grading on State 67 in Fond du Lac County; and a total of 9.65 miles of concrete resurfacing on State 114 between Potter and Brillion, and U.S. 151 near Chilton in Calumet County.

Correction

The Post-Crescent, in a report Tuesday on a meeting where Outagamie County Executive Alvin E. Woehler outlined provisions of his regional planning position paper, stated that Gordon Bubolz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, expressed opposition to the proposed withdrawal of the county from the planning agency.

Comments at Woehler's meeting were made by G. Allen Bubolz, Gordon's son, who is a county board member. Gordon Bubolz is in Europe and was not at Monday's meeting.

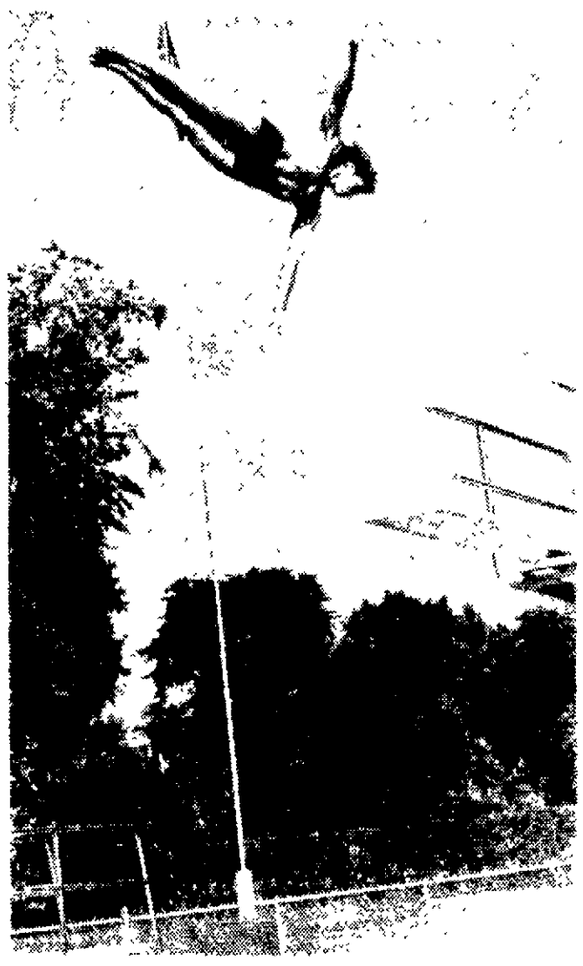
Ribbon Ceremony Marks Opening of North Shore Pool



Dave Sprissler, above, and his brother, Steve, at right, show off the diving skill that brought them five-state area YMCA championships — each in his own age class. The exhibition was Sunday at the new North Shore Golf Club pool. (Post-Crescent Photos)

A formal ribbon cutting ceremony with the bright cloth stretched across one of the gates marked the opening Sunday of the new swimming pool at North Shore Golf Club. Performing the official duties with the scissors was Arthur Hedlund, president of the club.

After the ceremoy, members gathered to watch a diving exhibition and then lingered for an outdoor barbecue.

At right with Mr. Hedlund is Frank Shattuck, Neenah, and Mel Siewert, the architects, and Victor Zuethen, building committee chairman.

Below, the pool was the site of much activity as sun-bathers and swimmers turned the area into the place to be on a warm summer afternoon.

Eating Non-Food Items Can be Harmful to Health

Surprising, shocking and even amusing to some, are the different items people put in their mouths. The eating of non-food items such as clay, dirt, laundry starch and cigarette ashes, is known as pica.

Almost all small children go through a stage of practicing pica. However, this is totally unrelated to the practice of pica by adults, says Dorothy Pringle, nutrition specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Children ind ulge in pica for a variety of reasons. It's conceivable that some children need more of this oral satisfaction to make up for a lack of love, Mrs. Pringle says. Several other possibilities are an insecure home life, lack of play resources and lack of care and affection. Often children indulge in pica to satisfy curiosity by putting different things in their mouths.

In adults, however, the underlying reasons for the practice of pica can be much more far-reaching. Adults may eat some of these unusual items because of a culturally dedetermined tradition. This isn't necessarily related to ethnic background, but often is dependent on general living conditions, Mrs. Pringle says.

Laundry starch is often consumed in great amounts by pregnant women. Contrary to what these women believe, it can interfere with absorption in the digestive tract. And, it can definitely be harmful.

The main danger of widespread pica, however, is the bacteria and dirt that may be found in clay and other non-food substances. The high incidence of lead poisoning among children who eat paint is another health concern.

Studies have not shown just how widespread or how many people are really involved in the practice of pica. In some areas it can be a major public health problem.

Are there any solutions? For children, it is quite simple. Give them a substitute, for example, chewing gum. Supervise them carefully. And, when you see them put something dangerous in their mouths, discipline them.

For adults, however, a large scale program is needed. Higher education, more mobility and better living conditions are some proposed solutions. But, this is not simply a health problem. For many, it is a cultural tradition that will be difficult to break down.

Britain Step Nearer to Common Market Seat

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Britain and the six Common Market nations came to terms early today on Britain's admission to the European Economic Community. Nw Prime Minister Edward Heath has to sell it to the British Parliament.

"We have broken the back of the negotiations. It is an historic day for Europe," Geoffrey Rippon, Britain's negotiator, told newsmen after an all-night bargaining session with the six Continental foreign ministers ended with champagne toasts at 4 a.m.

The agreement also cleared the way for negotiations with Norway, Denmark and Ireland on their applications to join the customs union formed in 1958 by France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The remaining major issues in Britain's 10-year bid for membership were resolved when the negotiators put together a package that included concessions to Britain's trade with New Zealand, the amount of Britain's first contributions to the joint Common Market budget and help for British coastal fishermen and hill farmers.

But with polls showing 60 per cent of the British public opposed to Market membership and members of both the Labor and Conservative parties divided on the issue, Heath faces a stiff battle selling the terms in Parliament in the fall. His target is membership by Jan. 1, 1973.

Political sources in London estimate that if the vote is "free," with a member permitted to vote his convictions and not as the pary majority decides, Heath could win by a comfortable 70 or 80 votes. But if the opposition Labor party decides against Market membership and party discipline is enforced, abstentions by anti-Market Conservatives might be too much for Heath.

Former Prime Minister Harold Wilson, the leader of the Labor party, is likely to hold the key. He has said repeatedly he would be in faovr of joining Europe "if the terms are right," but he has shown signs recently of moving into the anti-Market camp.

Fear Higher Prices

Opponents of Market membership fear Britain will lose some of its national sovereignty and face an ever higher cost of living because food prices wil be geared to the higher prices charged by continental farmers.

Pro-marketeers say membership will give Britain a stronger voice in the world and access to a market for British products five times the size of the country. They say the standard of living will rise in Britain to offset higher costs.

A test of sentiment in Parliament will come Thursday when Rippon reports to the House of Commons and is questioned by the members.

The agreement on New Zealand sets limits on the duty-free import of butter and cheese from that Commonwealth nation for five years after Britain joins the EEC.

The South Pacific island now exports 250,000 tons of butter and cheese to Britain each year. Under the agreement, the duty-free portion of this would be reduced gradually to 71 per cent of current levels in the fifth year after membership.

A spokesman for the New Zealand government said this fell below his government's expectations, but the agreement was the best Britain could obtain.

Budget Payment

Also solved was the long-disputed question of Britain's first contributions to the Market budget. It will pay 8.6 per cent of the total budge in the first year, a share now estimated at about $283 million. The payment would rise gradually to nearly 19 per cent in the fifth year. There would be certain ceilings in the sixth and seventh year, but after that Britain's share would be calculated like those of the other member countries on the basis of customs and tax receipts.

Nearly all Common Market spending goes to support farm prices, and Britain can expect to get about $30 million a year back in subsidies for its farm exports.

Equal Rights for Women Proposed, Except...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has approved a proposed constitutional amendment granting equal rights to women, but it's a case of thanks for nothing as far as the women are concerned.

Before approving the amendment by a vote of 32 to 3, the committee added a provision strongly opposed by women's rights organizations and their supporters.

The provision, adopted 19 to 16, would exempt women from the draft and permit "reasonable" state laws based on sex differences to continue in effect.

"This kills the bill," said Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., chief sponsor of the amendment who has been fighting for 15 years for its passage. "If we can't take it out on the floor, I'll vote against the bill myself."

"It's just unconscionable," said Carol Burris of the National Women's Party, which launched the fight for an equal rights amendment 50 years ago.

"Kiss of Death"

"It's the kiss of death," said Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the judiciary committee, but unlike the two women he was all smiles. Celler, who cast one of the three votes against the amendment, helped put the new language in.

When it was first offered by Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., the amendment to Mrs. Griffith's amendment lost on a 17-17 tie vote. A motion to reconsider also failed 17-17, but Celler kept the parliamentary pot boiling until reinforcements arrived and produced a majority for Wiggins.

Fourteen Republicans and five Democrats voted for Wiggins' amendment. Voting against it were 15 Democrats and one Republican.

Wiggins said his amendment was needed to protect women who are receiving child support and alimony payments, and to keep mothers from being drafted.

It would also permit the enactment of any law that "reasonably promotes the health and safety of the people." Many states have such laws, barring women from certain occupations and setting different working conditions for them. The elimination of the laws through constitutional amendment is a prime goal of women's rights movements.

Amendments similar to Wiggins' have been used over the years to kill equal rights constitutional amendments in the Senate. Once they are adopted, sponsors of the constitutional amendment lose interest.

Sun-Times Reveals Anti-Diem Sentiment

the government's move to overturn U.S. District Court rulings in favor of the Times and the Post and to enjoin them from further publication of stories on copies of the classified papers in their possession. The decisions were pending.

Both the Time and Post carried Associated Press stories today on the Sun-Times articles.

Government officials, meanwhile, announced plans for a review of the entire 47-volume study with a view toward possible declassification of some parts. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said he ordered the censors to "move as rapidly as we possibly can."

The government contends that further publication of the study would seriously breach national security and threaten its confidential relations with other nations.

Four Papers

This was the status with the four newspapers:

Chicago Sun-Times

The Sun-Times said the Hilsman memos had been declassified by President Johnson in 1969 but had been "tightly held" until now. It said the memos were obtained from the Citizens Commission of Inquiry into U.S. War Crimes in Vietnam.

Editor James F. Hoge Jr. did not disclose the newspaper's source for the material contained in the Pentagon study, but said it was from the same report published in part by the Times, Post and Globe.

The memos and the Pentagon papers show that the late President John F. Kennedy and his leading advisers were intimately involved in the maneuvering that led to Diem's downfall and death in 1963, the Sun-Times said.

Encourage Generals

The Aug. 30 Hilsman memo proposed certain U.S. responses to actions which Diem and his brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who was head of the secret police, might take to maintain themselves in power.

Should Diem and Nhu move toward North Vietnam by a gesture "such as opening of neutralization negotiations, or rumors and indirect threats of such a move" the quoted dispatch says, the United States should "encourage the generals to move promptly with a coup.

Boston Globe

Editor Tom Twinship said the Globe would confer today with its counsel about U.S. Dist. Court Judge Anthony Julian's order to impound the documents. "We don't like this impounding order," he said.

Julian issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday at the Justice Department's request, and the Globe agreed to suspend its projected series at least until a hearing Friday.

But Julian went further than the federal judges who issued restraining orders against the Times and Post, ordering the Globe to turn its copy of the study over to the court.

In the one installment published, the Globe said that "when President Johnson in March 1968 announced publicly that he would not run for reelection, he was also deciding that a policy of Vietnamization was the best one for the nation to follow in the war."

The New York Times

The full 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals extended the restraining order against the Times resuming publication of its series after hearing arguments on the government's request for an injunction.

Ex-State Youth Given 19-Year Term in Prison

Soldier, Formerly of Spooner, Tried to Kill His Commander

FRANKFURT (AP) — Pvt. James A. Breckenridge, 19, formerly of Spooner, Wis., was sentenced by an Army court martial Tuesday to 19 years in prison for trying to kill his company commander with a hand grenade.

Breckenridge was convicted of placing a live grenade into the gas tank of the jeep of Capt. Edwin K. Fisher, 31, Hancock, Md., last March.

Also convicted of trying to murder Fisher and sentenced to 20 years was Pvt. Raymond C. Huff, 20, Sideman, Pa.

Huff and Breckenridge also were convicted of attempting to destroy government property, and conspiring to commit both offenses. Both were dishonorably discharged, reduced to the lowest grade and made to forfeit all pay and allowances.

Breckenridge dropped out of Spooner High School in 1969 to join the Army and was sent to Germany after basic training.

earning breadwinner. Floor would be computed at $800 a year for first two family members, $400 for next three, $300 for next two, $200 for next member. Floor accordingly would be —$2,400 for a family of four, $3,600 maximum for any family.

Above these levels, states could supplement out of their own funds, but would not be required to do so. However, for five years the government would protect states already paying higher benefits against having to expend more than they did in 1971 to maintain those benefits, even though the number of recipients would increase.

"Opportunities for families" program: Needy families with an employable member would be enrolled in a program administered by the Labor Department.

Employables would have to participate in manpower services and training and accept available employment. These would include mothers of children 6 years old or older and, after June 1974, of children 3 years old or older. Child care facilities would be developed.

Family Income

In determining family income to set the federal payment needed to bring the family up to the established floor, the first $720 a year of earned income and one-third of the remainder would be disregarded, as well as small irregular earnings and the earnings of students.

Family assistance: Eligible families with no member available for employment would be enrolled and paid benefits by the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Eligibility: Families with assets not exceeding $1,500 would be eligible. Homes, household effects and small insurance policies would not count in computing assets. Families would have to consist of related persons, including at least one child. Those headed by a full-time student would be ineligible.

Sanctions: A parent crossing a state line to avoid supporting his child would be subject to $1,000 fine and one year's imprisonment. A deserting parent also would be obligated to the government for amounts provided to his family. Penalties for fraudulent representations would go up to $1,000 and one year. Refusal by an eligible to take work or training would result in an $800 a year reduction in family benefits.

Jobs: $800 million would be authorized for 200,000 public service jobs and $540 million for an additional 412,000 job training slots.

Medicaid: Persons eligible for medicaid, the federal-state health program for low-income persons, could be charged part of the cost on a sliding scale based on income.

The federal government now pays 56.2 per cent of the cost of providing relief for 138,200 persons in Wisconsin. Under the House-passed bill, 84.2 per cent of welfare costs for 311,700 persons would be paid.

CARE Programs Helping New Generation Grow

NEW YORK — The note, mailed from Liberia, was signed by a fifth-grade schoolboy, James Gaddah.

"Dear CARE," he wrote. "I hope this letter will meet you in good health. Thank you for the food you sent to us. If there is no food we will not eat all the time that we come to school."

Behind those lines lie the experience CARE has gained in a quarter-century of helping the world's needy peoples.

In 1946, its first year of operation, CARE helped to feed 3,380,000 persons in Europe by delivering food packages to families made destitute by World War II. In 1971, its 25th anniversary year, CARE is helping to feed 25 million persons in 35 countries from Latin America to Africa and Asia — and most of these recipients are children: 23,500,000 boys and girls fed daily at primary schools, nutrition centers and other institutions.

Feeding Centers

Today's emphasis on feeding the young has led to another dimension, the construction of facilities. The last count at CARE headquarters, 660 First Ave., New York City, shows the agency has helped build 358 feeding centers and 1,546 school kitchens which serve 4 million preschool and school children. Additional projects are under way, aimed especially at reaching the preschool age group.

Concern for children is not only a matter of compassion. In postwar Europe, the people needed help to rebuild their former life patterns. In the developing nations CARE now serves, the people must learn to build new patterns that will free them from generations of hopeless poverty.

But recent studies show that hunger and malnutrition, so prevalent in those regions, strike hardest at the young: diet deficiencies can cause permanent mental and physical retardation in children, leaving them unable to absorb an education or be fully productive in the future. Thus, by its child-feedings CARE is helping the new generation grow into healthy, educated, self-supporting adults.

Self-Help Basis

All programs are conducted on a shared-cost, self-help basis. CARE's work depends on funds from Americans, but local governments and communities must give what they can in cash and kind (supplies, transport, labor, etc.). On construction projects, local inputs average four times the CARE contribution. The U.S. also helps by donating farm commodities as the mainstay of the feeding, which range from supplementary milk to a complete midday meal.

This combined support means, for example, that every dollar sent to CARE office can serve 400 youngsters a nourishing cup of milk, or that $10 assures school lunches for 10 students for 3 months. Facility costs vary by size, type, country conditions. In typical projects, CARE has pooled donor contributions to help build school kitchens at about $450 each, nutrition centers at $2,000 to $5,000.

The full results of these programs, CARE officials point out, will be seen in the next 25 years as today's children become tomorrow's workers, farmers, professionals and leaders. Meanwhile, for millions like James Gaddah every day brings the happiness of knowing they will have enough to eat.

A Cook at a "Comedor Infantil" (child feeding center) in Columbia prepares plates for the midday rush when pre-school and school children come for a full nourishing lunch. CARE, which is marking its 25th anniversary, helped build the nutrition center and now provides basic foods for the meals.

High Chair 'Grows'

Now there is a high chair that not only converts to a youth chair, but "grows" down as the child grows up. Equipped with either glides or casters, the pedestal base adjusts to three heights. And it's so easy to suds-clean spills and dribbles from the white molded plastic chair and print quilted pads.

Brockmans Wed For 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brockman, 3322 E. Wisconsin Ave., will observe their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner at noon and an Open House from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Country Aire Club. The couple was married June 29, 1921.

They have three children: Orville, Freeport, Ill.; Kenneth, Los Angeles, Calif.; and Mrs. Ruben Uhlenbrauck, Black Creek. There are six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Researchers Study Chickens For Cancer Cure

By AP Newsfeatures

At first glance, the price of a chicken dinner and progress in leukemia research may not seem to have anything in common, but they do.

At laboratories in St. Petersburg, Fla., microbiologists are raising virus free chickens under special conditions for their research into the causes and possible cures for Marek's disease, a type of cancer that attacks 20 per cent of the chicken population annually. It is hoped that one result of their research will be developing a quick diagnostic test for cancer.

And, according to Dr. L. A. Wilhelm, president of the Poultry and Egg National Board, if the percentage of chickens destroyed due to Marek's disease could be saved, housewives could expect the prices of chickens and eggs to drop by one-third.

At the Life Sciences Laboratories, the first step towards creating a colony of virus free chickens is taken when fertilized eggs are sterilized to make sure the chicks will be free of viruses and bacteria when they are hatched. Each chick is then raised in its own chamber breathing filtered air.

The scientists say they are progressing to the point where soon they will be studying ways to break up Marek's disease tumor cells to determine whether injection of the broken up cells will protect chickens from contracting this form of cancer.

Princess Grace Will Open Dallas Festival

DALLAS — Neiman-Marcus will take a new direction in promotions this fall with the presentation of a "Fete des Fleus," an exciting two-week festival beginning Oct. 17, which will completely transform the downtown Dallas store into an enchantinv, beautiful wonderland of flowers.

H. S. H. Prince Rainier and H. S. H. Princess Grace will be flying to Dallas especially to open the Fete des Fleurs on that evening. They will be honored guests at a benefit party to be held in the downtown store. Mr. and Mrs. Algur H. Meadows of Dallas, internationally known art collectors, will be chairmen for the gala event which will benefit the Southern Methodist University School (SMU) of Fine Arts. Tickets are $50 per couple.

Princess Grace, a former Neiman-Marcus Fashion Award Winner, will officially open the "Fete des Fleurs" Oct. 18. The main floor of Neiman-Marcus will resemble a paradise garden, filled with a profusion of fresh flowers and greenery, blooming from archways, hanging from columns and ledges, and covering displays.

A special gift bazaar will feature beautiful collections of silver plus new and unusual gift items. Interesting table settings centered around the flower motif will be arranged in the linen and china department. The Zodiac Room will be transformed into the formal gardens of Monaco, featuring the delicate Princess Grace Rose. Menus will be highlighted with special flower-inspiredfoods.

Dallas area children will be given an opportunity to enter the Fete des Fleurs Art Contest. Their entries — which will be drawings of their favorite flower — will be exhibited during the festival.

Wisconsin Beauties In Swim of Things

Three Area Miss Wisconsin hopefuls were caught lounging Monday morning at the Pioneer Inn Pool in Oshkosh. Above are Miss Appleton, Mary Meissner, and Miss Oshkosh, Janice Galvin. At left, swinging her feet, is Miss Calumet County, Jeanne Libke. First preliminary competition takes place tonight. Competitions continue Thursday and Friday nights with the finals Saturday. All events are taking place at the Oshkosh Civic Auditorium.

Your Problems

Solve It With Second TV Set

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what should be done about a man who has the following TV habits:

He looks at the paper and decides what he will watch for the evening. He never consults anyone as to what they might want to see. After he has made his choice, he settles back and within 10 minutes he is sound asleep If anyone tries to change the channel, he wakes up immediately and yells, "Leave it alone" In five minutes he is asleep again.

Frequently the show he selects ends and another show comes on while he is snoring his head off. If he wakes up during the new show and sees that we are all enjoying it, he changes the channel. In 10 minutes he is asleep again.

Any advice, Ann? The whole family will be looking for your answer. — Turned Off

Dear Turned: A guy like that can give a family ulcers. A second TV is cheaper. I suggest you buy one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter for every son or daughter who has not spoken to his or her parents for a while. I don't mean because they have been negligent about visiting or calling. I mean because they have had some kind of disagreement or fight and are not on speaking terms

My older brother has not spoken to Mom and Dad for nearly five years. Mom is 77 Dad is 79. How much longer they will live is anybody's guess It just kills me to see Mom waiting for a bus less than a block from my brother's house I know her heart must ache when she walks by and knows she is not welcome.

I should tell you that the trouble between my brother and the folks is mostly because of my brother's wife She is a strong person and what she says goes. It's hard to live with a woman like that and I'm certain my brother's life isn't easy but I think a son should not allow such a thing to happen. Please tell me what you think, Ann. I respect your advice because you try to be fair to both sides. — Syracuse, N.Y.

Dear Sy: I don't care what happened between your brother's wife and his parents. A son should not cut his aged mother and father out of his life. If there is trouble between a wife and her in-laws she need not visit them, but your brother should insist that his parents be welcome in his home — and he should go to see them periodically without her.

Old folks are sometimes boring, demanding, nosey, bossy and trying. If such is the case, their children can see them infrequently. But to shut them out completely is unspeakably cruel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS Our son is marrying a fine girl who comes from a family that has nothing. The girl's mother called yesterday and asked me to send a list of our relatives "Only close," she said 'No cousins" I asked about friends. She said she is sorry — they must stay within a limited budget. "No friends." I asked if we could pay for the extra guests ourselves. She said, "No. We will have only what we can afford."

Ann, we are very disappointed What should we do? —Yonkers

Dear Yonkers: Abide by her wishes and be gracious. Later you can give a reception or dinner and invite anyone you please.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Thorough Cleaning Lets Sun Shine In

With so much easy upkeep built into home furnishings these days, spring cleaning isn't quite the grim affair of former days. One doesn't have to be ancient to remember washing sheer or lacey curtains and then shaping them on awkward stretchers to dry!

Still, with summer finally on its way, it is time to wash curtains, draperies and windows to let the sunshine in. While you're at it, scrub window sashes and inner sills using an old toothbrush to work lather into corners Rinse and give a fresh coat of paint if needed. Finish with an application of paste wax and the sills will be easy to suds-wipe clean of dust and tiny bugs throughout the hot months.

A Social Lifestyle

NEW YORK — "Marriage is not an institution, but a lifestyle that is social," according to the Rev Michael F. Gallagher of St. Patrick's Cathedral. "It is not just two people saying, 'I love you.' It is the backbone of our society It is a stabilizing base upon which you can let your relationship grow," he said.

Juniors Discuss Panama At Auxiliary Meeting

Serving as social hour hostesses and presenting a program about Panama before the Monday evening meeting of American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 38, were members of the Junior Auxiliary. The girls explained the auxiliary's foreign relations program of contributions to Panama's National Community Development through CARE.

New Junior officers introduced included Deanne Weese, president; Wendy Weese, vice president; Linda Schmidt, secretary-treasurer; Diana Schmidt, chaplain; Julie Spengler, sergeant-at-arms, and Bonnie Schmidt, her assistant. Martha and Mary Hemling and Julie Spengler were presented with perfect attendance citations.

Donations Received

It was reported that Badger Girls State representatives left for Madison Saturday to attend the auxiliary-sponsored sessions on good citizenship and government. Donations for Badger Girls State were received from BPO Elks Lodge 337 as well as from the Appleton Catholic Daughters of America.

Voted was a donation to the King Pilgrimage fund.

Installed by Mrs. William Brinkman, past unit president, were Mrs. Arlin Schnell, president; Mrs. Peggy Driessen, vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. Sherman Kapp, secretary; Mrs. Harry Cunningham, treasurer; Mrs. George Fitz, poppy treasurer; Mrs. Raymond Stickney, chaplain; Miss Joyce Jahnke, sergeant-at-arms; Miss Carol Jahnke, her assistant, and Miss Mary Hamlin, historian.

Mrs. Schnell announced Mrs. Stanley Staidl will be parlimentarian and legislative chairman; Mrs. Fred Gehrke, children and youth; Mrs. James Schroeder, community service; Mrs. John Hollenbeck and Mrs. Howard Feavel, drum corps.

Committee Chairmen

Mrs. Feavel will make tray favors for veterans hospitals; Mrs. Kenneth Lippold will have charge of education and scholarships; Mrs. Lynford Meyers, foreign relations; Mrs. Carla Spengler, national security and civil defense, and Mrs. Lena Luniak, rehabilitation.

Mrs. Robert Klitzke will be music chairman; Mrs. Roger Rusch, hospitality; Mrs. Percy Sharp and Mrs. Eugene Hoffman, good cheer; Mrs. Frederick Jahnke and Mrs. Roland Menting, juniors.

Mrs. Oscar Kuhn will head the finance committee and Mrs. Phillip Behl, auditing. Mrs. Daniel Schultz is chairman of the house committee with Mrs. Lawrence Spielbauer, kitchen, and Mrs. William Hetherington, dining room. News chairman is Mrs. Hjalmar Gill.

An executive meeting of all officers and chairmen is slated at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the clubhouse.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

Your Child and the Spirit of '76

It's only five more years until the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. Judging by past experience and by the mounting evidence in toy and book stores, these events will not be ignored by the hucksters. They'll ingeniously exploit and pervert our children's natural curiosity about these important historic events in comic and other merchandising books, through toys, games, novelties, premiums, TV and radio programs, on records, paper napkins, musical glasses, decals, notebook binders and teething rings.

The Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights are stirring documents. Every child, in the U.S. and abroad, should have the opportunity to read them, to discuss them and to have them explained to him. But they should not be used to decorate waste baskets. And so I suggest an educational licensing agency that has the power to approve and disapprove the manner in which our history is represented to children.

History should not be distorted, prettified or merchandised. The injustices done the American Indian, to slaves and to others must not be glossed over. Great harm can be done to children's maturing values and to their sense of history through the mindless exploitation of national symbols by both super-patriots and by the merchandisers.

I am reminded, as I look ahead to 1976, of the enterprising lobbyists who managed to persuade the late President Eisenhower that the Civil War Centennial should be celebrated in 1960. For the first time in our, and perhaps in any nation's history, the beginning, rather than the end of a war was honored by presidential edict. As a result of this scheme, the promoters gained five years in which to sell Union and Confederate hats, flags, toy armaments and other Civil War related merchandise to children. A whole generation grew up with muddled ideas concerning this fratricidal struggle, about when it began and when it ended.

Perhaps this is one of the reasons why today's youth distrusts and is disinterested in history. It has been rammed down their throats too often as novelty merchandise. So please resist the temptation to give your tot that $19.95 Paul Revere rocking horse or the plastic Minute Man rifle replica that will unquestionably appear soon in toy stores. Instead, tell him and give him books about the various trials, problems and triumphs faced by our forebears at ages at which he can understand what the American Revolution was all about. Let's not rush into this celebration of a significant historic event irresponsibly. Consider the likely benefits to your child if it is honored with the dignity and restraint it deserves.

Sew Washable Beach Cover-Ups

This summer, beach cover-ups for bikini-clad little girls will be ankle length skirts. It's an easy fashion to run up on a sewing machine. Of course, a day at the pool or beach means a trip to the washing machine for this clothing. So do choose washable, no-iron fabrics for this sewing project.

Designers are showing the fashion in alphabet prints, floral stripes, and paisleys; all in bright gay colors and free-swinging lines often ending in a wide ruffle. So take the cue. Maybe buy a little extra material to make a go-with swimsuit. Or make matching mother-daughter skirts.

Prevent Wrinkles

For minimal wrinkling, it is wise to remove laundry from the dryer as soon as the machine stops. This is particularly important for permanent press fabrics. Fold or hang promptly. When using a dryer with no permanent press cycle, remove such items while still slightly damp and finger-smooth before hanging.

Studies Reveal Inadequacies Of Children's Safety Program

NEW YORK — Studies being conducted at the Human Factors Laboratory of the University of South Dakota, the only laboratory of its kind in the nation, have revealed serious inadequacies in our accident prevention programs for children, Redbook magazine reported today.

While accidents cause more injuries and fatalities than the leading six childhood diseases combined, "many programs and instructions designed for children's safety are either misdirected or insufficient," the magazine said.

"The most frequent mistake we make as adults," asserted Dr. Norman Heimstra, behavioral psychologist who heads the laboratory, "is to assume that a child has a miniature version of our reasoning power, and that he will therefore be able to interpret dangerous situations by using 'common sense'."

The truth, according to Dr. Heimstra, is that concepts we attribute to "common sense" are usually based on systematically learned information, and without that learning a child's "common sense," may produce completely unexpected conclusions.

For example, many children run out against red lights because the red, green and yellow symbols haven't been explained properly. Most children know they should look at the lights — but may not be sure what to look for, the magazine said.

The article recalled a study conducted in England concerning a traditional safety jingle which was simple, easy to memorize, and seemed reasonably clear. But when the children were tested, it was discovered that many of them age five through eight thought the poem had the quality of magic. "They assumed that just by reciting it at the curb they were doing their part in protecting themselves for crossing the street."

A study conducted by the Human Factors Laboratory among five and six-year-olds revealed that few youngsters equated the skull and crossbones symbol with poisons. Some knew it was a warning of danger, but many more thought it signified either that the container held some sort of "bone medicine" or "had something to do with pirates".

The researchers have also learned that boys should be given different safety instructions from girls in some cases and especially in traffic safety. Boys have more-street-crossing accidents than girls, and the laboratory discovered it is because of behavior differences.

"Girls tend to leave school in groups and chat with one another on the way home," the article states. "This slows them down, and they have time to look at the lights as they approach a street corner . . . Boys rarely walk home in groups . . . And boys are likely to do more running along the route. If they are running as they approach a street corner, they may not slow down enough to pay attention to the light. They may not want to stop for it."

These findings led the researchers to suggest that instead of the usual safety caution: "Look at the lights before crossing the street," boys should be told: "Make a full stop at every corner; then look at the lights."

According to Redbook, "This kind of scrutiny is essential if safety instructions are to be anything more than memorized — and meaningless — rules. Once we begin to identify the weakness of children's perceptions, we can tailor safety instructions to accommodate them."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

I am often asked, "What differentiates the average player from the top player?"

A complete answer to this question involves many variables. However, a reasonable summation might be as follows:

"The average player sees a likely course to success and follows it. The more experienced player sees the same course, but he always tries to improve his chances."

Ace Bobby Goldman demonstrates this point in the play of today's interesting game hand dealt in a recent Aces practice match in Dallas.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

Over North's standard 16-18 no-trump opening, South lost no time in contracting for the spade game. No guarantees went with this bid. It was worth a gamble, however, since scientific investigation was impossible.

After West opens the diamond king, the easiest course to game becomes obvious. If spades divide evenly, the only losers are two spades and one diamond.

The possibility of a club finesse, to discard the diamond loser in the event that three spade tricks must be lost, enters declarer's mind but is quickly rejected.

Nothing is worse than losing a cold game (an even spade division) by taking an unnecessary finesse. Few dummies have understanding words at times like this. The average player, therefore, plays for spades to break and loses the contract, yielding three spades and one diamond.

Bobby Goldman found a way to cater to a 3-1 spade break without risking the contract.

Goldman won dummy's diamond ace and played the ace and king of clubs and another club, ruffing East's queen. A heart was led to dummy and the jack of clubs played.

East was helpless. East ruffed small and Goldman overruffed. The spade honors then crashed in two leads, and Goldman made the contract, losing only two spades and one diamond.

If East had ruffed high, or if he had discarded, Goldman would have discarded his diamond loser. In that case, Goldman would have lost only three trump tricks to make his contract.

Goldman's line of play entailed a little risk and would have failed against a few unlikely distributions. However, as this hand demon-

Portable Gas Grills Easy to Care for Portable gas grills for use on patio, apartment terraces or at camp and picnic sites are becoming more popular as more chefs learn about the cooking results. Anyone hesitant due to clean-up questions may be assured that most are easy to clean. Of course, prompt attention after each use makes the job that much easier, and keeps the grill ready for use at a moment's notice.

The ceramic briquettes are self-cleaning in that food particles and grease can be burned off. The grid should be removable for washing in hot suds. Occasionally the unit should be taken apart and thoroughly cleaned. Just follow manufacturer's instructions.

Substitute Bathtub

When limited space makes it awkward or impossible to use an infant bathtub or bassinet conveniently, the kitchen sink may serve as a good substitute. For sanitary reasons, the sink should be thoroughly scrubbed and then flushed with hot soap or detergent suds, before and after baby's bath.

Form 1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the year Jan. 1 - December 31, 1965, or other taxable year beginning ... 19... ending ... 19... U.S. Treasury

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers

Q) I waited until April 15 before I filed my return. How long will it take for me to get my refund?

A) If there are no mistakes on a return to delay processing, it normally takes four to six weeks after a return is filed It might take a little longer to get your refund, however, due to the large volume of returns filed in April.

Q) My farm workers would like me to withhold income tax from their wages this year. Can I do this?

A) Federal income tax may be withheld from a farm worker's wages if the worker requests it and if the employer agrees.

Note that withholding on farm workers is not mandatory The election to withhold is optional for both employer and employee. Form W-4 should be used by the employee to request withholding.

Q) I have just sold my home at a profit. What are the tax consequences?

A) The tax on any profit from selling your old home is postponed if, within a year before or after making the sale, you buy and occupy a new residence costing as much or more than the "adjusted sales price" of your old residence.

If you are 65 or over before the date of sale and have owned and occupied the property as your principal residence for at least five of the eight years before the sale, you may choose to treat any profit as tax free if the adjusted selling price is $20,000 or less. You may treat a proportionate part of the profit as tax free if the adjusted sale price is more than $20,000. This choice to exclude profit on the sale of a residence from gross income, can be made only once in a lifetime

Additional information can be found in IRS Publication No 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home" This publication can be obtained free by sending a postcard to your local IRS office

Q) I have just opened my own business. How do I get an Employer Identification Number?

A) Use Form SS-4 to apply for your E I. number. This form is available from your local IRS office or the nearest office of the Social Security Administration. The completed form should be filed with the IRS office designated in the instructions

Q) What interest do you charge on taxes that are not paid when due?

A) Interest at the rate of 6 per cent is assessed from the date the tax is due until it is paid In addition, a penalty of one-half of one per cent is imposed for each month, or part of month, beyond the due date that the tax remains unpaid, up to a maximum of 25 per cent.

If an extension of time for filing has been granted, the late penalty will not be applied for the period of the extension. However, interest still will be charged from the date the tax is due.

Right Time Could be Wrong Time Sometime

By BOB HARING
Associated Press Writer

EAST BRUNSWICK, N J. (AP) — Time is relative

Maybe Einstein said that or maybe it was a fellow on the bus yesterday.

At any rate, it has the ring of essential truth that comes from hours of solitary thought by a theoretical genius or from years of commuting.

It really doesn't matter what time you're on so long as it agrees with those you have to deal with.

A call arranged for 10 o'clock is bound to fail if you're on New York time and the other guy is on Pacific time

Dinner with your wife on your anniversary is started wrong if she's still on Standard Time and you've advanced to Daylight Or vice versa.

The best clock in the world won't help a commuter if it doesn't agree with the one his bus or train happens to be running on that day.

(That explains why commuters spend so much time waiting So they won't be late, they're early. And wait. Waiting isn't too bad on a warm spring morning when the trees are blooming and the birds are singing. It is one of life's lesser joys on a January snow or March rain. Or any season in a railroad station, given the state of the art of railroad station design these days. Actually, it isn't design of these days—railroad stations all seem to have been built in the late 1800s and to have been pushed steadily downward since. Something to do with the great American death wish displayed by the nation's railroads.)

No Right Time

For practical purposes, there really is no such thing as the "right" time

What's right for me may make you miss a plane Or lose a business deal. Or stand up a lovely lady.

Oh, somewhere there probably is a timing device—clock would be too ordinary a word—which keeps some specific track of the microseconds in relation to the standings of the stars. But even so the division into seconds, minutes and hours is an artificial thing. And the guy who runs that perfect timer probably keeps his watch set by the clock at home, so he won't be late for dinner.

It is custom, really, which decrees that a minute is 60 seconds. Or that lunch is at noon—or for that matter that noon is at 12 o'clock.

2 to 4 Lunch

And customs aren't the same around the world and are subject to change The Spanish, for instance, consider lunch from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and try that change on your boss sometime.

But since time is relative—a regular but arbitrary division of space into bits definable by words—it's interesting to speculate about some of the changes that might be made

Why not an eight-hour span, instead of 12? or 16?

Who says a day must be 24 hours long? Why not vary the length of days, so that summer ones are longer and winter ones shorter?

Whole new industries—even a whole new economy—might be created by such changes And people, being adaptable, would adapt (that's another essential truth gleaned from commuting.)

The church bell around the corner would still set the time standard for the neighborhood, because it still would be the fixed element, the specific point to which all residents relate and set their own clocks by It would be the same whether the bell rang at what we now call 7 o'clock or if it rang at a 7 o'clock that we would call 14 o'clock

And it might be interesting to leave for work at 12 o'clock and get home at 2 o'clock.

Come to think of it, that's a relatively good idea any time

Mail Thieves Take $5,000 in Welfare Checks

PORT ARTHUR, Tex (AP) — In recent months more than 5 000 in checks have been stolen from mail boxes in this area

Postmaster W T McCuistion said most of the checks were from the U S. Treasury Department, state welfare, retirement and insurance firms.

They included one welfare check for a blind woman and an insurance check used to support seven children. The checks can be easily identified, said the postmaster.

Single British Port to Get Jute

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP) — Dundee, for many years headquarters of the jute industry in Britain, is likely to become the only port for the unloading of jute goods from India and Pakistan

Hitherto, London, Liverpool and Avonmouth (near Bristol) have imported much jute, but sources said that irregularities of sailings from India and Pakistan made it advisable to concentrate on one receiving port, and Dundee would be the logical choice

Hickel Tells Graduates New Voices Needed in Both Political Parties

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — "Both political parties need a generation of new voices," former Secretary of the Interior and ex-Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel told Adelphi University graduates, faculty and guests.

"Mistrust of government is running wild," Hickel said "The people feel that the popular will is being ignored."

Junk Analysis Can Reveal Economic State

Each Country Falls Within 5 Levels of Trash Sophistication

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "For U.S. entrepreneurs going to strange foreign countries, junk studies can be very suggestive. Junk tends to be a leading economic indicator," said the professor.

At first it appeared to be a joke, but as the story unfolded the listener realized the professor had developed a system of junk anlaysis, and that it actually could reveal the status of a nation's economy, and perhaps its future.

And there were the credentials, as checked in an interview: Dr. Richard N Farmer, 43, author of eight books, professor at the Graduate School of Business, Indiana Unviersity, Bloomington, Ind.

"Most economic data is erroneous for reasons beyond the control of statisticians," he wrote in the international management magazine, 'Worldwide P and I Planning." (P is for project, I for industry)

"Junk and trash studies can correct often defective data, as well as flesh out in considerable detail what is REALLY going on in the countryside."

In quest of knowledge, Farmer has roamed through the junkyards of at least 10 countries, much as another scholar would roam through the library bookstacks.

"Every country," he maintains, "is in at least one of five-level junk and trash development cycles," which he labels:

1. Nothing Gets Used. Mainly because the natives don't have the skill to make use of junk. Characteristic of primitive and remote tribes or of desert nomads. Per capita income of less than $50 a year.

"As late as 1962," Farmer writes, "virtually all the locomotives and cars of the Hejaz Railway in Saudi Arabia were still sitting where Lawrence of Arabia stopped thim in 1916. The nomads had taken all the wood, but they could not figure out how to use a 40-ton steam locomotive . . ."

Everything Used

2. Everything Gets Used. Indicative of rudimentary skills in reusing old materals. Nothing is thrown away for good. Ingenuity develops. Autos are totally stripped. Per capita income up to $200.

"The society is too poor to leave junk lying around, and the familiar Western pattern of old auto tires in creeks and beer bottles in the parks is nonexistent." Tires become sandals, cans become pots.

3. Piling Up Phase. Low grade materials show up in junkyards and about the countryside: broken bottles, cement fragments, occasional tires, leaking bottles and autos almost, but not quite totally, stripped.

"Labor, particularly skilled labor, is being drawn off into pieces of hard to get things left on them." The junkyard "comes into its own."

4. The Age of Affluence. Usable trash accumulates. Lots of bottles, cans, tires, occasional abandoned cars. Useful stuff appears, such as copper piping, two by fours, wire. Per capita income up to $1,200.

"As countries get richer, they of course pile up much more junk." Beer cans in the wrong places. Disposable containers and products. Influential people talk about ecology. Trash no longer an asset but a costly burden.

5. Total Affluence. Per capita income up to $2,500 or more. Trash becomes a major public issue. Abandoned cars, throwaway containers, piles of paper become problems.

"It sometimes appears as if the culture is drowned in its own garbage. Everything is disposable, including such high value items as autos, and the countryside is loaded with stuff which no one wants or can afford to pick up."

Proper analysis, says Farmer, can tell an awful lot about a country's wealth, skills, needs, initiative, morality, imagination and future.

"Instead of hanging around local luxury hotels, businessmen interested in what is really going on in a country should get out to see what's being done with the local junk.

"It beats drinking politely with local officials, and trash doesn't lie."

Pain Relievers Can Be Mixed Blessings

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Testimony by expert witnesses before a Senate investigating committee here (last week) makes clear that people addicted to pot or heroin are not the only ones with drug problems

Americans are congenital pill poppers. Millions of people prescribe their own cure at the first signs of "nervous tension," "tired blood," "the blahs" and other assorted menaces created largely by Madison Avenue

More than half a billion dollars are spent on analgesic products alone (mostly aspirin and aspirin combinations) each year Industry spends more than $100 million each year merely advertising them

Yet, according to Senate testimony, much of his money is wasted, and some of the products may cause more harm than good. Amateur doctors could save much money and some possibly harmful effects in this cloudy area by heeding the words of two expert witnesses.

One was Richard P. Penna, executive secretary of the Academy of General Practice of Pharmacy and author of articles on analgesic drugs. The other was William T. Beaver, associate director of pharmacology at Georgetown University School of Medicine Said Dr. Penna.

"While most over-the-counter (non-prescription) products are effective in relieving headache and muscular pain, such products are less effective in relieving the symptoms of toothache, sore throat and menstrual pain "

"The public must recognize that pain, no matter how mild, is always a symptom of an underlying condition and the successful treatment of this symptom does not eliminate its cause "

"Some patients are allergic to aspirin; reactions such as asthma, skin eruptions and anaphylactic shock may occur . approximately 5 per cent of patients taking aspirin experience heartburn, even after a single dose . .

"A much more serious problem, however, and one which is totally ignored by the advertising media, is that gastroduodenal (stomach and intestinal) bleading and ulceration may result from the continuous use of aspirin .

"Nearly 70 per cent of patients taking aspirin show a daily recurrent blood loss of two to six millimeters (half to one teaspoonful) and 10 per cent of these patients lose daily as much as ten millimeters (two teaspoonfuls). . .

"The antacid agents added to the typical 'buffered' aspirin are not present in sufficient quantity to prevent gastric side effects. On the other hand, seltzer-type aspirin preparations have not been shown to cause these gastric side effects. . .

"Patients taking aspirin tablets should be advised to consume a full glass of water or milk, or combine the medication with a teaspoonful of non-absorbable antacid (Maalox, Aludrox). . .

"Patients with ulcers, diabetes or heart conditions would be ill-advised to use over-the-counter analgesic products routinely without first consulting their physicians or pharmacists "

Said Dr. Beaver. "There is no good evidence that any analgesic obtainable on an over-the-counter basis, either a single entity or a drug mixture, can provide greater relief of pain than an adequate dose of plain aspirin. . .

"A company can make the most wildly extravagant claims for a product without going to the trouble and expense of validating these claims . . . I would advise the layman not to believe any claims whatsoever made by manufacturers in relation to this class of drugs."

Forest Policing Pay Supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed Monday a bill to authorize federal reimbursement to local governments for the extra expense of policing the national forests.

The roll call vote of 360-2 sent the bill to the Senate.

The bill proposes cooperative agreements between the Agriculture Department and such local agencies as Alpine County, Calif., where a local population of 484 is boosted during the summer by the equivalent of 1,113,000 one-day visitors to the national forests.

The Agriculture Department estimates reimbursements for law enforcement in remote areas will total $4.7 million next year and rise to $9 5 million by 1976.

Younger Players 'Growing Up'—Tanner

Big Innings Mark of Improving Chisox

BY JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox, a team which once scratched for its runs, is becoming proficient in the big inning.

A thunderous eight-run second inning Tuesday night carried the Sox to an 11-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals and marked their third straight triumph.

It was the second time in three games that the Sox had employed the big inning to come from behind and roar to victory. They scored nine runs in the sixth inning Sunday en route to an 18-8 victory over Minnesota after trailing in the game 4-0.

Rookie Manager Chuck Tanner attributes the Sox' sudden rise to "growing up. The kids are starting to come around," says Tanner.

"When we took over the club," said Tanner "we worked but I think that's coming on improving our hitting and improving our pitching. We had to take a chance on our defense around with experience. All I can say is we did a pretty good job on Dick Drago."

Chuck Tanner

Bill Melton

Bart Johnson

Drago, the Kansas City starter, had a string of 18 scoreless innings going for him and it looked like lights out for the Sox when Ed Kirkpatrick put the Royals ahead in the first inning with a two-run single.

Drago, however, couldn't retire a man as the Sox scored eight runs in the second inning capped by Bill Melton's two-run homer. Melton also collected a pair of singles and a walk to hoist his average to .295.

Melton, who set a Sox record of 33 home runs last season, feels he's ready for better things.

"I've been hitting the ball hard for a month now and some of the hits are just starting to drop in," said the handsome third baseman. "I'm sure I'll still have my ups and downs but I don't think my downs will last as long as they did in the past."

Melton's confidence is indicative of the confidence expressed by the White Sox all around.

Starting pitcher Tom Bradley, who boosted his record to 7-6 but needed relief help from Bart Johnson in the sixth inning, said, "I was throwing good but the results just weren't there. They hit a lot of balls on the ground that went through that astroturf. If they had been hit at the fielders, it might have been a different story. Why did they ever put that turf in?"

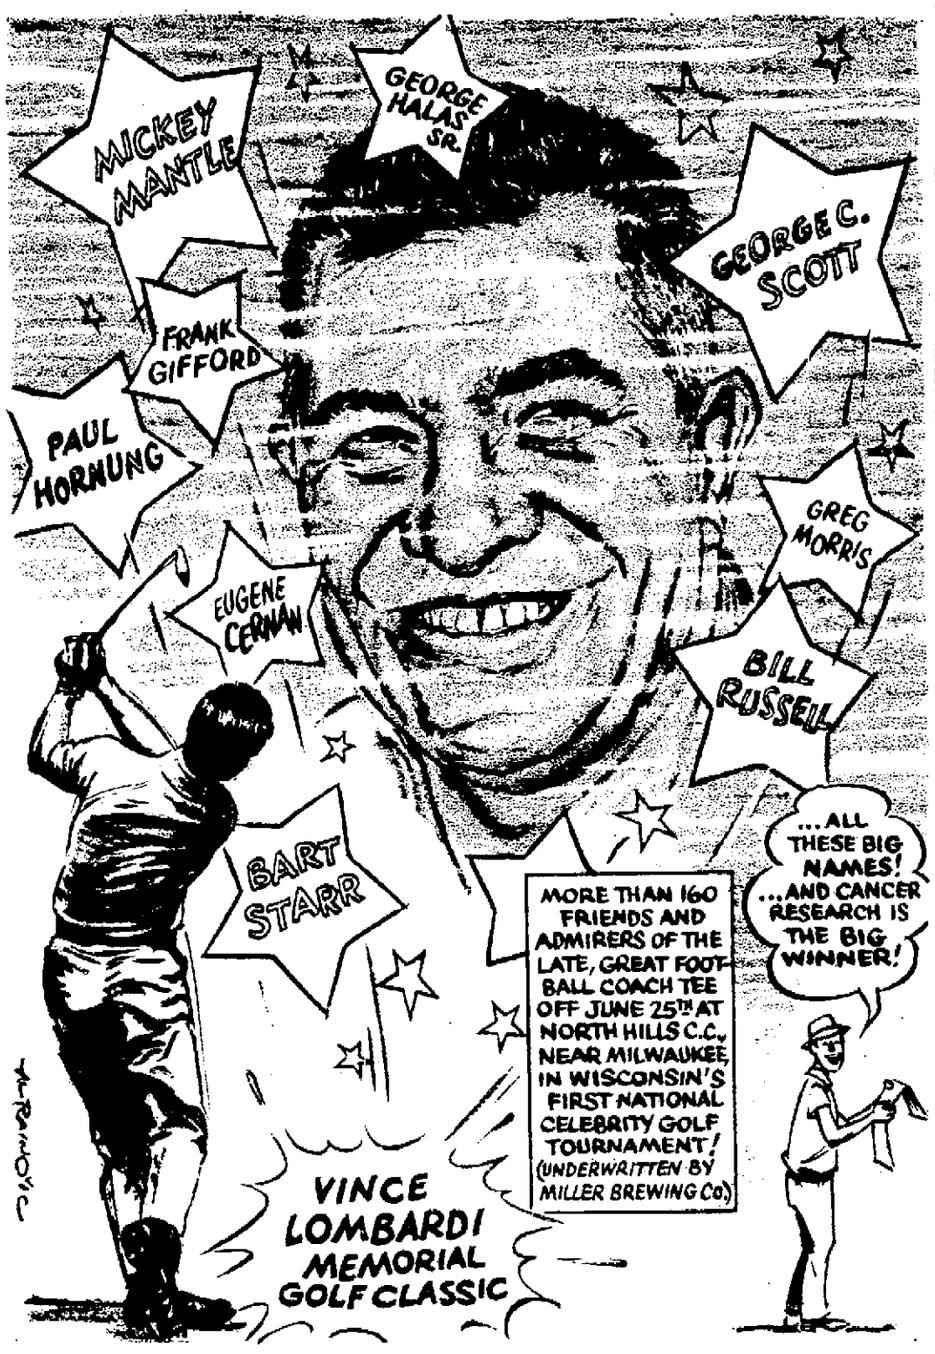
15-7 Mark

The Royals, who were suffering only their seventh loss in the last 22 games, never gave up. They kept chipping away and came within three runs of the lead before Johnson came in to shut them out over the final three innings.

And the Sox never really clinched the victory until the eighth when Melton singled, Rick Reichardt doubled and both of them scored on a double by Carlos May.

"That's the only time I really felt comfortable in the game," said Tanner.

The three-game series will end this afternoon when the Sox send Wilbur Wood (5-3) against Paul Splittorff (2-0).



At Milwaukee North Hills Friday

52 Celebrities to Participate In Lombardi Memorial Golf Test

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Some 52 celebrities, more than half current or former Green Bay Packers but including entertainers and even two astronauts, are scheduled to appear Friday for the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf Classic.

The four-man, best-ball meet at North Hills Country Club has a dual goal — to raise $20,000 for cancer research and for the Lombardi Memorial Fund at Georgetown University, and to honor in a special way the memory of Lombardi, the former Green Bay and Washington Redskins coach who died of cancer last Sept. 3.

Lombardi's widow, Marie, has sanctioned the tournament and a local brewery (Miller) is underwriting it to leave most of the receipts for charity.

Tournament director Don Tendick, a North Hills member, said Saturday about $18,000 already has been raised, with 1,000 advance tickets sold at $3 apiece and 60 amateurs entered at $250 a piece.

Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr, who with his wife are co-chairmen of the event, heads a list of entries with Packer ties.

They include Hall of Famer Don Hutson, the pass receiving great of the 1930s and 40s and several mainstays of the Lombardi-coached teams which won five National Football League and six division titles.

Among them are Tom Bettis, Bobby Dillon, Emlen Tunnell, Bill Forester, Forrest Gregg, Gary Knafelc, Jerry Kramer, Ron Kostelnik, Fuzzy Thurston, Henry Jordan, Johnny Symank, Paul Hornung, Dan Currie, Max McGee, Tim Temp and Jim Taylor, all retired.

Starr, Doug Hart, Donny Anderson, Dave Robinson, Jim Grabowski, Zeke Bratowski, Ray Nitschke and Lionel Aldridge will represent the current Packers.

Others scheduled to appear include Marquette basketball Coach Al McGuire; former Marquette star George Thompson, now of the Pittsburgh Condors; Chicago Bears' owner George Halas; former Boston Celtics great Bill Russell; ex-baseball stars Mickey Mantle and Vic Wertz, actor George C. Scott and astronauts Eugene Cernan and Jack Lousma.

"This isn't just a one-shot thing," Tendick said. "We hope this tournament goes on for 100 years."

Mrs. Lombardi and her son, Vince Jr., are scheduled to attend.

Time Trials Begin Saturday

32 Drivers Set to Compete In WIR 300-Lap Event

KAUKAUNA — With 32 drivers signed to compete and a few more entries expected to trickle in by the end of the week, everything appears in readiness for the RCA "Wisconsin International 300" here Sunday afternoon.

Well, almost everything.

"Ticket sales have been a little slow," admitted Ted Schmalz, WIR publicitor, Tuesday night. "I think the fans are remembering the rain at the race last month."

The Raceway, formerly the KK Sports Arena, has had a running battle with the weatherman in recent years whenever it has attempted to put on a major stock car show. Needless to say, Schmalz and other WIR officials are hoping for a sunny weekend to lure more spectators through the gates.

Activities at the half-mile, high-banked oval begin Saturday with time trials starting at noon and lasting until 5 p.m. If needed, more trials will be run Sunday between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Trophy Dash

Sunday's racing is slated to begin at 1:30 p.m. with a four-lap trophy dash, two 10-lap heat races and a 25-lap consolation test for drivers unable to qualify for the 300-lap main event. Twenty-five drivers are expected to qualify for the big race, which should run approximately one hour, 45 minutes.

Tickets for the time trials are priced at $3 and for the races $5.

ARCA (Auto Racing Club of America) is a miniature version of the nation's larger stock car organizations. USAC (United States Auto Club) and NASCAR (National Association of Stock Car Racing). ARCA drivers are allowed more modifications in their cars in order to attain higher track speeds than their counterparts.

The cars and drivers of ARCA hail mostly from the states of Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky although the defending champion Ramo Stott is from Keokuk, Iowa.

Stott, who pilots a 1971 Plymouth, is in the 300 field as is last year's No. 2 finisher in points, Iggy Katona of Willis, Mich. Katona remains a rugged competitor despite his age (54) and his number of years in racing (34).

As of two weeks ago, Stott led ARCA drivers in points with 1,180, while Springfield, Ohio's Tom Bowsher had amassed the runnerup total of 1,060 driving a 1971 Ford. Tom is the brother of Jack Bowsher on the USAC circuit.

Katona, the winner of the ARCA 300 at Daytona last February, rides in third place with 960 points behind the wheel of a 1970 Dodge. Andy Hampton, Louisville, Ky., and Bill Clemons, New Albany, Ind., rank fourth and fifth with 855 and 745 points, respectively.

Another top challenger in the field may be Red Farmer of Hueytown, Ala., who has been racing 21 years and owns 85 feature wins in three years.

Three drivers who do most of their running in USAC will compete Sunday. They are Ev Fox, Lenny Blanchard and Bill Nelson. Blanchard has run in Arca often enough, however, to rank seventh in points behind the wheel of a '71 Ford.

Fans attending Sunday's race can expect to watch all the action of a major one with pit stops for fuel and tire changes. Cars are expected to attain speeds of near 110 m.p.h. on the straightaways.

Wet Grounds Halt Tilt

Cedar Rapids Invades Foxes' Field Tonight

Wet grounds forced the cancellation of Tuesday night's scheduled Midwest League game between Appleton and Waterloo.

After Waterloo pitcher Greg Hammon fell to the ground when trying to run off the mound to protect the plate after a wild pitch, the umpires ordered a 30-minute delay.

When conditions did not improve satisfactorily after the 30 minutes, the game was ended with Appleton leading 2-0.

Ross Sapp opened the bottom of the inning with a double down the third base line. He was out at second on Brian Downing's fielder's choice grounder. Jerry Hairston singled to left, but was removed on Lamar Johnson's fielder's choice.

With runners on first and third, big Sam Ewing doubled down the left field line, with Downing scoring and Johnson holding at third.

Hammon then uncorked a wild pitch, with Johnson scoring.

Hammon tried to get off the mound to cover the plate, but he fell to his knees and the umpires called for the delay.

Cedar Rapids moves into Goodland Field tonight.

Expos Purchase Third Baseman

MONTREAL (AP) — Jim Fanning, general manager of Montreal Expos, announced Tuesday that the National League baseball club has purchased third baseman-outfielder Stan Swanson from Winnipeg, the Expos' International League farm team.

At Winnipeg, Swanson was hitting .350 and had seven home runs and 33 runs batted in.

Rain Spoils Brewers' Bid Vs. California

'When It Rains, It Soars,' Bristol Says After Early Washout

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers and California Angels were rained out Tuesday night, which inspired the pun of the week from Brewer Manager Dave Bristol:

"When it rains, it Soars," Bristol said.

The Brewers had a 2-0 lead when the rains came in the third inning with Milwaukee runners on first and second. Hank Soar's umpiring crew waited an hour and 35 minutes before calling it quits, rescheduling the game as part of a twi-night doubleheader tonight.

Skip Lockwood was pitching and had driven in the Brewer runs before the game was called, and the incident was strikingly similar to one May 21. At that time, the Brewers were leading Kansas City 4-1 and were two outs away from a victory for Lockwood when Soar's crew called that game.

Frank Lane, the Brewers director of baseball operations, had severely criticized Soar on the earlier occasion, and did so again Tuesday night.

"It's stopped raining right now," Lane said after the game was postponed. "What's more, Tommy Ferguson (a Brewer official) gave him (Soar) an official notice from the weatherman a half hour before he called it, that it would rain for a maximum of 30 to 45 minutes and then stop.

"If he's so happy to go home, why does he bother to show up?" Lane said.

Bill Parsons and Lew Krausse were scheduled to pitch in tonight's twi-nighter, opposed by California's Andy Messersmith and Eddie Fisher.

Paired Against Italian

Net Ace Tom Gorman Gaining Confidence

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Tom Gorman, American tennis star and Wimbledon giant-killer, faced his second match today—with the turf drying out in the sun and his confidence sky-high.

The 25-year-old player from Seattle, Wash., was paired against Ezio Di Matteo, Italy's fourth-ranked man. Gorman appeared to have a much easier task than in the first round, when he eliminated eighth-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

"Every hour of play and practice on English grass makes me more confident," Gorman said after playing in a men's doubles on the center court last night.

"And this sunny weather seems more like Wimbledon. On the first day things were tricky, with the turf soft after rain and the wind blowing."

Began to Bounce

Tuesday as the sun shone and the wind dropped, the ball began to bounce for the big servers. It looked like the weather to help Stan Smith, the 6-foot-4 giant from Pasadena, Calif., who is rated by many experts as the main challenger to the top ranking Australians.

Smith, the No. 4 seed, had to meet young John Paish of Britain in the second round.

"It won't be too easy," said Smith. "Look what he did in his first match."

Paish, son of former Davis Cup star Geoff Paish, upset contract professional Andres Gemeno of Spain on the damp and windy opening day.

Other seeded Americans in the second round are Arthur Ashe, of Gum Spring, Va., who faced Patrick Proisy of France, and Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla., who had to play British contract professional Roger Taylor.

Women Stars

Most of the leading women stars got through their first round matches Tuesday without trouble.

Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Mrs. Nancy Richey Gunter, of San Angelo, Tex., both won.

But Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., who is trying to win back the Wimbledon crown she lost two years ago, drew a bye into the second round against Wendy Gilchrist

Not Representing U.S. Policies

Alcindor Visiting 'Brothers'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lew Alcindor, leader of a Milwaukee Bucks delegation which has been warmly received on a basketball tour of Africa, said Tuesday he is not in Africa to represent U.S. policies but "to meet some of my brothers."

According to cables received at the State Department from U.S. foreign service officers, Alcindor told newsmen in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, that he opposes U.S. policies on Indochina and on racial matters.

"The purpose of my trip here was to meet some of my brothers from the other side of the Atlantic," the cables quoted Alcindor.

Sketchy Information

The 7-foot-2 Alcindor, who led the Bucks to the National Basketball Association title last month, is accompanying Coach Larry Costello and star guard Oscar Robertson on the State Department-sponsored tour of Africa.

The cables give only sketchy information on Alcindor's criticism of the U.S. role in Indochina and of its racial policies, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel's Washington Bureau.

Alcindor also said he would decline an invitation to visit South Africa because of that nation's racial separatist policy.

"I would never accept an invitation to visit South Africa," he said. "I'm not going any place where I am treated as a second class citizen."

Alcindor and his bride of May 28 plan to visit Mecca, holy city of the Islamic faith, after the tour ends Saturday. Alcindor said recently he wishes to be addressed by his Islamic name, Kareem Abdul Jabbar. Stories in the African press refer to Alcindor as Jabbar.

Although basketball is comparatively new to Africa, information gathered by the State Department indicates the Bucks' delegation has been drawing large crowds throughout its tour.

They reportedly drew the largest crowd ever to see a basketball game in Nigeria, along with a crowd of 7,000 in Senegal.

Axelrod Knuckelbarger can't stomach "Belly Leather"

"Belly Leather" is for dime-store wallets—not for Allen-Edmonds. They insist on the top 10% of fine calfskin. They cut it with the grain to prevent wrinkles and pinching. They mold it around hand-crafted lasts. They stitch it with tender loving care (no nails, please). Craftsmen like Axelrod do everything possible to make you comfortable. In short, they care for your comfort . . . and it does make a difference. You feel it the instant you slip into a pair of Allen-Edmonds. You feel it months later, too. Slip into a pair today.

Birds Find Another Pitcher in Split With Nats; Twins Whip A's

Associated Press Sports Writer

With a starting pitching rotation that had produced 30 complete games in 2½ months the one thing the Baltimore Orioles didn't seem to need was another starting pitcher

But Earl Weaver the dandy little manager of the Orioles, handed the baseball to anew starter Tuesday night and now Grant Jackson has given the pitching - rich Birds another wing

Jackson and Tom Dukes combined for a seven-hit shutout Tuesday night as Baltimore blanked Washington 2-0 earning a split of their twi-night doubleheader The Senators had taken the first game 8-6

Indians Split

In other American League action Tuesday Minnesota walloped Oakland 10-1 Chicago rapped Kansas City 11-6 Detroit split a doubleheader with New York winning 7-4 and then losing 2-1 and Cleveland divided a before losing 2-0 California's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

Weaver has stuck with a rotation of Jim Palmer Mike Cuellar Dave McNally and Pat Dobson all season and Jackson's start in Tuesday's nightcap was the first this year for any Oriole pitcher other than those four

In fact Jackson acquired in a winter trade with Philadelphia, had worked in only nine games and pitched just 14 innings all season before getting his start That was a far call from what he was used to in Philadelphia where he worked 403 innings in the last two seasons

Jackson lasted into the seventh inning and ran into more trouble from a blister than he did from the Senators Tom Dukes another ex-National Leaguer, got the last seven outs to nail down the victory with Merv Rettenmund's fifth inning homer accounting for the only run Baltimore needed

Buford Homers

In the opener Paul Lindblad hurled six hitless innings in relief to earn the victory after Cuellar blew an early 4-0 lead Don Buford had a three-run homer for Baltimore and Don Mincher added a two-run shot for the Senators

Minnesota backed Jim Perry's three-hit pitching with a four home run assault that destroyed Oakland

Rich Reese stroked two homers and Tony Oliva and Harmon Killebrew tagged one apiece as the Twins made Perry's 11th victory easy Reggie Jackson had two of the A's three hits including his 16th homer

Reese, Killebrew and Oliva each drove in three runs and Killebrew's homer was the 498th of his career

Chicago exploded for eight runs in the second inning with Bill Melton's two-run homer capping the rally and the White Sox ripped Kansas City

Bats In Two

Jay Johnstone had doubled two runs home and Rich McKinney singled two more across before Melton's shot as the Sox scored all their runs in the inning before a man was retired

Landwehr Dealt First Little Loop Loss by Realty

Roth Realty handed Landwehr Materials its first loss of the season last week to gain a tie for first place in the GFC Little League

The score was 24-16 Both teams are now 4-1

Suburban Electric scored four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to trip Baur Truck, 13-12. Baur overcame an early 6-0 deficit to tie the game, 8-8, in the sixth and to take a 12-9 lead after six and a half innings

Suburban is now 2-3 while Baur Truck dropped to 1-4

Northern State Bank upset Garrow Oil Company by scoring a 7-6 win Northern tallied one run in the last of the seventh to win, and knock Garrow from a tie for first Garrow is now 3-2, and Northern, 2-3

Sonny Siebert notched his 100th major league victory, a six-hitter, that eased Boston past Cleveland in the second game of their doubleheader The victory was Suebert's 10th this season and ended a four-game losing streak for the Red Sox pitcher

George Scott's two run homer was enough to give Siebert his first victory in more than three weeks

In the opener, Cleveland exploded for seven runs in the sixth inning with Chris Chambliss delivering two hits and pinch hitter Frank Baker ripping a bases-loaded double to key the big inning

Stan Bahnsen hurled his sixth straight complete game victory, beating Detroit to earn a split of the doubleheader for the Yankees New York got Bahnsen two quick runs on Jerry Kenney's double and singles by Bobby Murcer and Jake Gibbs and the right-hander made them stand up for his seventh victory of the season

Dick McAuliffe's two-run homer touched off a four-run Detroit rally in the ninth inning of the opener that wiped out a 3-2 Yankee lead

Vietnam Articles Raise Many Questions

It's doubtful that any news story in recent years has caused the stir that came from the New York Times and Washington Post articles based on a study of the Vietnamese conflict conducted by the Pentagon.

The Nixon Administration reacted immediately, charged that the documents were classified — which they were — and a breach of national security, something so far not proved and, from the court decision, judicially at least disproved. Wisconsin Democrats censured the administration of President Lyndon Johnson for "deceiving the nation about decisions to escalate in Vietnam." Republicans and Democrats have disagreed among themselves as to the importance of the documents and the ethics of the editors who decided to publish them.

But why has there been such an extensive reaction? As far as the first three articles in the Times are concerned, nothing really startling or new was mentioned except that there was documentary evidence that suspicions and claims about how we were sucked into Vietnam were true. At least to the layman, no security secrets were laid bare. There is understandable anger about leaks of material which had been classified. But this is largely a technical matter with little reference to the contents of the documents themselves.

However, it may be in this category that the major concern exists. How are such classifications determined? Who decides what and when material about military and diplomatic activities is to be open to the American public? Are only those who may be embarrassed about a possible error in judgment to be consulted? Or have our foreign policies become the property of a handful of professionals whose reputations would be injured by revelation?

When we examine the Times stories and how we became mired in Indochina a possible answer to questions about security is suggested. Had the public known about the raids on North Vietnam, the contingencies planned just in case, the doubts from our intelligence sources over the chances for success, the risks that were taken, would they have stood for the decisions?

Had the gradual escalation succeeded in bringing North Vietnam to negotiations or concessions, we would have lauded the Johnson Administration in later years when the facts became known. No one wants to take credit for failure and the reaction to the articles may be our seeking for a scapegoat for policies that the majority of Americans might have favored in the desire to deter Communist aggression.

In his decision rejecting the Justice Department's plea for a permanent injunction against further publishing of the Pentagon study, Federal Judge Murray Gurfein defended the need of "the free flow of information so that the public will be informed about the government and its actions ..... Security also lies in the value of our free institutions. A cantankerous press, an obstinate press, an ubiquitous press, must be suffered by those in authority in order to preserve the even greater value of freedom of expression and the right of the people to know."

A vehement critic of the Times story, General Maxwell Taylor, Ambassador to Saigon at a time when much of the story was developing, has insisted that the revelations are a threat to our security. This seems to be the military mind at its ultimate. We have long since discarded, at least in theory, the "theirs not to reason why theirs but to do or die" philosophy. We suspect the development of such policies in the future will be extremely difficult thanks to the Times articles.

The Sales Tax on Margarine

The fragility of politicians' convictions and the elasticity of their memories are sometimes illustrated by lesser decisions of government, but they are nevertheless revealing about the chillingly easy accommodations that politicians can make when it suits their purposes.

The other day the Wisconsin assembly voted in favor of a bill that would continue the five cents a pound plus state excise tax on margarine that emerged as a compromise a few years ago when the legislature relented on the harsh embargo against the colored product so long maintained in Wisconsin law, and reduced the punitive 15 cents a pound tax on the uncolored margarine that had stood for more than 30 years.

That was a considerable victory for the urban constituencies of Wisconsin and their mostly Democratic representatives in Madison who had exploited the "sales tax on food" represented in this inexcusable impost. It was understood at the time that the legislators of both parties representing mostly the consumer interest did not want to alienate entirely the farm constituencies of their state parties on a question that was historically represented as protecting the farmers' market for butterfat.

Nevertheless, the revised law ostentatiously included an expiration date in 1972. The obvious thrust of the assembly's action is to repudiate that implicit agreement, and to keep a discriminatory, egregious, and utterly indefensible food tax on the books. Small wonder that in some parts of this country we are regarded as rubes.

Democrats have mined rich electoral ore out of their posture on sales tax resistance during the last decade.

Much of the electorate has obviously taken such protestations and assurances in earnest. But the action in proposing the continuation of the margarine tax beyond the declared and intended date of expiration, combined with other contradictions and reversals, may inspire some thoughtful reconsideration by many voters who believed them.

Last year the Democratic state platform as adopted by the party delegate convention condemned the additions to the general sales tax list of such things as clothing, fuel and power as unfair, unnecessary and unwise. This year there is a Democratic governor. He could have proposed the deletion of those commodities from the taxable list. He did not.

Democrats have overwhelming control of the state assembly. That house could initiate such a bill and submit it to the senate as a challenge. It has not and evidently does not intend to do so. The new Democratic convention platform is silent on the issue.

Now there is a vote showing a desire to retain an exceptionally high tax on a food product — perhaps equalling an average of 10 per cent in contrast to the standard four per cent on other taxable items — in a cool repudiation of previous positions. It is the more notorious because this is truly a levy upon the poorest among us. As the margarine makers never tire of reminding, they are selling in competition with "that higher priced spread".

Chinese Lanterns Light Up Social

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for June 10, 1871.

On Wednesday evening last there was an unusually large and pleasant gathering of Appleton's good citizens at the residence of the Rev. J. L. Steele, to enjoy the church social appointed at that place.

Mrs. Steele and Mrs. A.J. Smith united in receiving the company, and by their happy graces of hospitality made their numerous guests participants of the general merriment and enjoyment of this occasion.

The grounds were beautifully lighted up with Chinese lanterns, while transparencies bid "all welcome" to the fairy-like scene.

Naught occurred to mar the festivities, save the moments flew by only too rapidly and at a late hour the guests returned to their homes to dream of the event, and anticipate the next social.

These gatherings are becoming a noticeable feature of Appleton society, increasing in interest constantly.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, June 19, 1946.

The first meeting of the Dorothy Wiley Circle of First Baptist Church was held the previous evening at the home of its leader, Mrs. Marin Phillips. Mrs. R.B. Kopenhefer was assistant leader and devotional chairman. Mrs. E.J. Kimpel was appointed telephone and reading chairman; Mrs. Carl Elias, flower chairman, and Mrs. E.E. Turney, reporter.

The recently organized Town Club held its first social function with a semi-formal dance at Riverview Country Club." L.V. Forman was president; M.L. Downs, vice president; Mrs. C.J. West Jr., secretary, and L.R. Graef, treasurer.

Mrs. Leslie Pease was in Milwaukee attending the meeting of the recently elected board of directors of the state Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Pease was the new state registrar.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, June 21, 1961.

Ten members of Girl Scout Troop 19 of Holy Cross Church, Kaukauna, earned the Marian award for religious activities. They were Marsha Egan, Kathleen Busse, Claire Ann Heller, Judy Wentzel, Patricia Minkebige, Janet Driessen, Barbara Hoehne, Bonnie Femal, Linda Yingling and Lynn Wiesler.

Menasha was to get a new pavilion for Smith Park as a gift from the Gilbert Paper Foundation, Inc. The presentation was made the previous evening at the Menasha Council meeting with Mayor John Klein and Linus Pfankuch, chairman of the park and recreation board receiving the plans from T.M. Gilbert, president of the paper firm.

Miss Sharon Lee Zurilla was installed as president of Theta Rho Club of Appleton at Odd Fellows Hall. Miss Linda Buchanan was vice president, Miss Jean Hahn and Miss Veronica Jacoby, recording and financial secretaries, respectively, and Miss Doris Gresl, treasurer.

Johnson Tried to Deter Reds In Vietnam; Power Display Failed

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

In retrospect, it is seldom hard to construct conspiracy theories of history. For many years, distinguished Southern historians, for example, worked diligently to demonstrate that President Lincoln had deliberately tricked the South into the Civil War, that after the innocent Confederates fired on Fort Sumter, Lincoln rubbed his hands with glee and used the incident to justify mobilizing Union troops. Similarly, Franklin D. Roosevelt was attacked in immense detail by so distinguished an American historian as Charles A. Beard for instigating the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor. These studies had a lunatic logic — indeed, I found rereading the classic on Lincoln a hypnotic experience — but they suffer from one overwhelming liability: they are not true.

Lincoln did not want war. Roosevelt did want war, but with the Nazis, not the Japanese. In fact, if Hitler had not gone completely off his rails and declared war on the United States, we might well have gone roaring off into the Pacific in 1942 and left Europe to its fate. So let us, as we read the memos floating back and forth between assistant secretaries, ask the simple question: Why would Lyndon Johnson have wanted to get mixed up in a war in Indochina? He was well aware of the unpopularity of wars, he recalled vividly the treatment

Roche

Harry Truman had received over our Korean intervention, he wanted above all to get down to the serious business of the Great Society.

Must Plan for Contingencies

The Joint Chiefs are paid to plan for wars. They have over at the Pentagon an immense welfare program (Aid to Dependent Colonels, I call it) dedicated to contingency planning. (Back in the 1930s they spent a couple of years deciding how to cope with a combined attack by the British and the Japanese!) You name a country, they have a man on it equipped with detailed maps, target analysis, etc. Obviously a good deal of this is necessary in our uncertain world, but the important thing to note is that most contingencies never occur.

Presidents, on the contrary, are paid to keep us out of wars whenever that is conceivably possible. And while President Johnson, like his predecessors, was committed to containing Communist aggression (whether monolithic or polycentric), the first item on his agenda was how to do this and avoid war. Viewed from this perspective, Step Number One was deterrence, that is, letting the enemy know that if it did certain things, it would get hurt. When deterrence works, nobody cheers. (It has worked, notably with NATO and with Red China.) It hardly took a task force to devise the Tonkin Gulf Resolution; it was simply a rewrite of the one passed by Congress in 1958 on the Formosa Straits, which worked.

Unfortunately, as suggested here before, Ho Chi Minh was not impressed. So the next step was to raise the ante, employing a minimal force level to indicate that we mean business. Enter the airpower spokesmen. Now whatever the assistant secretaries may have written to each other and despite the optimism of the "Air Marshals" (as those of us who distrusted the policy called them), bombing North Vietnam was seen as a way of avoiding war. Hanoi, it was argued, would appreciate the seriousness of the American commitment to the Republic of Vietnam, calculate that the stakes were too high, and call off its "liberation" movement.

There is no need to detail the rest of the gloomy progression. Johnson ended up with more than 500,000 men in Vietnam, and a full-scale land war, by opting at each stage for the least-worst alternative. With retrospective omniscience — which is a widespread malady these days — one can argue that he should have gotten off the escalator in 1964 or '65. But history is a very different thing when you are approaching it head-on, rather than with 20-20 hindsight. And one could (as I do) suggest that — without getting into disputes on how the war was fought — the President's reluctant decisions were a natural and legitimate consequence of the American people's then staunch commitment to freedom for South Vietnam.

State Unemployment Compensation Law Drastically Extended

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Half a century ago a few state officers and University of Wisconsin economists who were regarded as visionaries started serious study of the means that could be employed by the state to provide insurance indemnities to wage-earners during period of unemployment.

In 1932 Wisconsin adopted the first unemployment compensation law in the country. Perhaps it would not have been enacted then except for the profound dislocations resulting from the deep economic depression of the time. Nevertheless, it put Wisconsin on the national political map for inventiveness and responsiveness to the changing needs of its people.

The impact of the decision was perhaps best known about three years later when the Congress, in the fervor of the early New Deal, wrote such a program for the country as a whole with provision for the integration of state programs which quickly spread to embrace all of the states.

Revision Is Approved

The other day the Wisconsin Legislature in a biennial review of that program as directed by a statutory advisory committee of employer and employe representatives approved a comprehensive revision and extension of that unemployment compensation act.

The result was probably the most important legislation in the field by Wisconsin since the pioneering original. For example, the new law when fully effective next year, will provide for the first time virtually universal coverage. Heretofore, workers in employment units of four or more were covered and only the employers of four or more were required to pay the payroll taxes to maintain the account reserves.

The new legislation will cover every business operating for profit that has one or more employes on a payroll for 20 weeks in a calendar year. This is perhaps as far as coverage can be extended in practical terms.

The remarkable fact of the new legislation, however, is not in its bold extension of coverage or in its extension of benefits, which is also generous in any definition, or in the modification of policy rules otherwise, but in the fact that the changes were achieved almost without public notice.

Stirred Much Discussion

The original Wisconsin act was written at about the time that this reporter was en route to college to study politics and history and economics and the rest. In Sterling Hall on the University of Wisconsin campus there were excited lectures and seminars and term papers on this far-reaching achievement in social legislation.

Yet today a major expansion to make it literally universal in its application is achieved with perfunctory discussion and a few lines of notice filed by wire service reporters who have become accustomed to these routine modifications in each succeeding legislative session.

But the achievement is enormous in perspective. Wisconsin has literally socialized the cost of unemployment to a major degree, and showed the way to the greatest industrial nation on earth.

Many Workers Covered

Among the state's financial reserves today is the formidable sum of about $300 million earmarked to provide benefits as buffers between lost jobs and new ones for 1.1 million Wisconsin men and women, or about one in four. New amendments brought in 40,000 small employers as payroll contributors for the first time, virtually without a whimper.

Besides being first, Wisconsin has consistently been among the most generous in the provision of benefits to persons losing their jobs through no fault of their own. It remains in the top rank.

The new law will provide benefits to workers in higher pay classes of $82 to $84 a week for a period as long as 39 weeks. It is perhaps not surprising, in retrospect, that grandfather was skeptical when this idea was introduced to the political community in the early 1920s.

'Research Campaign' Won't Cure Cancer

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the silliest projects proposed by President Nixon is the mounting of an enormous "research campaign" to find the cause and cure of cancer. Science simply doesn't work this way, as its history adequately shows.

The odds are long that, when a cancer cure is found, it will come from a different field of research — one that is not looking specifically for a cancer cure. Thus, by diverting funds from scientific research in general to this specific goal, the search is actually being hampered rather than furthered.

To lay minds, there is little difference between "mounting a campaign" to land men on the moon and doing the same to seek out the causes and remedies for cancer. But there is a world of difference between the two: the difference that exists between "practical wisdom" and "theoretical wisdom."

In practical wisdom, the final end is the first principle. That is, we know where the moon is, and our task is to arrive there as safely as possible. Everything is subordinated and focussed on this end, which is plainly in sight.

In theoretical wisdom, the first principle is knowledge for its own sake, not for the sake of a final end. The experimenter does not know where his experiment is going to take him and his and is the gaining of knowledge, not the achievement of a predetermined goal.

This is, in the main, how great discoveries are made in all the sciences — not by men who are looking for something in particular, but by men who stumble upon something valuable in their pursuit of broader and deeper knowledge. Atomic fission, for example, came by way of an abstract mathematical formula, not from any heavily funded research campaign to penetrate the atom.

Most Americans are infatuated with technology, and thus fail to appreciate what the enterprise called science really is. Technology merely carries out what theoretical science has already pointed to; it is a blind giant, implementing the tasks assigned to it by theory. And if theory is ignored, or slighted, all the money and machinery in the world cannot bring technology an inch closer to an ultimate goal.

When and if the cure of cancer emerges from a laboratory, it is most likely that the researchers will have been engaged upon some quite irrelevant pursuit, as Fleming's discovery of penicillin occurred from the "carelessness" of an assistant, and Wohler's synthesis of urea while looking for something else entirely. You can bet on it.

Booths Targets

NEW YORK (AP) — In 12 months through April, New York subway change booths have been involved 771 times in holdups or attempted holdups. There are 829 subway change booths on the 237-mile subway system.

Bus holdups have ceased since bus passengers are required to have the exact fare (30 cents or a subway token).

Prepared for Any Disorders

Bomb Squads Protect Buckeye Stadium

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Ohio State's unbeaten Buckeyes crunched toward a touchdown against bitter rival Michigan as 83,000 loyal lunged fans erupted in the giant horseshoe at Columbus.

Michigan one-yard line ... first and goal.

"That's when we had to call for the bomb," says Ohio State Athletic Director Ed Weaver. "And this bomb had nothing to do with our great quarterback, Rex Kern."

This bomb was the dynamite kind. At least that's what the anonymous telephone caller had told Ohio State University officials.

"Our decision was to advise the crowd," Weaver said "We worried there might be some wild panic. Boy, were we relieved when the crowd reacted by applauding, cheering and laughing."

No Panic

Ohio State scored and won the game. No bomb was found.

Weaver was speaking on campus disorders involving sports facilities. His Tuesday audience was composed of conventioneers of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

"Our guidelines are established by the attorney general of the State of Ohio," he said. "We have a squad of men placed in our football stadium on Thursday to watch the place... they don't leave until gametime on Saturday."

There are other precautions on the gigantic Ohio State University campus where civil disorders erupted 'ast year and forced a temporary closing of all buildings.

"We also have the very efficient Ohio Highway Patrol to come in Saturday morning and comb the stadium," Weaver continued. "On top of that, we have the Columbus City Bomb Squad to check it over before the gates are opened at noon."

Like many big - time sports operations, Ohio State is prepared for almost any type of disorder.

"If something breaks out during the game," Weaver said, "if the referee thinks it's serious, the game is stopped. We have a liasion man with a hotline telephone on the bench. The referee comes to him." On the "hot line" are Weaver, the OSU president and campus security boss.

If the disturbances becomes heated, the teams will be sent to the locker rooms — by Big Ten rule. The game may even be postponed, a decision that rests with the two schools' athletic directors.

"It appears to me that the future on our campuses is much brighter than a year ago," said the gray-haired Weaver. "The entire situation is better."

Nevertheless, Ohio State will have its bomb checks before 1971 games, hoping a crackpot call won't come this year ... hoping even more that one of the 83,000 won't slip the real things into the stadium.

Appleton '9' Tips Kimberly In Legion Tilt

Kaukauna Limited To 5 Hits, but Downs Little Chute

KIMBERLY — John Allen scattered six hits and struck out 11 to lead Appleton's American Legion team to a 4-2 win over Kimberly Tuesday night.

The loss was the first against three wins for Kimberly in the Northern Division (Upper Section) of the Fox Valley Legion League. Appleton is now 2-0 in the league.

Both Kimberly runs came in the sixth on three hits and an error.

A wild pitch, an error, and Dwight Mueller's run-scoring ground out produced three Appleton runs in the first.

Dwight Mueller rapped an RBI single in the fourth for Appleton's final score.

In a game Monday, Kaukauna used five hits and 10 Little Chute errors to score a 10-6 victory.

Kaukauna scored six runs on four hits, two walks, and four errors in the second. The winners added two runs in the fourth and seventh innings.

Little Chute scored one in the second, three in the third and two in the fourth.

Third Open Title For Miss Caponi?

By D. BYRON YAKE

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Donna Caponi will be shooting for her third straight U.S. Women's Open golf championhsip this week at Erie's Kahkwa Club.

The $33,000 72-hole tournament with a $5,000 first prize, gets under way Thursday.

Despite a double bogey on the final hole last year at Muskogee, Okla. and a final round 77, Miss Caponi still won the 1970 Open by one stroke with a 287.

In 1969, she defeated Peggy Wilson by one stroke at Scenic Hill Country Club in Pensacola, Fla. with a 294.

No other golfer on the women's tour has won the U. S. Open more than twice in succession although Mickey Wright and Betsy Rawls took the championship four times in their careers.

Kahkwa Club, a 6,306-yard course with a par 72, sits just outside Erie. Although short, the course demands accuracy. It is tree lined, well trapped and hilly.

Indian Namesake

Kahkwa was the name of an Indian tribe that settled near Lake Erie when the country was a forest. Established in 1892, it was near enough to the city to be reached by horse and carriage, yet remote enough to be away from the city.

In it's early days, some holes were known by name as well as number.

No. 12 was known as "Long Tom," since it was the longest hole on the course — 525 yards. However, for television coverage — ABC will cover the final two rounds — the nines have been reversed and it is No. 3 for the Open.

No. 13, or No. 4 for the Open, was called the "Schoolhouse" because there was a schoolhouse in the background.

No. 14, now No. 5, was called the "Alps" because it is up and down a hill.

The fairways are narrow at Kahkwa, the rough is not particularly high, but tangled and unwieldy which could some trouble.

The course record of 70 was set by Mary Lena Faulke in 1959 in the Western Womens Open. The tournament was won that year by Patty Berg.

The field of 149 women golfers will be trimmed to only the 40 lowest scorers and any tying for 40th place after the first 36 holes of play.

McCovey May Have Surgery

San Francisco's First Baseman Now On Disabled List

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —The San Francisco Giants placed first baseman Willie McCovey on the disabled list Tuesday night and indicated he may undergo surgery on his left knee.

After the game with the Chicago Cubs, Dr. E. C. Sailer said he and a specialist had run some tests on McCovey's ailing knee and found some cartilage damage.

But, said Sailer, the team physician, before they can go ahead with surgery they want to fly McCovey to Los Angeles where he will meet Wednesday with Dr. Robert Kerlan, a well-known specialist who has operated on such professional sports stars as Jerry West, Wilt Chamberlain and Sandy Koufax.

Decision Later

Dr. Sailer said the decision would be made only after McCovey sees Kerlan.

To replace McCovey, the Giants called up Ed Goodson from their Phoenix farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

McCovey, whose knee has been bothering him more and more recently, has a current batting average of .292 in 53 games this season with 11 home runs and 39 RBIs.

He ranks high in the major league career home run list with 363 for his career. He was the National League's most valuable player in 1969.

Nolan Gets Needed Help to Top Phils; NY Nips Pirates

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati's Gary Nolan, who couldn't get even a little help from his friends a few weeks ago, is beginning to pick up support in double doses.

Nolan, who has pitched in bad luck for most of the season, tossed a six-hitter Tuesday night to beat Philadelphia 6-1 with the backing of timely doubles by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and George Foster.

It was the second successive complete game victory for the 23-year-old right-hander, who had lost five in a row from May 19 to June 8 as his team scored a total of three runs behind him.

In other National League action, the New York Mets topped Pittsburgh 3-2; Atlanta trimmed Montreal 4-0; San Francisco blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0; St. Louis shaded Los Angeles 6-5 and Houston beat San Diego 4-2.

Nolan, an 18-game winner last season, got off to a 3-2 start this spring and then was beaten by Pittsburgh 6-1 on May 19. In his next four starts, he lost 2-1 to Philadelphia and Houston, 1-0 to Chicago on Ken Holtzman's no-hitter and 2-0 to Houston. During those four games, he permitted 22 hits in 30 innings—but the Reds managed just 14.

"I'm proud of Gary," said Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson. "He never squawked once. He's one of the best pitchers in the league."

The breaks began going for Nolan last Friday night when he scattered seven Atlanta hits and the Reds pounded out 12, including four doubles, a triple and two home runs, to beat the Braves 6-1.

Tuesday night, he limited the Phillies to an unearned run in the ninth inning, lowering his ERA to 2.71, while the Reds forged ahead 4-0 on run-scoring doubles by Perez and McRae in the fourth and a two-run double by Foster in the fifth.

Lee May's two-run single in the seventh wrapped it up for the Reds, who stroked 10 hits on the way to their 10th triumph in the last 14 games.

Phils' pilot Frank Lucchesi, whose club got only one hit in seven innings off Nolan on May 24 while beating him 2-1, was more impressed with the Cincinnati ace's latest showing.

"It was the best game I've ever seen Nolan pitch," Lucchesi said. "He had great control in this game.'

Rookie Charlie Williams blanked Pittsburgh on three hits for eight innings and reliever Danny Frisella chocked off a two-run Pirate rally in the ninth as the Mets gained ground in the East Division race.

Jerry Grote's run-scoring single in the eighth proved decisive for the Mets, who trail first-place Pittsburgh by 3½ games.

Ron Reed fired a three-hitter and the Braves struck for four runs in the third to top Montreal. Reed blanked the Expos on one hit—an infield single by losing pitcher Steve Renko—until the ninth.

Chris Speier's run-scoring single in the sixth sparked the Giants to their sixth straight victory for a 7½-game lead in the West.

Joe Torre, Lou Brock and Jerry McNertney divided nine of St. Louis' 14 hits and left-hander Steve Carlton, 11-3, stopped the Dodgers on six. The Cards broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth with a three-run rally capped by McNertney's second RBI single.

Joe Morgan's bases-loaded triple made the difference for the Astros, who capitalized on errors by Dave Campbell and Garry Jestadt for all their runs.

Fishing Spot Attractive

Ted Williams to Remain With Senators 'Unless I Get Fired'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manager Ted Williams said Tuesday he has no plans to quit the lowly Washington Senators even though the fish are biting at his fishing camp.

"It's a good time to leave," he said. "I called up to my camp and they told me the fish are biting. Ordinarily, this is not a good time.

"I always think about leaving," he continued. "But it's safe to say that unless I get fired I will finish out the year. I'm going to stick it out."

The discussion with Williams, and the fishing at his camp in Mirimichi, New Brunswick, came up before the Senators took on the Baltimore Orioles in a twinight double header.

The Senators are mired in last place in the American League East, 18 games behind the league leading Orioles.

Fun is Lacking

Williams, one of the game's finest hitters, was lured out of retirement three years ago by Washington owner Bob Short to manage the Senators.

"There's no fun in this game unless you keep your head above water," he said. "When you're playing .500 ball, you're just keeping your head up. I'm not having as much fun as I ought to have."

Prior to the doubleheader with Baltimore the Senators had lost 40 games while winning only 23 for a .365 average.

Williams said he enjoyed his first season back in baseball in 1969 after being out of the game 10 years but has been finding it difficult lately.

"Just being back in baseball was fun," said Williams, who played for the Boston Red Sox from 1939 through 1960 and is the last man to hit over .400. "Last year, I was up in the clouds because I thought we could do better but we didn't."

Fourth Place Effort

The Senators finished fourth during Williams' first year but dropped to sixth last season.

"We're going through an upsetting period right now," said Williams. "We're trying to go with youth. When you do it that way, you've got to expect a lot of games like last night. That was the worst game I've seen in three years. It was terrible."

The Orioles beat the Senators 7-2 Monday night with several of the younger players, including right fielder Larry Bittner and shortstop Toby Harrah, making mental errors that enabled runs to score.

Mrs. Dave Arthur Takes Honors in Swingettes Loop

Mrs. Dave Arthur had low gross, low putts and a par on No. 6 to lead the action in the YMCA Swingettes Golf League at the Reid Municipal Course Monday.

Mrs. Joseph Hayostek had low net and also recorded a par on No. 4. Mrs. Les Gauthier had a par on No. 2.

Next Monday the league will play at the Oakwood Hills Course in Combined Locks.

In the Flower Golf League Tuesday at Reid, there was a 2-way tie for first place in Class A Flight between Mrs. William Bartmann and Mrs. John Graff.

Class B was won by Mr. James Hickenbotham, Class C went to Mrs. Knight Blank and there was a 3-way tie for Class D between Mrs. Orville Strutz, Mrs. Reiny Hannemann and Mrs. Cyril Lippert.

Mrs. Bartmann has been named chairman of the Fun Day set for July 13 at the High Cliff Course and committee members are Mrs. Ed DeRoche, Mrs. Hickenbotham and Mrs. Don Streck.

Trevino Enters Western Tourney

CHICAGO (AP) — Lee Trevino, winner of Monday's play-off for the 1971 U.S. Open Golf title, will play in the Western Open Championship July 15-18 at Olympia Fields Country Club, officials said Tuesday.

Other entrants included former Western Open winner Doug Sanders, and former U.S. Open champions Orville Moody and Ken Venturi.

Cepeda Seeks Local Doctor to Check Knee

ATLANTA (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, Atlanta's $90,000-a-year first baseman, left for Puerto Rico Tuesday to see if his hometown doctor "can do something about my knee"

Cepeda, who carried a 299 lifetime batting average into his 14th major league season, has been in and out of the Braves' starting lineup One official said Cepeda is due to return to the club on Friday

Cepeda, who underwent surgery on his right knee in 1964, said he had talked with several doctors in the United States and all had told me "different things and nothing has helped"

This year Cepeda is hitting 285 with 14 home runs and 42 RBI

Cincinnati Joins Hockey League

FREEPORT, Bahamas (AP) — The American Hockey League has admitted a Cincinnati club, boosting the number of active teams to 11

The ten voting clubs of the league Monday gave unanimous approval for Buffalo to locate its inactive franchise in Cincinnati The new team will join the league's western division in the upcoming season

"Next year the league will have at least 12 teams because for the 1972-73 season New Haven will be in," said AHL's secretary-treasurer Gordon Anziano

Some 75 league representatives are meeting here through Thursday.

Shiloh Repeat Goes Back to 'Virginians'

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-8 Channel 5 — The Men From Shiloh repeats an episode from the days when the series was still The Virginian. John Anderson is the guest, as an old friend of James Drury, who talks Drury into a hunting trip and later reveals that the huntees are two-legged. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — The vulnerability of lawyers to charges that they are unethical is highlighted on Men at Law. Robert Foxworth is the man accused, and it's a beautiful frame he is placed in by his client and a woman who says she is the cline's sister. (R).

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — The Smith Family has the youngest (Michael-James Wixted) becoming friends with Arthur O' Connell, playing an old-time lawman who is being evicted by "landgrabbers." At least, that's how the tyke sees it and he has lots of problems reconciling the way things are today with the way they were in the Old West — especially when dad Henry Fonda seems to be siding with the bad guys. (R)

8-9 Channel 5 — Host Des O'Connor welcomes special guests Connie Stevens and Dom DeLuise to The Des O'Connor Show. Regular Jack D. Douglas is on hand to help put the emphasis on comedy.

9-10 Channel 5 — Four-in-One McCloud puts hero Dennis Weaver in an amusing position. He is assigned to Auxiliary Force VI, which turns out to be a woman's branch of the police department. He doesn't mind too much when he gets a look at some of the curvy cops, notably Ann Prentiss and Susan Saint James (R)

9:30-10 Channels 11-9 — NFL Action features Paul Brown, and his team, the Cincinnati Bengals.

10:30-11:30 Channel 2 — Medical Center stars Michael Burns as an honor student who, in recent months, has begun to show signs of violence. When he finally attacks a dean, nearly blinding the man, the police are ready to put him away But Dr Gannon (Chad Everett) finds what may be a physical cause for the young man's behavior — a tumor (R)

Attic Regulars Kay Kirchberg and Chuck Schuman play the leads in the summer theater's season opener, the Norman Krasna comedy "Watch the Birdie." The two have played opposite each other in two other Attic shows, "The Great Sevastians" and "Invitation to a March." The comedy starts Saturday and plays through July 10, skipping Mondays and July 4. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. weekdays and 7:15 p.m. Sundays.

Nutrition Value Found in Coffee

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Coffee can help people suffering from malnutrition, a scientist claimed here.

Dr. Jacque Pena of Portugal told the fifth colloqium on the chemistry of coffee that half to one cup of coffee per day can help people suffering from malnutrition overcome kwashiorkor, the disease caused by protein deficiency.

He said it normally takes 30 days to recover from kwashiorkor, but that coffee could cut this period down to 20 days.

Plaque in Center of U.S. Population Stolen

MASCOUTAH, Ill. (AP) — Farmer Lawrence B. Friederich's land near here has lost its plaque designating it as the population center of the United States.

Friederich, preparing Sunday to install a flag in a plaque commemorating a spot on the land as the center, reported the sign stolen.

"I don't think the sign was of great monetary value, but it's the idea of the thing," Friederich said. "The government probably will hold me responsible."

Glad You Asked That!

BY HY GARDNER

From readers around the country came this request. "While judging the 1971 Miss U.S.A. beauty pageant, please take an informal youth poll to show us the thinking of some of our new voters.' So we did And here are the results.

Q: In your opinion, who is the greatest man in the world today?

A: "My father," answered 27 of the 51 beauty queens. "Because I look up to him and he doesn't look down on me." Bob Hope and J. Edgar Hoover each drew two mentions Bob, "because even when things are glum he gives us fun — also for entertaining our GIs all over the world." Hoover, "because he's America's Rock of Gibraltar." Single votes went to Pope Paul VI, Wernher von Braun, astronaut Alan Shepard, Dr Christiaan Barnard, Dr. Paul Ehrlich, Sen. Barry Goldwater, Julian Bond, Albert Camus, and Paul Harvey.

Q: Voting for the first time, do you think young citizens will take the privilege seriously?

A: "Like naturalized Americans, we believe the new voters will take a greater pride and assume more responsibility than many native-born Americans who take the privilege for granted. But we must study the candidates and the issues and not necessarily vote like our parents. We'll have to do our homework many months before going to the polls."

Q: Would you cast your first vote for President Nixon's re-election? Or what other preferences have you?

A: Of the 51 girls, 22 said: "The President knows his job. He got his schooling as President Eisenhower's vice president . . . Has done as well as anyone could who inherited such gigantic problems, foreign and domestic . . . He knows more about the Vietnam situation than we do and certainly wants to end the war as soon as possible." No other potential candidate received more than candidate received more than two mentions, including Sens. Humphrey, Jackson, Muskie, Goldwater, Bayh, Hughes, McGovern, ex-Sen. McCarthy, Vice President Agnew, as well as Govs. Wallace and Reagan and — Bob Hope!

Q: If Sen. Edward Kennedy won the Democratic nomination — would you have any hangups about voting for him because of the Chappaquiddick incident?

A: Eight of the girls felt that the Mary Jo Kopechne tragedy could happen to anybody — "after all he's only human, and who knows if the press told the true story?" Several thought perhaps by 1976 the cloud might blow over and he'd stand a better chance than in '72. Five of the freshman voters said they were wary of Ted. "The name Kennedy is a great asset — but he's the weakest of the brothers." Two of the girls said they'd worry "if he'd have to make an instant decision like his brother Jack did about the Cuban-Russian missile crisis." Also, "it would depend on who ran against him."

Q: Do you admire Mrs. Martha Mitchell?

A: Most of the girls smiled at the mention of her name. But said they admired her candor. One thought she was too outspoken to have any future in politics — especially the diplomatic service.

Q: Whatever happened to Bobby Stevens since the Checkmates, Ltd., disbanded? — Aurora DeM., Columbus, Ohio.

A: Bobby formed a new dynamic soul combo which recently opened at the International in Las Vegas. He's also doing concert and holding informal "rap sessions" with the youth of whatever community he works in. Says he's trying to help heal the wounds that divided our nation.

Q: One of my favoite oldtime radio and record stars was Arthur Tracy, "The Street Singer." What does he think of today's singers? And what's he doing now? — E. R. Swithers, Paraskala, Ohio.

A: Tracy reveals he still makes infrequent appearances on TV and radio and cuts records from time to time. Also tours England regularly. "Though I must admit," he postscripts, "the playing time and dates are rapidly dwindling." Tracy's busy penning his autobiography, handling his vast investments, and sparking fund-raising drives. About rock singers, Arthur, now in his late 60s, explodes: "Such wild shrieking, and even this needs to be amplified! I'm afraid the next generation will grow up both deaf and voiceless. I don't see, under the present trend and strain, how these two senses can possibly survive!"

Move to Establish TV Hall of Fame

Would Honor Outstanding People in Field; Milton Berle in First Smash Hit

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A move is afoot to establish a television hall of fame complete with a television program each year to announce the latest winners of a niche.

The project, headed by a former NBC president who is now a communications consultant, Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, is altogether laudable—if baseball has one, why not TV?

The idea, of course, is to honor those who have made outstanding contributions to the medium over the years. Automatically included would be the scientists, developers and pioneers—Vladimir Zworykin, who invented the iconoscope camera and image-orthicon tube which made so much possible; Allen B. DuMont, who dreamed of equipment inexpensive enough to bring pictures and sound into homes rather than into theatres: David Sarnoff, who presided over the birth of network broadcasting.

No television hall of fame would be complete without Milton Berle, whose 1948 show was the young medium's first smash hit; Ed Sullivan, who transferred vaudeville from five-a-day to Sunday nights; Richard M. Nixon, who in 1952 with his "Checkers" speech suggested TV's potential as a force in politics.

Some recognition should go to the imaginative souls who came up with the first living room horse opera—probably William Boyd and his "Hopalong Cassidy" shows—and its first private eye, "Martin Kane."

Credit should be given for some fascinating benchmarks. There were the televised Senate hearings into organized crime in 1951 with the cameras focused on the hands of witness Frank Costello; there was Edward R. Murrow's 1954 assault on the tactics of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy; there were the spectacular performances of Mary Martin and Ethel Merman in the 1953 Ford 50th anniversary show and the first broadcast, in 1956, of the film classic "The Wizard of Oz." There was also Dennis James, the daytime game show host and the announcer who turned housewives into fans of professional wrestling.

Drama, Talk Shows

Some ercognition should go to the writers of original television drama that made the 1950s memorable—Paddy Chayefsky, Reginald Rose, Tad Mosel and others.

One form of entertainment unique to television is the late-night talk show. Some credit the 1950 "Broadway Open House" with the blonde dumb Dagmar as being the prototype for the Paars, Carsons and Cavetts Others believe it started with Steve Allen and the original "Tonight Show." Jack Paar, who succeeded Allen, turned it into something like an art form.

Singer Grace Slick To Undergo Plastic Surgery After Crash

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Concerts by the Jefferson Airplane will be canceled until the rock group's lead singer, Grace Slick, recovers from plastic surgery, a spokesman says.

Miss Slick was alone in her car when it hit a concrete wall on a foggy Golden Gate Bridge approach May 31. She was treated briefly at a hospital for a concussion, then released.

But a group spokesman said Tuesday Miss Slick must undergo plastic surgery for facial cuts suffered in the accident. He gave no details and didn't estimate when the singer might be able to appear again.

Name Flower in Verse To Win Printing Set

BY CAPPY DICK

Clues to the letters to be used in solving today's puzzle are hidden in the verse printed in the adjoining picture. If you follow the clues correctly you will spell the name of a flower.

If you then send in a contest entry that is not only correct, but is neat and original in appearance you will have a chance to win a local qualifying prize and a national grand prize.

The local prize is a pocket-size Cup-and-Ball Game which is lots of fun to play. The national prize, of which five are to be awarded, is a Superior Flash Printing Plant manufactured by the Superior Marking Equipment company for boys and girls to use in publishing their own miniature newspapers, menus, club notices, calling cards and similar printed products.

Rhyme Gives

The outfit includes an all-metal rotary printing press, 200 pieces of rubber type, rubber picture dyes, supplies of ink and paper, tools to use in setting type and operating the press, plus a booklet of instructions and ideas.

The press outfits will be awarded for the five neatest and most original contest entries received from any of the cities where this column is published, including the Fox Cities.

The verse discloses the puzzle solution if you study it carefully. When you know what the flower name is, clip out the picture, paste it on a sheet of paper, print the flower name beneath it, along with your own name, age, address and Zip Code number, and finally decorate the entry in any neat, original way with your paints, crayons or cutouts. Mail it to Cappy Dick's Midweek Printing Press Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the prize winners will be announced here and their awards will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

No Hazards at All in Blood Pressure Test

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson Is there any risk or hazard from the effects of a sphygmomanometer (blood pressure testing apparatus)? That is, can it possibly cause a rupture in the heart area, ballooning of an artery, etc ?

What actually is happening when the pressure test is being taken? — M.P P

No, no hazard at all The inflatable cuff is wrapped around an arm (sometimes a leg) and inflated until it shuts off the flow of blood in the artery. The shut-off is only momentary.

As you doubtless know, blood pressure is expressed in two figures, such as 140-90, which is spoken as "140 over 90"

The first represents the pressure reached when the heart is beating or pumping That is called the systolic pressure

The second figure represents the "resting pressure" which exists between beats, and is called the diastolic pressure.

Blood pressure fluctuates between these two figures; it does not go down to zero between beats

Here is the way these figures

are determined After the cuff is inflated, the pressure is gradually released The doctor keeps his stethoscope on the arm below the cuff

While the circulation is entirely cut off, he hears no pulse beat But as the pressure is released, he soon begins to hear a thump, or pulse. That comes when the systolic pressure is sufficient to force blood past the cuff Noting the pressure at that moment gives you the first figure, the systolic pressure

Then, as he still further releases the pressure in the cuff, all the while listening to the thump of the pulse, there comes a point at which the thump is no longer heard.

This is the moment at which the pressure has fallen to its minimum level and this gives us the diastolic pressure reading.

The momentary compression, shutting off the flow of blood in an arm or leg, is nt sufficient to disturb the pressure in the heart or the rest of the arterial system.

It is much less than occurs when, for example, you sit on the edge of a hard bench and blood flow is cut off enough to make your feet and legs tingle or "go to sleep"

Leaving the cuff inflated a little longer could cause some tingling in your arm, and perhaps redness of hands and fingers, but this is still so slight as to cause no harm

Dear Dr Thosteson: What is your opinion of a woman 51 wanting polio shots? Where can this be given to one who cannot afford a private doctor? The idea is that if polio shots can prevent crippling, why can't it help folks with arthritis or other stiffening ailments? — Mrs E T

I'm afraid she's a very mixed-up woman Polio shots won't help arthritis any more than a measles vaccination will prevent smallpox, or flu shots will prevent typhoid

Vaccinations are designed to cause the body to build up protection against some particular type of germ Polio shots build up defenses against polio virus but not against any other disease

Dear Dr Thosteson Could "the pill" be the cause of a recent seemingly uncontrollable weight problem? — Mrs D R P

The birth control pill can be associated with some gain in weight because of water retention in the body's tissues, but this is pretty much limited If it is really an "uncontrollable" problem, you'll have to look farther for the causes

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way To Stop It." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Island Duty Reward for London Bobby

Metropolitan Police Have Been Keeping Peace in Anguilla

By DONALD FORBES
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — That British landing on the Caribbean islet of Anguilla brought 4,000 London bobbies the best job they've ever had

On a rotating basis over the past two years, they have had three-month and six-month tours of duty in a sunshine paradise where no metropolitan London policeman ever expected to serve.

The first contingent of peacekeeping police swarmed onto Anguilla alongside British troops in March 1969 after the 6,000 islanders pulled out of an unhappy federation with neighboring St Kitt and Nevis islands

Since then Anguilla has rejected British proposals to put Anguilla back into the federation The federated St. Kitts-Nevis Associated States insists on Anguilla's return

Thirty British policemen still remain on Anguilla.

Some have served two tours on the island, like Constable William Johnson, 34

"It was a marvelous assignment in a marvelous place," says Johnson "I'd go back a third time but there is still a waiting list of 700 men who want to serve there"

Constables, accustomed in London to routine patrols and canteen meals of sausage and mashed potatoes, reveled in a situation where "a cloud on the horizon was big news," and there was plenty of lobster

Police duties were far from arduous They mounted regular patrols, controlled immigration at the single airstrip and island jetties and settled minor legal disputes

But they devoted as much energy to swimming off Anguilla's magnificent beaches and to winning the hearts of the people by laying on film shows and playing soccer and cricket with them

Recently Britain has told Anguilla that it must accept in effect a plan for temporary rule as a british colony or face the threat of invasion from St Kitts If the Anguillans accept colonial rule they will be asked in a referendum several years hence to say if they want to return to the Associated States.

No Serious Alewife Dieoff Is Expected

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— Dieoffs of alewives are unlikely to plague Lake Michigan beaches this summer, a fisheries research biologist reports.

Ed Brown, a biologist specializing in alewife research for the Great Lakes Fishery Laboratory at Ann Arbor said Tuesday, "by this time, we should have known if we were going to have any real serious dieoffs."

However, Brown noted that predicting alewife dieoffs "can be tricky" and said dead fish could become "a little bit of a nuisance" in scattered areas.

Brown said the lab's research indicates the small, herring-like fish are increasing in Lake Michigan, and a dieoff has been occurring over most of the lake's southern end.

An aerial survey Brown and Dr. Howard O. Tait, the laboratory director, conducted June 8 and 9 from Ludington southward showed "a fairly intensive dieoff but it was light."

Brown said subsequent reports from lakeshore towns and the lab's research vessel in the Saugatuck area have indicated little change in the pattern and no more flights are planned.

The fish, which caused an estimated $50 million loss of tourist revenues when millions of them washed ashore and rotted in 1967, are dieing in somewhat heavier numbers than during the past two years, Brown reported.

Dieoffs may continue into early July, he said, but the 1967 peak occurred by late June.

"On the basis of that and our surveys of the alewife population, we're just not expecting any major problems this year," Brown said. Concentrations of the fish are heavier in the southern end of the lake, Brown said, but the aerial survey showed few problems along the beaches and most of the shoreline was clear of dead fish.

Brown said his research indicates alewife dieoffs are triggered by two factors — a food shortage caused by overpopulation such as in the mid 1960s and cold temperatures.

Both a shortage of food and extremely cold winters seem to make the fish extremely susceptible to sudden changes in water temperatures during spring spawning, he observed.

Alternate Route for I-57 Still Near Bog

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —The Wisconsin Highway Commission approved Tuesday a plan to route Interstate 57 to within one-half mile of Ozaukee County's Cedarburg Bog

The routing, an alternative to the route originally recommended by the commission, will now go to the Federal Highway Administration for approval, according to Highway Commission Chairman William R. Redmond.

The segment of freeway is part of an interstate route planned between Milwaukee and Green Bay and runs from the Milwaukee-Ozaukee county line to a point north of Saukville.

The commission before hearings last year tentatively backed another route one mile east of the bog but within 1,000 feet of the bridge, Redmond said.

Three Consumer Protection Bills Introduced in Assembly

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — State Rep. Harout Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, introduced in the Assembly Tuesday three consumer protection bills on which he said he and Gov. Patrick J. Lucey had collaborated.

One measure would permit a consumer victimized by false advertising or labeling to recover damages without legal expense. A firm convicted under the bill would have to pay $200 or damages, whichever was greater, along with legal fees.

A second bill would prohibit collection agency employes from unauthorized law practice, coercion, unreasonable harassment, unreasonable publication of information about a debt, misleading means or violating postal laws.

Debtors would not have to take out supplemental health insurance greater than the amount of the debt or loan unless paid for by the creditor under the third bill. Under present policy, Sanasarian said, a loan company may demand a $10,000 policy for a $3,000 loan.

"If I crack up the new car and I am unable to pay off the loan because of injuries, the finance company can collect the entire $10,000," he said.

Eagle Scout Awards, the highest awards in Scouting, have been earned by two youths from Troop and Post 12, Franklin School. Tom Retson, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Retson, 1115 E. Melrose Ave., an Explorer, and Rick Okada, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Okada, 624 E. McArthur St., a Scout, both earned the Eagles for their volunteer work with their respective churches. Both have been in Scouting for four years and both also earned the 21 merit badges required for an Eagle. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Annexation Revisions Get Preliminary Okay

MADISON — A bill rewriting procedures for municipal annexation was given preliminary approval Tuesday by the State Assembly.

The redrawing of annexation procedures was called for by the Tarr Task Force on Government Organization in order to insure more orderly urban growth.

Boundary expansion programs and comprehensive plans for expansions would be required of cities eyeing unincorporated areas.

The bill stirred protest from lawmakers who said it abridges the existing right of residents in an area slated for annexation to a referendum on the question.

"A pocketbook issue is involved," said Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, one proponent. "If you live in a tax island, you don't want to be gobbled up into the cities."

"Present annexation laws," said Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, "have done nothing but create border wars in most parts of our state."

A series of nine amendments that would have diluted the measure were rejected by margans as narrow as a single vote.

Preliminary approval came on a non-partisan 52-44 vote, but the aye vote of at least one staunch foe indicated plans to seek to reconsider the action.

Body of Infant Found in Ditch

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — The badly decomposed body of an infant found in a towel in a roadside ditch Monday was a boy, Kenosha County Coroner Thomas Droff said Tuesday.

Dorff said after an autopsy the infant had been born alive and the mother probably was in her seventh or eighth month of pregnancy.

State's Top Democrats Expect Davis to Take Federal Judgeship

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — State capitol Democrats including Gov. Patrick Lucey believe there is a strong probability that Rep. Glenn Davis, Waukesha County resident and ninth district Republican member of the House of Representatives, will be named to the eastern Wisconsin federal district court by President Nixon, the Wisconsin assembly was told Tuesday.

Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison, Democratic majority leader in the house, offered the explanation when he was challenged by minority Republicans to ask the governor to call a special election to fill a state assembly seat in a Milwaukee County district.

Rep Harold Froehlich of Appleton and John Shabaz of New Berlin, chief GOP spokesmen in the house, charged that the governor is deliberately avoiding the call for a special election because he is apprehensive about electoral reaction to his taxing and other legislative proposals thus far.

Froehlich suggested that the Democrats may have their difficulties in recruiting a candidate who is willing to run on the Democratic state administration's performance record.

At that point Anderson replied that he had been informed by Lucey's office of its belief that there is a strong chance that Davis will vacate his congressional seat for the judgeship, thus making it convenient to call the two special elections for the same day.

County Drafts Mobile Home Zoning

Outagamie County's first comprehensive mobile home park zoning ordinance will be presented to the county board next month.

The board's zoning committee Monday afternoon unanimously adopted the provisions which, if enacted, would become amendments to the county's overall zoning ordinance.

Supv. Delmar Schmeichel of the Town of Center, a member of the zoning committee, said the mobile home provisons are "almost a carbon copy" of those enacted nearly a year ago by the Town of Grand Chute.

Kenneth Theine, housing planner for the Fox Valley Council of Governments, worked with both Grand Chute and the county in drafting the zoning provisions.

At present, according to Frank Charlesworth, county coordinator of public services, mobile home parks have to be on land zoned for agriculture, trailers must be at least 20 feet apart and each trailer lot must be at least 2,000 square feet.

Schmeichel said the zoning changes, if adopted, would supercede those in effect in other municipalities in the county, except in cases where the other provisions are more restrictive. Grand Chute's regulations concerning mobile home parks are more restrictive, in some respects, than those proposed by the county.

The following are among the major provisions of the proposed mobile home park zoning provisions:

—The park would contain a minimum of 120 mobile home lots, of which at least 30 would have to be ready for occupany before the first home could be moved in.

—There cannot be more than six mobile home lots per acre.

—The mobile home shall not occupy more than one-fourth of the total mobile home lot, and the complete unit, including all accessory structures, shall not occupy more than half of the lot.

—Individual lots within the park must be not less than 3,500 square feet, which is 1,500 square feet more than the present minimum.

Distance Between Homes

—The required distance between the mobile homes will be 15 feet and each home will be located at least five feet from any other mobile home lot line.

—All mobile home parks must be provided with a screening of natural growth or decorative fences or walls along the property boundry line. Ultimate height of the screening must be at least 15 feet.

—A minimum of 10 per cent of the total mobile home park area must be left in open space. In the open space, there must be one or more recreation areas, each of which must be at least 200 square feet for each lot.

—No mobile home can be parked within the park for less than 30 days.

Other provisions of the proposed ordinance change relate to driveways, parking areas, sewage disposal, applications to the county zoning committee for mobile home park developments and various definitions relating to the subject.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin of rural Kaukauna, zoning committee chairman, saw the ordinance as the "only way to eliminate" the traditional mobile home parks.

William Steenberg vice president of the Wisconsin Manufactured Homes Association, agreed, saying that his group "wants to eliminate the mobile home park of yesterday and the junkers."

Zoning committeemen explained that the proposed zoning changes, which have been under consideration for nearly a year, would have no effect on the proposed 260-unit mobile home park on 61.5 acres in the Town of Grand Chute, since that town's ordinances would be applicable and equally restrictive.

Grand Chute Town Chairman Ira Livingston said his town had urged the county to adopt some type of mobile home zoning plan. "Our's was not fully workable unless the county updated theirs," he explained.

Schmeichel said there was no real reason to bring in the zoning amendments now. "It's just a matter of land use planning," he said.

Senate Sets Hearing on Hyphen Cases

A public hearing on the requests of four Wisconsin cities to have their names taken off North Central Airlines route certificate will be held at 3 p.m. Monday by the State Senate's committee on labor, taxation, insurance and banking.

The four communities each have their own airports which are served by commuter airlines. They contend being listed as being provided airline service by North Central from other airports is confusing to passengers.

The committee is headed by State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, who has introduced legislation in the Senate backing the petitions of Appleton, Marshfield, Sheboygan and Wisconsin Rapids to have the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) take their names off the airline's listing.

County Board Stays With Northeastern

Buckley Says 'Uphold Support'

With most of the support coming from Appleton supervisors, the Outagamie County Board Tuesday night voted to remain a member of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

While it drew a simple majority vote, the motion to discontinue membership, proposed by Supv. Edward Spierings of Little Chute, failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote. The final count was 23-21, with a "present" vote going to the majority side. Three supervisors were absent.

Fourteen Appleton supervisors were among the 21 who voted to stay with Northeastern. Voting on the controversial issue came after 1½ hours of discussion that included pleas for Northeastern support by Appleton Mayor George Buckley and Appleton attorney Gordon Myse.

Buckley told supervisors, "The future welfare of Appleton and Outagamie County hinges on your decision tonight." He urged the county to back a merger of the area's two planning agencies by remaining with Northeastern.

Buckley, who had to have unanimous consent to address the board, theorized that the "problem of two planning agencies" in the area is nearly resolved because Appleton will soon pull out of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG).

"COG is almost finished," Buckley remarked. "I think it's a case of goodnight Lucille."

He reminded supervisors that three major Fox Valley cities and two towns have dropped out of COG. While Appleton's share of the COG budget had been about 29 per cent, Buckley outlined, it will jump to 59.5 per cent as a result of the dropouts.

A move to get Appleton out of COG lost by a 9-9 vote on the City Council floor last week.

"When the nine aldermen who voted against pulling out of COG find out we'll pay 59.5 per cent . . . they'll switch," Buckley predicted. He added, "I could not let Appleton remain in COG and assume a burden like this."

And, he remarked, "When Appleton withdraws from COG . . . it will do so with no intention of re-entering. When we leave COG, it will be for good."

Buckley said Appleton should then contract with Northeastern for whatever planning services are desired. He said the dollar cost of planning will be reduced through a merger because municipalities would have to support only one unit. Northeastern would be able to assimilate "some of the quality people of COG," he explained

"Appleton will be counting on you to stay with Northeastern," Buckley admonished supervisors. "Don't leave us out in the cold."

Ald. Judith Winzenz of Appleton's 12th Ward refuted some statements made by Buckley. She explained that while Appleton supported Outagamie's withdrawal from Northeastern as an endorsement of the creation of a three-county planning commission, there was no intention by Appleton to join Northeastern.

Some supervisors who backed the Northeastern dropout argued that if the decision should turn out to be unwise, the county still had six months to change its mind. Withdrawal from either of the two planning agencies necessitates a six-month notice.

Myse argued, however, that getting back into Northeastern could prove difficult. "It's not a revolving door by which you are free to enter and leave, willy-nilly, any way you wish," he cautioned.

He urged supervisors to consider three prospects when attempting to re-enter Northeastern: a petition must be approved by the governor, an action Myse described as "a complex matter"; there is the danger "there will be nothing left to serve you when you want to come back," and there is the matter of staff, facilities and budget.

Myse urged the board to at least make a thorough study before taking action on withdrawal.

Spierings, who besides being on the county board is a member of COG's governing board, had moved for the Northeastern withdrawal to allow the reorganization necessary to have a merger of the planning agencies.

The federal government has stated there must be only one planning agency for the Fox Valley metropolitan area.

Discussion among supervisors was quite brief Tuesday, although the planning matter had been given a good airing at the first half of the June board meeting two weeks ago. Tuesday's night's session was the final half of an adjourned meeting.

Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton urged the board to "be a leader and stay with Northeastern." He saw it as the most economical move.

He was supported by Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton, who two weeks ago, wanted the county out of Northeastern.

Supv. Delmar Schmeichel of the Town of Center warned that the only way to effect a planning merger was to withdraw from Northeastern.

Before the vote was taken, County Executive Alvin E. Woehler read the supervisors his position paper on the planning issue. He proposed, that if the county pulls out of Northeastern, attempts should be made to form a single planning agency consisting of no less than three, or more than eight Wolf River watershed counties.

The planning council, comprised of elected and citizen representatives, would provide contractural services to five northern counties — Florence, Forest, Langlade, Menominee and Shawano — which now are full members of Northeastern.

The commission would have no taxing authority. Each member county, at its option, could employ its own planners.

Woehler told a reporter, after the county voted to stay with Northeastern, that his plan was not drafted in vain because it may have helped the county "move off dead center" in the planning dilemma.

Woehler said the dilemma has "put the taxpayers in a very frustrated position," and he notified supervisors it was their responsibility to bring about a solution.

In the audience Tuesday night was Orrin King, chairman of the Winnebago County Board, which last week failed by two votes to pass a resolution freeing the county from Northeastern membership. Another vote is expected next week. King told a reporter that, despite Outagamie's action Tuesday, he still thinks Winnebago will vote to withdraw.

Charles Hervey, Northeastern director, said his agency will continue to provide uninterrupted services and will continue to pursue a merger with COG.

Northeastern Plans Land Survey Work For Unemployed

A proposal has been made by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission to use 1,000 unemployed men in its nine member counties to do the land surveying required under the state's county surveyor law.

Under the law, all section corner markers must be re-established over the next 20 years under the direction of the county surveyor who must be a registered land surveyor.

Northeastern officials estimate this will cost the nine counties a total of $4 million. Their proposal is to use unemployed men to do the work over a three year period.

If a request through Wisconsin State Employment Service Director Jerry Fieber receives approval from the Manpower Administration of the U. S. Department of Labor, the project could begin July 1. Total funding should be available for the first year of the project through the Nixon Administration sponsored Public Service Career Bill. Florence County's cost was estimated at $400,000 over the 20 years.

The state requirement is based on the need for accurate land markers for forestry practices, road construction, and real estate development.

Using employment service statistics, the planning commission maintains figures on the number of unemployed in each of its nine counties. The total last September was 7,420. The figure is much higher now; Shawano County alone jumped from 780 to 1,100 unemployed presently, for an increase of from 5.7 to 10.1 per cent unemployment

The plan is to use funds from the state Vocational Technical program, College Work-Study, Job Corps, Rural Manpower, Manpower Development Training Act, and Public Service Careers programs to finance training and wages of survey transit crews and mapping teams. Her target candidates for the porgram will be returning military veterans, economically disadvantaged young men and women, and unemployed college graduates from the nine county region.

Training would be provided through the state vocational and technical school system and will be in the latest laser beam technique s of surveying. The skills derived through project training will be applicable in many other areas of engineering construction.

(According to Fox Valley Technical Institute officials, survey courses are available in the conservation department. However, an official was skeptical about being able to offer training in the latest laser beam techniques at the present time.)

"The program is not a dead end idea; trainees will acquire marketable skills they can use on other projects within the region," Mrs. Barbara Kennedy, Northeastern Housing Planner said. "The idea is to train people in one skill which can be used in many different situations." The increased purchasing power of project members should boost the economy in the area counties.

New London School Board Sets Budget at $2.4 Million

NEW LONDON — The district board of education proposes a budget of $2,428,353 for the 1971-72 school year, a 5 per cent increase in spending over the current record-setting budget.

The board released its figures Tuesday in preparation for a public hearing on July 7.

Primarily because of an $8 million jump in the equalized valuation of the district's municipalities for 1970, the board at this time anticipates tax rates to drop.

The budget is $121,905 more than the 1970-71 amount. Anticipated receipts this year of $1 million leave $1,419,883 to be raised by real estate and personal property taxes, $100,000 more than last year.

But the $8,101,800 growth in equalized valuation may lower the tax rate to $20.70 per $1,000, compared to $21.84 on equalized valuations in 1970-71. The rate now proposed to finance the operational budget is 18.52 mills, with an additional 2.18 mills financing the district's sinking fund.

District Valuation

The valuation of the district has been set for tax purposes at $68,563,600, with the city of New London accounting for 41 per cent of the total.

Board president Eugene Fuhrmann said total school expenditures are expected to remain steady through the budgetary process. But the final tax rate, he said, will depend on decisions now being made in Madison on state aids.

The board estimates general state aid for 1971-72 to be $830,500 to New London, an increase of $130,000. But final figures have not yet been determined by the legislators. General state aid is the biggest source of outside receipts for school districts, and its amount influences the school tax.

Teachers' Retirement

The board protected its budget in two other areas of doubtful state legislation. New London last year received $36,257 in shared public utility taxes. That income may be wiped out by proposals now being considered in Madison, and board members decided to anticipate no revenue from that source in the coming school year.

Another legislative proposal would make school districts responsible for paying the portion of teachers' retirement benefits now financed through state taxes. New London, in 1970-71, disbursed $6,523 in retirement money to non-instructional personnel. Anticipating the new regulations, board members budgeted $93,960 in the 1971-72 expenditure for benefits to instructors.

From total operating costs of $2,278,267, the board credited $25,570 in cash left over from the previous budget and $982,900 in expected receipts, for an operational tax levy of $1,269,797. The sinking fund will get $150,085 from the proposed budget, $100 less than last year. The sinking fund plus the operating cost is the total budget; its addition to the operational tax levy is the total school tax.

The sinking fund is built up through successive budgets to finance school construction and defray the interest costs on bond issues.

Major changes in the 1971-72 proposal are in instructional costs, fixed charges, capital outlay and community services.

Salary Increases

Teachers' salaries are by far the largest item in the budget. Average pay raises of 7.25 per cent negotiated this spring account for most of the $63,762 increase over the salaries paid in 1970,71. The base pay for teachers is now $7,450, compared to $7,000 last year, and a total of $1,148,033 has been budgeted. Total insturctional spending is expected to go up by $105,921.

Fixed charges on most insurance programs remained the same, while the category itself doubled in the proposal, due to retirement payments.

Capital outlays for construction projects and equipment purchases have been set to drop from the current $165,297 to $60,972. The completed addition to the junior high school used much capital in 1970-71.

The school district this year will pay half the costs of a new city recreation program under a full-time director, and $10,000 is proposed in the budget for this expense.

The public hearing will be in the commons room of the high school at 8 p.m. July 7. Fuhrmann said the board will alter the tax rate according to definite information it receives on state aid, retirement and utility tax legislation. The board has scheduled a meeting on July 12 to take final action on its budget.

Dance Planned for Thyssen Family

NEW LONDON — A benefit dance will be held Sunday night at the Bean City Ballroom for the Jack Thyssen family, who lost their possessions in a fire on June 2.

The Thyssen farmhouse on Shaky Lake Road between New London and Dale was gutted in the blaze. The fire added to the family's troubles, because Thyssen, who had been injured, had only been back to work for three weeks when it happened.

His leg was crushed in a farm tractor accident in August, 1969, and since that time he has undergone an extensive series of operations and medical treatment.

The parents and five children aged 2 to 10 are living in a second-hand mobile home at the farm. They stayed in the barn for a short time after the fire. The old farmhouse will be torn down.

People Help

Mrs. Thyssen said Tuesday that "people had helped us out all along" after her husband's accident. Young people from Dale put on a supper in March to raise funds, and others the family hardly knew stopped out with gifts.

Since the fire, people have brought furniture, clothing, towels, bedding, some food and a refrigerator. The local chapter of the Red Cross gave everyone new shoes.

Mrs. Thyssen said, "It's been marvelous. I can't thank all the people who've helped out, and I'm sending out dozens of thank you cards."

The dance will run from 8 p.m. to midnight Sunday, with music by Elmer Kopitzke and the Midwest Polka Jamboree.

Waupaca to Consider New Contract

WAUPACA — Work is at a Standstill for the second day in a row at the Crystall River-well No. 5 transmission crossing project.

Work could start Thursday if the city council tonight approves a contract with the firm of consulting engineers, Phillips and Associates, Kimberly, which would bring Iver Oerter, former director of public works and city engineer, back to the city to direct the Crystal River project.

Oerter resigned his position here June 15 to work for the Kimberly firm.

Did Not Appear

A special meeting of the city council has been called for 5 p.m. today to consider a modified contract with Phillips and Associates.

Monday night, the city council hired Oerter for three days this week so there would be no delay in the transmission line river crossing. He did not appear at the project site Tuesday.

The original contract, enabling Oerter to return to the projects here, was presented to the council Monday by Phillips and Associates. It provided for the services of Oerter to complete any projects or assist in any projects with which he was involved while employed by the city and in which Phillips and Associates provided consulting services.

Aldermen, who had their first look at the lengthy contract Monday, were dismayed by its intricacies and concerned about whether or not it would have a long-term commitment with the firm of consulting engineers.

After one and one-half hours of discussion Monday, the council voted 6 to 2 to have Phillips draw up a new contract, calling for Oerter's services on the transmission line from well No. 5; the completion of construction at the secondary sewage treatment plant; and Oerter's assitance until a new director of public works is hired.

Needed Approval

In a subsequent motion, the matter was to be referred to City Attorney Laurie Anderson, requesting him to study the contract and, if necessary, draw up a contract specifically for the three services.

To expedite the work on the Crystal River crossing, Ald. Thomas Taber (1st) proposed that Oerter go ahead Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday without a contract. Oerter told the council that he would have to get the approval of his firm which might be difficult because Robert Phillips was out of the city.

Tuesday morning, city crews waited at the Crystal River. Oerter did not show up and Kramer cancelled the order for special equipment. The crew was called off the job about 9:30 a.m. and Kramer called a meeting of the board of public works.

Anderson told the board of public works that the contract, as submitted by Phillips, had two sections he questioned. The portion which provides for the services of Oerter to act on projects in which he was involved as director of the board of public works as the need arises and the portion which provides for services from the consulting firm on future projects.

"It is not an exclusive contract," Anderson pointed out. "But as it is written, all options are up to the city. It can be terminated on written notice by the city within 30 days, no work will be done by Phillips and Associates without written order

Justice Panel Told to Concentrate On Conditions That Lead to Crime

MADISON — Serious crimes in Wisconsin nearly doubled during the past four years, Gov. Patrick J Lucey told the council on Criminal Justice Tuesday

Speaking at the group's first meeting, the governor noted crime in Wisconsin is becoming more and more an urban problem and that young people account for the majority of serious offenses.

"It is apparent," Lucey said, "that crime has a direct relationship to poverty, urban blight, racial prejudice, and the lack of educational and employment opportunities.

"But there is another contributing cause to the incidence of crime," the governor said, "one that should be of special concern to all of us—the seeming lack of effectiveness of our system of criminal justice"

The council is responsible for implementing the federal Safe Streets Act at the state level Lucey said he expects the group's 18 members to spearhead formulation of plans "which might result in tangible improvements of our criminal justice system

"We are experiencing intolerable congestion in our courts," he said, "and our correction system is simply not rehabilitating criminal offenders."

The governor noted that last year Wisconsin was awarded over $7 million in Safe Street Funds, $4 million more than the previous grant.

Lucey said he hoped the council would continue to emphasize police training and consolidation of law enforcement agencies

"There should be no sacred cows and no holds barred in studying police work in Wisconsin," he said.

The governor called on the group to begin formulating policy for the next year. The group gave tentative endorsement to the 1971 state criminal justice improvement plan formulated its predecessor, a council headed by Atty. Gen. Robert Warren.

Lucey told the group, made up of state and local officials and law enforcement officers, that he regards the council as his administration's key group for improving criminal justice in Wisconsin He asked the group to work with two task forces he has already named on judicial organization and offender rehabilitation where their objectives overlap.

Set Policy

In taking the council away from the attorney general's office, Lucey announced that he would prefer the council to be involved in policy formation while a sub-committee of its members and its 12-man staff take responsibility for reviewing and recommending the disbursement of funds.

Previously, Lucey noted, the council became involved in lengthy discussions of each small allocation.

The governor asked the group to focus on problems affecting the state's crime rate and judicial system. Among those areas he recommended for study are juvenile delinquency, drug abuse, police training, consolidation of the police functions in metropolitan areas and expanding the jurisdiction of The State Patrol in rural areas, the possibility of establishing a centralized police academy, subsidizing police salaries, and improving police-community relations

Highway Flares May Not be Sold With Fireworks

The practice of displaying and selling highway safety flares along with sparklers and other acceptable fireworks violates Wisconsin's Fireworks Law, Charles Ahlgrim, a representative of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture's hazardous substance section, has announced

According to Ahlgrim, highway flares are exempted from the Fireworks Law only when they are sold and used for highway safety purposes

"There are many hazards involved when flares are used as fireworks," Ahlgrim warned. He urged parents to discourage their children from using the flares.

Local law officers and other enforcement personnel are urged to be on the lookout for illegal sales of all fireworks during the July Fourth holiday season. Agriculture Department personnel also will check stores for possible violations.

Panel Focuses on Rodent Question

KAUKAUNA — Deputy health officer Games Gertz informed members of the health and recreation committee Tuesday night, that two or three dwellings in the island area of the city could be causing rodent problems, but that the problem did not appear as severe as some people indicated.

He noted that he was unable to investigate a dwelling, considered a possible hazard, but said that he was going to get a court order for inspection

Some aldermen said that they had heard from people on the island who were unaware a problem existed until reading about it in newspapers Gertz promised to give a report after the investigation

Members voted to recommend issuance of a fermented malt beverage and intoxicating liquor license to Gordon Jacobson, 115 Wisconsin Ave., who plans to convert The Phoenix, a teen center, into a night-club and restaurant.

No objections were heard to the proposed license at a public hearing held by the committee. Jacobson said that the new business would seat 64 in the restaurant and 26 at the bar. Some remodeling will be done, and the building will be checked before the new business begins operation to assure that all license requirements are met.

After hearing an objection from a plumbing contractor concerning work being done on city plumbing projects in parks and other buildings, the committee voted to request a ruling from City Attorney Donald Green to learn the extent of work permitted on city projects by non-licensed plumbers

Discussing burning in the city, the committee noted the difficulty experienced in wording proposed burning ordinances, none of which received Council approval, and voted to write the state Department of Natural Resources to secure a model ordinance which might be accepted

Park Superintendent Victor Luedtke was instructed to investigate costs for remodeling the boat ramp at Riverside Park, and City Inspector Harold Loeser and a local sewer contractor were instructed to investigate a complaint that raw sewage is draining into Konkapot Creek from a septic tank on Cleveland Avenue.

The committee approved the purchase of three illuminated screens, at a cost of $202.50, for use in visual testing programs at schools.

Gertz was instructed to contact the county health department to determine what aid in health services could be expected from the county in the event the city nurse's work load becomes overtaxed.

Car-Tractor Accident South of Freedom Injures 3 Persons

Three persons were taken by ambulance to Appleton Memorial Hospital Tuesday, after a car-tractor accident at about 11:36 a m

The accident occurred on State 55, about one-half mile south of Freedom The tractor, driven by Douglas J. Hinkens, 13, route 5, Appleton, turned in the path of an auto driven by Shirley M Deming, 57, Zion, Ill

All of the injured were passengers in the Deming auto George A Haas, 75, route 2, Seymour, with lacerations to the forehead; Hatte M Haas, 65, bump on the head and lacerations and Ella M. Benjamin, Zion, Ill, bruises. They were treated and released.

The car and tractor both were traveling south on State 55 at the time, and Hinkens turned left into the path of the auto.

For Your Eyes Only

The Truth Is Out On Secret Memo

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — In dealing with the question of whether the New York Times was correct in printing excerpts from the top secret Pentagon report as to how we got involved in Vietnam, one must understand the entire question of classifying government documents.

To begin with, all branches of the government classify documents. The more classified documents a department has in its files, the more important it considers the work it is doing.

Buchwald

The lowest government classification for a classififed document is LOU which stands for Limited Official Use. This classification could be stamped on a document to announce a softball game, an office party, the vacation schedule of department heads or what one must do in case of a nuclear bombing attack. (After the attack, report to your nearest post office and wait for instructions.) Almost anyone in the government family has access to LOUs, and you'll usually find mail-room boys reading them on elevators between deliveries of interoffice mail.

The next designation is CONFIDENTIAL which is really between LOU and SECRET. CONFIDENTIAL could have some security information in it, (for example, not only would it give the time of the softball game. but who was pitching for the other side). Fewer people are allowed to see a CONFIDENTIAL memo than a LOU. (In the case of a nuclear bombing attack, a CONFIDENTIAL memo might tell you what to do if the post office wasn't there.)

After CONFIDENTIAL comes SECRET. A SECRET document is so categorized on a N to K basis (Need to Know). Only those people who are actually involved in the project are supposed to have access to SECRET documents. They have an urgency to them that demands "Deal with this before coffee break."

The next classification is TOP SECRET. It's hard for someone in the government to tell the difference between SECRET and TOP SECRET. other than when reading a TOP SECRET message your palms sweat more

The final classification is LIM DIS, standing for Limited Distribution. A LIM DIS is TOP SECRET with hair on it The highest classification known publicly in LIM DIS FEO (For Eyes Only). If you get one of those, it means you were in some way responsible for the nuclear attack, (See paragraph 3 for this article.)

Now the important thing to understand is why people in the government classify their documents Here is a scientific breakdown of reasons and percentages The reasons a paper is classified are·

1 — To make the person who wrote the document look important — 10 per cent

2 — To make the person reading the document think he is more important than he really is — 10 per cent

3 — To keep secretaries and file clerks busy during slack periods — 15 per cent

4. — To be on record in case someone ever calls you on a mistake someone else in the department made — 10 per cent.

5 — To make sure the press will take it seriously when the document is leaked to them — 15 per cent.

6 — To impress the public with your frankness when you declassify it — 10 per cent

7 — To protect the person (or persons) who were responsible for making the mistake (s) — 25 per cent

8 National security — 5 per cent

What one must always keep in mind when dealing with something as dicey as the McNamara Pentagon report is that it may taste like national security to some people. but others say it's spinach and the hell with it

House Panel Starts Check Of Classification System

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee began examination today of the government's document classification system, official Washington's security blanket for hiding skeletons as well as defense secrets.

The panel, headed by Rep. William Moorehead, D-Pa., focused on the constitutional questions involved in the publication of the secret Pentagon study on the Vietnam war and the Nixon administration's legal battle to suppress it.

The hearings may lead to legislation to change the complex and often misused process by which the government classifies information and materials.

Secrecy Level

Nearly every government agency in the executive branch, acting under Executive Order 10501 of December 15, 1953, can stamp a secrecy label to documents requiring "protection in the interests of national defense."

This authority is used more by the White House, State and Defense Departments. But it also can be invoked by the Agriculture Department, Post Office and Tennessee Valley Authority in matters "pertaining to the national defense."

No one questions the government's need to cloak many of its military and diplomatic interests in secrecy. But the present system also provides a convenient closet for burying embarrassing errors of government.

Documents can be unclassified, Top Secret, Secret, or Confidential.

Top Secret applies to material which, if disclosed, could cause "exceptionally grave damage" to the United States, such as leading to a break in diplomatic relations affecting the nation's defense, or an armed attack on this country or its allies.

The Secret lebel is used for defense information or material that could result in "serious damage," while the Confidential stamp applies to documents which could be "prejudicial to the defense interests of the nation" if disclosed without authorization.

In the Defense Department, the authority for classifying documents Top Secret is limited to few officials.

Classifying a document is no problem once a judgment is made as to its importance, but declassification is another matter. Many documents dating back to World War II are still classified.

In some cases a document could be declassified in 12 years while in another it might be six years. But there are other categories of restrictions on documents.

What are they?

Ice Cream Vans Robbers' Targets

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The youths are really hitting the ice cream vendors hard. The armed youths, that is.

In the last 10 days, 10 armed robberies have netted youthful robbers a total of $921. No one has been injured but in one holdup a shot was fired into the back of an ice cream truck.

Police said some of the robberies appear to be the work of the same gang

Nicholas and Jean DeMartino leave court in Miami after a judge ruled that they could keep their adoptive daughter, Lenore. (AP Wirephoto)

DeMartinos Can Keep Baby Lenore

MIAMI (AP) — A Florida judge has ruled that Nicholas and Jean DeMartino, who abandoned their Brooklyn home after New York courts said they had to return their adopted daughter Lenore, may keep custody of her.

"Dear God, we won," Nicholas DeMartino cried when Dade County Circuit Judge Ralph Cullen ruled Tuesday that the DeMartinos could keep Lenore.

Jean DeMartino hugged their Miami attorney, William Colson. She and her husband wept openly for joy.

Sitting just a few feet away Olga Scarpetta also broke into tears. Her child was not her own.

Miss Scarpetta, 33, put the child up for adoption with a New York agency four days after Lenore's birth on May 18, 1970. The DeMartinos, then living in Brooklyn, took custody of the infant four weeks later.

Miss Scarpetta, a Colombian native now working as a secretary in New York, later tried to get Lenore back. The adoption agency refused but lost the fight in court.

The DeMartinos fled to Florida with Lenore and their 4-year-old adopted daughter, Linda, last month. They said they plan to stay.

Miss Scarpetta's attorneys said they would appeal Cullen's decision even though the DeMartinos said if Lenore were to demonstrate she wanted to see her natural mother, they would agree to it.

Cullen said he decided to deny Miss Carpetta's Florida suit "in view of all the law, evidence and the DeMartinos good reputation."

DeMartino, an attorney, and his wife still face contempt of court charges in New York.

He agreed under questioning that his sudden move to Florida "subconsciously may have been influenced" by the New York court decision but denied he had "ducked out" to keep the infant.

Asked if the interstate custody battle could hinder the child's development, Mrs. DeMartino replied: "I think Lenore will know that she had parents who loved her very much and fought for her."

State Department Develops Drug Use Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has outlined a policy for handling a problem it says doesn't exist—drug abuse by Foreign Service Officers and other government employes overseas.

Although one official said instances of drug abuse in the Foreign Service "can be counted on less than one hand," fears have arisen over a potential rise in drug abuse by department employes and their dependents.

Dr. George I. Mishtowt said in an interview the chief fear is the likelihood American society overseas ultimately will reflect conditions at home. He also pointed to the relative ease of obtaining drugs in some countries

Mishtowt, deputy assistant secretary of state for medical services, said there have been a few instances of drug use by foreign service personnel, but the greatest concern is for younger dependents.

Security Checks

Foreign service officers usually are 25 to 30 years old when hired, he explained, and not as readily attracted by drugs. In addition, they undergo stringent security checks before hiring with most potential offenders weeded out.

"But we do have problems with adolescents where drugs are available," Mishtowt said, "the same problem as we have here." Another aspect, he added, is that dependent children often attend American schools overseas and therefore come in contact with U.S. cultural trends, including drug use...

Mishtowt said the limited drug abuse involves marijuana, hashish and some LSD, but no heroin or other hard drugs. "It is not at all analagous to the military," he said.

The department has issued a six-point program stressing education but carrying the threat of serious punishment as well, including dismissal.

The basic approach is one of education, an effort to handle the situation in an enlightened and uniform way, Mishtowt added, "not as a matter of discipline nor security."

Another aspect of drug problems involving U.S. citizens abroad was injected by the State Department Tuesday with the release of figures showing 747 Americans were being held in foreign jails on local narcotics charges as of last month

Barbara Watson, administrator of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, said this was four times as many as were detained two years ago. Miss Watson said the jump seemed to come from two main ingredients.

One is impression among young American travelers that drug use is tolerated more abroad than at home. The other is tougher enforcement by foreign governments.

She said severe penalties often are invoked: up to six years in jail for possession and 10 to 20-year prison terms for trafficking.

Miss Watson added the U.S. government can do veryy little to help Americans arrested overseas on drug charges since such violations are a matter of local law.

Islanders Get Rid Of Mafia Leaders

ASINARA, Sardinia (AP) — The 200 islanders of Filicudi have won their four-week fight to get rid of 15 Mafia bosses exiled to their island, and this time the government won't get any complaints from the Mafiosi's new neighbors.

The unwanted 15, who were landed on Filicudi on May 26, are being transferred Thursday to Asinara, a penal island off northwest Sardinia.

"There is no one here to protest," said one official. "Everybody is either a prisoner or a guard."

The government began hauling Mafia leaders off to island isolation in the middle of May, after the assassination of the government prosecutor in Palermo, the capital of Sicily. Eighteen gang leaders were banished to Linosa, off North Africa, but that island is barren and deserted and the only protests came from the Mafiosi.

But when the second batch of 15 reached Filicudi, off northern Sicily, the islanders hurled insults at them, barred them from the only village and after several days boarded up their shops and sailed off to neighboring Lipari, claiming the undesirables would scare off the tourists Filicudi needs.

Premier Emilio Colombo assured the Filicudians the visit of the unwanted guests would be temporary, and on June 9 the islanders returned home.

Asinara is 20 square miles of granite and has a population of 300-450 prisoners and 150 guards. One official said the Mafia men won't have to work like the prisoners do, but the gang leaders are expected to voice some of the same complaints they expressed in Filicudi.

"We can't spend our money," Nino Bubbellato complained there. "There's nothing to buy."

There is "no normal life" on Asinara either, the official said.

Some of the prisoners grow fruit and vegetables and raise cows, pigs and sheep. Others are chronically ailing convicts cared for in a health center.

Nixon on the Other Side in 1950

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty years ago, when the shoe was on the other foot, Richard M. Nixon accused the Truman administration of holding back classified documents for political reasons.

"The new test for classifying secret documents now seems to be not whether the publication of a document would affect the security of the nation," Nixon said at the time, "but whether it would affect the political security of the administration."

Nixon demanded that Truman release the complete report on which the New York Times had based a story about Gen. Douglas MacArthur's alleged misguessing in Korea.

Currently the Nixon administration is struggling in court to keep the Times and other newspapers from printing information obtained from classified documents on the Vietnam war.

Wake Island Records

A few days after Truman fired MacArthur as the allied commander in Korea, the Times published an article on April 21, 1951 based on secret records of talks between MacArthur and Truman on Wake Island Oct. 15, 1950.

Drawing from the classified papers, the Times said MacArthur had predicted the Chinese would not intervene in the war and boasted they would be "slaughtered" if they did.

The Times story also said MacArthur told Truman and others victory would be obtained by Thanksgiving 1950 and the Eighth Army would be back in Japan by Christmas.

The next day Nixon responded that "one of the most vicious smear campaigns in history" had been planned against MacArthur.

Nixon, then a senator from California, said the leaked documents were "obviously selected to spotlight every action of the general which might reflect on him unfavorably."

"Certainly," Nixon said then in a statement released in Washington, "if classified documents are now to be made public, the committees of Congress and the American people should be entitled to see not only those documents which might reflect against MacArthur, but also those which might reflect in his favor."

On May 3 the Truman administration released the collection of documents, entitled "Substance of Statements Made at Wake Island," to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, which then made most of them public.

The released documents backed up the Times story, quoting MacArthur as saying at the conference there was "very little" chance of Chinese intervention.

A report by the Joint Chiefs of Staff said MacArthur assured the conference, "We are no longer fearful of their intervention." The five-star general also was quoted as saying: "I believe that formal resistance will end throughout North and South Korea by Thanksgiving."

Ten days after that conference Chinese troops crossed the Yalu River from Manchuria, and the promised Christmas withdrawal turned out to be the rescue of more than 200,000 U.N. troops from Hungham. The war continued until a truce was agreed to on July 27, 1953.

National Security

Although the Truman administration released the documents Nixon demanded, it, like the current administration, expressed fear of danger to the national security.

The Pentagon and congressional Democrats opposed public airing of a Senate hearing on the MacArthur firing. Only senators were allowed in. MacArthur's testimony was released to the press, but only after it was censored for military secrets.

Today's defenders of newspapers publishing the Pentagon papers have argued in court the Vietnam documents are historical in nature, being at least four years old. Nixon administration lawyers have said the documents still have bearing on the war's conduct.

In 1951 MacArthur offered the reverse argument, declaring the six-month-old Truman documents had "just about as much bearing on the problem of Korea today as a report on the military operations on Bunker Hill."

War Challenge Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court judge has thrown out another attempt to force the courts to rule on the legality of the Indochina war, this time sending 12 congressmen down the appeals court trail.

The congressmen contend the administration, by continuing the undeclared war, is violating their right under the Constitution to decide whether the nation should go to war or not.

In approximately five minutes, hearing no oral arguments, U.S. District Court Judge William B. Jones dismissed a motion by the congressmen that would have required the President to seek congressional declaration of war or stop fighting.

The Supreme Court last fall refused to take original jurisdiction of a Massachusetts suit concerning this question. A New York federal court ruled last year that Congress had approved the war by authorizing men and money for the fighting.

Jones told the congressmen's lawyer, Lawrence Velvel, he saw no mention of a 1967 case, Luftig vs. McNamara, in the 111 pages of briefs he had read before the hearing. He dismissed the case without hearing Velvel's oral arguments.

In the Luftig ruling a three-judge appellate panel said the war essentially was a political question beyond discussion by the courts.

Velvel said Jones' decision would be appealed.

Afterwards, Velvel, a University of Kansas law professor said, "I consider it a most distressing thing that judges will not hear the case on its merits, no matter who brings it, even if they are congressmen whose rights are being stripped by the executive branch."

The action was brought by Reps. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y. They were joined later by nine other members of the House.

Suspended VFW Post Loses Appeal

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Madison's maverick "peace post," which Tuesday lost a federal court attempt to enjoin its suspension from the national Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), planned to demonstrate with antiwar groups at the state VFW convention today.

The post, with nearly half its members young Vietnam veterans, was suspended for 60 days from the national VFW last week, allegedly for antiwar activities. Its leaders went to Judge James E. Doyle of U.S. District Court in Madison, seeking reinstatement in time for the state convention.

Harold Fager, attorney for West Madison Memorial Post 10203, told Doyle the suspension violated the group's rights of free speech and due process.

But Doyle said he was "not convinced the post had reasonable cause to halt the suspension because "the first and fifth amendments are not imported wholesale into the internal affairs of the VFW."

No Opinion

Doyle said he would give "no opinion about the fairness or unfairness of the procedure followed here, or the wisdom of the natinal VFW in terms of its action with this post."

VFW attorney Jack DeWitt said the post would have an appeal hearing from the state VFW here late today. He said the hearing will be on whether the VFW should continue its suspension of the post.

Mel Cohen, outgoing Post 10203 commander, said Tuesday he doubted post members would be physically excluded from the convention.

"We're paid-up members for this year, and the VFW is chartered by Congress," Cohen said. "They can't keep us out."

Incoming Commander Mike Brenz said plans for today's demonstration included displaying of placards, speeches and talks with citizens and convention delegates. Antiwar groups from Milwaukee and Chicago would be on hand, he said.

"We're going into this with a non-violent attitude," Cohen said. "We don't have a violent bone in our bodies."

Post 10203 was suspended after state VFW Commander Ara L. Fish charged it with violating the spirit of a "victory in Vietnam" resolution adopted by the national organization last year.

Slaying of Yablonski Admitted

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Claude E. Vealey, co-defendant in the slayings 1½ years ago of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his wife and daughter, pleaded guilty to murder today and said the killings were paid for by a man named "Tony."

Vealey's surprise disclosure was in a sordid step-by-step statement that told of how he and two other men stalked Yablonski weeks before the killings, of how they broke into the Yablonski home before dawn the morning of Dec. 31, 1969, crept upstairs and pumped bullet after bullet into their victims —and of how, in a moment of uncertainty, the job nearly was bungled.

The statement, which Vealey said he gave of his own free will and without coercion or promises of leniency, mentioned the man "Tony" repeatedly, but never identified him further. The statement was read in open court after Vealey's guilty plea.

The Yablonskis were slain the same month the raspy-voiced 59-year-old union insurgent lost his bid to depose UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

Different Tax Plan Pushed Toward Nixon

Economic Conditions Forcing Change in Administration's Stand on Proposals

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Outside pressure on President Nixon's economic high command, divided and disheartened, is pushing it toward an emergency tax-cut package utterly different from its economic game plan.

With unemployment remaining high and the economy staying sluggish, prospects are improving that Mr. Nixon may have to swallow a package containing a speedup of a scheduled tax cut for individuals plus a return to the investment tax credit desired by industry. In return, the President would have to abandon his embattled scheme to help industry by liberalizing depreciation guidelines.

Evans

Actually, the chances for such a package remain something less than 50-50, if only because of the formidable opposition of George Schultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Schultz, still the closest approximation of an economic strongman in this government, is inflexibly opposed to tax cuts.

Blah Statistics

Moreover, any prediction is foolhardy considering the babel of Nixon economic policymaking. Almost any shade of opinion on tax policy can be found in the Administration (or in the upper reaches of the Treasury alone, for that matter). With Mr. Nixon typically aloof from this vital question, there has been no coordinated discussion inside the Administration.

But those most familiar with decision-making in Nixonland perceive that the predictably blah business statistics for the second quarter ending June 30 ("They will be moderately lousy," concedes one Administration official) will push the Administration closer to a tax cut than ever before. Indeed, even without the statistics, tax-cut lobbying has increased sharply within the past two weeks.

Some of the President's political operatives have reported to the White House that the sputtering economy may be too much to overcome for his reelection and consequently want something dramatic — that is, a tax cut. Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, privately has become ever more insistent about what he wants: tax cuts for both individuals and corporations accompanied by an incomes policy (that is, guidelines on wages and prices) to hold down inflation.

Finally, key Democrats are beginning to get their minds off Vietnam long enough to consider tax-cut possibilities. A memorandum proposing an investment credit of massive proportions is being prepared for Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, the front-running Presidential contender who until now has disregarded the economy as cavalierly as Mr Nixon.

The result is a high for tax-cut sentiment in the Administration. Dr. Paul McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is moving into the tax-cut camp in his peculiarly cryptic way. But he seems interested solely in tax relief for individuals, by speeding up an increase in the personal exemption scheduled for 1973.

In contrast, one very high Administration official moving gradually toward the tax-cut camp feels relief for industry, not individuals, is needed to stimulate the economy. His preference would be reduced corporate rates — a proposal doomed to defeat in the Democratic Congress.

If the President follows McCracken's lead and proposes a speeded-up personal tax cut, Mr Taxation in Congress — Democratic Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas — unquestionably will add to it a revival of the investment credit (permitting tax benefits for new industrial investment). Total price tag: about $10 billion. In turn, the President would have to dump his tax subsidy for business with faster depreciation, unveiled early this year but still not put into effect after vehement opposition from liberal Democrats.

Even though Mr Nixon led in repealing the investment credit in 1969, few top officials would shed may tears about its reinstitution. Thus, George Schultz would have his work cut out to prevent sponsorship of a tax package which he believes hideously inflationary in a time when budget deficits surpass $20 billion a year.

The decision could turn on the still new and still untested Secretary of the Treasury, John B. Connally. Unscarred by the unhappy decisions and false prophecies of his colleagues, Connally makes clear his options are open on tax policy — including the investment credit. In an Administration whose economic policy has been marked by failure and dissonance, his confident voice might well make the difference in the critical weeks ahead.

Psychiatric Exam Ordered For Hitchhiker

Post-Crescent News Service

FOND DU LAC — A preliminary hearing was continued and a psychiatric examination ordered Tuesday afternoon for a Green Bay man charged here with auto theft and attempted murder.

David F. Maloney, 23, was charged after he shot a Pewaukee man five times after he had given Maloney a ride on June 13.

Mental Evaluation

Semenas said the State Crime Laboratory has not completed its chemical and bellistics tests, and that he wanted this information before the hearing proceeds.

Maloney is being held in jail in lieu of $17,000 bond.

Ascher told police he was returning from a fishing trip at Green Bay when he picked up a hitchhiker and drove him to the Town of Eldorado in Fond du Lac County. Before the hitchhiker got out he shot Ascher, dumped the man for dead and stole Ascher's car.

Police & Fire Beat

About $12 in automotive fuses, and two decks of cards were reported missing, following the burglary of Lorge s Mobil Service Station in Bear Creek.

The Outagamie County Sheriff's department is investigating the incident which occurred sometime Monday night, or early Tuesday morning. Entry was gained to the building by breaking window in a rear door.

KAUKAUNA — Mrs. Donald Gorzelitz, 1611 Main Ave., reported to police her 8-year old son was pushed from his bike and $1 taken from him by two youths, about 12 or 13, while he was on his way to a store Monday afternoon.

The older moys, also on a bicycle, were last seen headed north on State 55 after the incident.

LITTLE CHUTE — A locked door was forced on a storage shed at Riverview Sanatorium sometime Monday night, according to police, and a motor from a leaf blowing machine, a power lawn mower, socket wrenches and a sprinkling can were taken. No estimate of value was placed on the stolen equipment.

Police also reported two cherry bombs were thrown into a window which was forced open at St. John High School sometime Sunday night or early Monday resulting in a floor tarp being partially burned and tile under the tarp scorched.
